Stolen helicopter shot down at W.H.

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The Secret Service shot down a stolen helicopter on the south lawn of the White House this morning.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said the helicopter landed on its own after it was hit by shotgun fire. He said the pilot, a man, was being questioned and apparently was not hurt. The shooting occurred at 2 a.m.

Neither Pesident Nixon nor any members of his family were in the White House at the time. The President was in Key Biscayne, Fla. Mrs. Nixon is in Indianapolis, Ind., where her daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, remains hospitalized following surgery last week. The Nixons' other daughter, Tricia, was with her father at the Southern White House.

About an hour before the shooting, District of Columbia and Maryland State Police reported they were tracking a stolen Army helicopter that apparently had flown south from the Baltimore area and then turned back north over the Washington suburbs.

Government and military regulations prohibit all air traffic from the vicinity of the White House and other government buildings in the Federal Triangle of Washington.

Warner said agents of the Executive Protective Service did the shooting. They are part of the Secret Service, which is responsible for protection of the President.

An eyewitness, Robert J. Young of Alexandria, Va., said he was driving his automobile when he and his wife "saw a helicopter coming in over the White House and a lot of lights around there."

"My wife jumped down on the floor because we thought we heard gunfire," Young said. "We saw the helicopter coming in and I drove down 15th Street. Then a bunch of red lights, fire engines I guess, started coming by."

Hearst gets second tape from daughter

Willing to compromise, -- kidnapers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The terrorist abductors of publishing heiress Patricia Hearst have slashed their demands and appear willing to compromise on any "sincere effort," Miss Hearst and the kidnapers told her parents in a tape recording delivered Saturday.

"It was never intended you feed the whole state," the 19-year-old college coed said in a recording apparently made Wednesday and sent to the family with considerable intrigue through the minister of a radical-oriented church.

Miss Hearst also said she was being well treated, but urged her parents to act "'as fast as you can."

The leader of the Symbionese Liberation Army, which says it is holding Miss Hearst, said on the same tape that the terrorist group "will accept a sincere effort on your part."

Miss Hearst assured her parents she was being well treated, and not being starved, beaten or tortured.

"So people should stop acting like I am dead," she said. "Mom should get out of her black dress"--referring to a dress her mother Catherine has worn on several television appearances since the Feb. 4 kidnaping.

The recording — apparently made the same day her father, Randolph A. Hearst, announced he could not meet the original demands — said there was "some misunderstanding" about what the kidnapers called a "good faith gesture."

In a communique received by Hearst last Tuesday, the SLA demanded that Hearst, president-editor of the San Francisco Examiner and son of the late William Randolph Hearst, provide each of an estimated 4.7 million needy Californians with $70 in free food at a total cost of about $400 million.

"They understand you want to meet their demands," Patricia said. "And they have every intention that you should be able to meet their demands.

"They weren't trying to present an unreasonable request.

"So whatever you come up with is basically okay. And just do it as fast as you can and everything will be fine."

The recording was delivered to the family by the Rev. Cecil Williams of Glide Memorial Methodist Church in San Francisco, one of six groups named by the SLA to handle the free food distribution.

"It's really depressing to hear people talk about me like I'm dead," she said.

"If everybody is convinced that I am dead, well then it gives the FBI an excuse to come in here and try to pull me out. I'm sure that Mr. (FBI agent-in-charge Charles) Bates understands that if the FBI has to come in and get me out by force that they won't have time to decide who not to kill. They'll

"I don't particularly want to die that way."

Miss Hearst, who at one point in the tape paused and indicated she was reading from notes, said she was being held as "a prisoner of war" and being treated in accordance with international codes of war.

Glide Memorial once was known as the "hippie church", and its counter-culture congregation has staged unorthodox rock music services, light shows and weddings.

Hearst had the tape picked up by an intermediary. Copies were made by

2 Arab envoys arrive; talk of lifting embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign ministers from Egypt and Saudi Arabia met Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Saturday night, expressing hope that they can help overcome obstacles to a Middle East peace agreement.

They were expected to discuss terms for lifting the Arab oil embargo.

Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia landed at a snowy Dulles International Airport (at 6:24 p.m. EDT) Saturday evening. They were met by Kissinger, who had conferred for about an hour with President Nixon earlier in the day at Key Biscayne, Fla.

Kissinger had scheduled a working dinner for Fahmy and Sakkaf after an evening meeting with a Syrian envoy, but the two Arab ministers canceled the session saying they were exhaused from their flight. A working lunch was set up for Sunday.

Welcoming the diplomats on Nixon's behalf, Kissinger said: "I don't know if we will answer any questions but I certainly hope so."

Sakkaf acknowledged the welcome and said: "We are very hopeful that these talks with our friends will be very good and very fruitful.

"We are hopeful in coming here that something ... is going to be solved," said Sakkaf, referring to the long and bloody conflict between Arabs and Israelis.

The two ministers, who left Paris in the morning after a conference among Arab leaders, are expected to ask for United States assurances that Israel will eventually withdraw from the Golan Heights. Israel captured the Golan Heights from Syria in 1967.

$500,000 armored car holdup

SOMERSET, Mass. (UPI) — Three armed holdup men dressed as security guards hijacked an armored truck from a supermarket parking lot Saturday night and escaped with as much as $500,000.

Police later found the truck, emptied of its money, a short distance from the supermarket. The guard and driver were unharmed, police said.

Carl Wood, manager of the Fernandes Supermarket, said the three bandits drove into the parking lot in a yellow van shortly after 7 p.m.

"They jumped out of the van and forced the guard back into the truck and took off just after they had picked up a shipment at the store," Wood said.

Spokesmen for both the supermarket and the International Armored Car Service of Providence, R.I., refused to say how much the truck was carrying. But Massachusetts state police estimated the holdup men got away with $500,000.

Police said the bandits were armed with a sawed-off shotgun, a machine gun and a pistol.

Family of 4 hurt in crash

AZUSA — A Hacienda Heights family of four suffered serious injuries Saturday afternoon when their small car missed a turn on a hairpin curve on Highway 39 and rolled about 75 feet down an embankment to the roadway below.

According to the California Highway Patrol, William Brewster Palmer, 43, was driving southbound on the roadway about 18 miles in mountainous terrain above this city when the mishap occurred around 4:40 p.m.

Palmer, his wife Ethelyn, 42, and their son William, 14, were hospitalized in Arcadia Methodist Hospital in serious condition. Reports say he suffered chest and abdominal injuries as well as lacerations to the face and leg, Mrs. Palmer received a fractured back and skull plus possible kidney injuries, and their son suffered a fractured skull, scalp lacerations, and abdominal injuries.

Their daughter, Denise, 10, was reported in critical condition with severe facial lacerations, internal injuries a cerebral contusion and a broken leg.

Dealers granted penny more per gallon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Office acted Saturday to end service station shutdowns by giving most dealers a penny per gallon markup in the price of gasoline.

An FEO official said the action should end shutdown threats scattered from North Carolina to Washington State by giving owners higher profits.

The penny markup in the retail price of gasoline will apply to all stations receiving less than 85 per cent of their 1972 fuel supplies, according to deputy energy chief John C. Sawhill. He said these stations numbered well over half of all dealers.

The markup, effective March 1, will be in addition to "pass throughs" to consumers of the higher wholesale costs of gasoline.

"This penny increase for retail dealers is designed to offset increased dealer operating costs caused by reduced supplies," Sawhill said. "These operators have not only had to contend with reduced volumes, but also with corollary decreases in sales of nonpetroleum products such as tires, batteries and other items."

Sawhill said "people just don't buy those accessories after they've been waiting in line for 45 minutes or an hour."

As Sawhill announced the markup, service stations were closed in Winton, N.C. and in much of the Tidewater area of Virginia. The operators said they wanted higher profits per gallon of gas and permission to pump gas for regular customers first.

Dealer associations in Pennsylvania and Washington State threatened to shut down next week if their demands were not met by the FEO.

Liquor store held up by three men

CLAREMONT — Two men robbed the Gourmet Liquor Mart at 1189 Central Ave. Saturday night after forcing the store's clerk and a lone customer to lie on the floor at gun point while they cleaned out the cash register.

Bicycle racks due at court building

POMONA — Bicycle parking racks will be installed at the Pomona Municipal Court building at 350 W. Mission Blvd.

Purpose of the action, a Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors spokesman said, is to encourage employes and visitors to use bicycles as a means of transportation whenever possible to concerve gasoline.

Accounting office to cut off funds

Agnew Secret Service protection stays--Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has declined to remove Secret Service protection for former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew despite a ruling Friday by the General Accounting Office that continued protection is illegal and will not be paid for.

A spokesman for Nixon in Key Biscayne, Fla., said Saturday Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats' refusal to provide money for the guard beyond Monday was under study by the Treasury Department, which supervises the Service.

He said there was no change in status of the bodyguard detail and did not say when it would be ended. As it has for other top government officials after they leave office, the Secret Service is maintaining protection for Agnew for an unspecified time.

A Secret Service spokesman said the protective agency could not remove the Agnew detail "until the President orders the Secretary of the Treasury to order the Secret Service to stop. We have not received any such orders."

A spokesman for Staats' General Accounting Office said the administration could force a showdown in court if it wished simply by continuing to use federal funds to pay for Agnew's protection, although the certifying officer for such an expenditure would be held personally liable for paying the bills.

Agnew has had full Secret Service protection since he resigned from office Oct. 10 before pleading no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge. The GAO estimated the detail cost taxpayers nearly $90,000 for a two-month period alone.

Staats is an official of Congress, not the executive branch, but has authority to halt use of federal funds for any purpose he determines is illegal.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler was questioned at length about Agnew's protection at a briefing in Florida Friday, but declined to say why the service was not ended.

"I can't point to any specific element, and if I could, I wouldn't, obviously," Ziegler told reporters.

The Treasury has noted that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., had Secret Service protection for six months after he left the vice presidency in 1969. Presumably that would mean that Agnew's protection would continue until about April 10.

90 m.p.h. chase driver arrested

POMONA — James Young Dills of Chino was booked into the West End Sheriff's substation Saturday night on a reckless driving charge after he led a Highway Patrol officer and a Chino police unit on a chase that hit speeds up to 90 miles per hour on residential streets.

According to the patrol, Dills, 23, was spotted eastbound about 8:30 p.m. on Mission Boulevard at Roswell Avenue going about 70 m.p.h. When the officer attempted to halt him, he sped away. Dills turned southbound onto Ramona Street and wove through traffic up to 90 m.p.h. running three stop signs en route to Riverside Avenue in Chino, where he turned eastbound.

Joined at that interesection by the city police unit, the highway patrol car followed Dills to a trailer park at 12955 Yorba Ave., where Dills resides in Space 1-A. The driver pulled into a parking space and ran away on foot. He was subdued and arrested.

CLAREMONT — Some had blowouts, some "crashed", others just badly outclassed—but everyone had fun.

That included parents, who watched their youngsters "do battle" Saturday in Claremont's second annual bike race sponsored by the city parks and recreation department.

Fifty-three youngsters entered, and a number of them had problems, but most finished the race.

David Dentremont, 11 complained that "someone ran me off the curb" at the start of the competition among those 12 years and under.

Curtis Spalding, 21, who raced in the long, 13.2 mile course for "veterans" suffered a blowout on Mt. Baldy Road but he managed to change the tire, and finished last.

Some cyclists were luckier—such as Roy Thurston, Greg Robison and Mike Salvini.

Thurston, 24, of Claremont, captured the first place trophy in the top race for those 18 and older, Robison, also of Claremont, won the 13 to 17-year-old heat and Salvini, another Claremont resident, took the 12-and-under contest.

Other winners in the longer, 13-mile race, were Edwin Delesdeenier, second, David Grover, third and Steve Smith, fourth.

David Frimodig, Bruce Colby and Mark Mishler were second, third and fourth place finishers in the 13 to 17 class. Frank McCue, David Bratt and Mark Beveridge wound up second, third and fourth in the 12 and under race.

Thurston led a pack of riders which started at La Puerta Junior High School at Forbes and Miramar streets, raced east to Mills Avenue, north on Mt. Baldy Road to Schinn Avenue above San Antonio Dam, back down Mountain Avenue to Baseline, and back to the school.

The race for those 13 to 17 covered 1.9 miles over a course along city streets near the school, while younger competitors followed a 1.2-mile route.

About 100 fans, most of them parents of the youngsters, cheered the riders on, and comforted them if they had problems. Nearly everyone enjoyed the race.

the FBI, and the family and tape experts listened to it. Hearst said the voices were distorted, apparently by weak batteries on the recorder, but that he was "sure it's from Patty."

"She sounded physically stronger," he said. "Her voice is much better. She didn't sound sedated. She sounded like her normal self."

Miss Hearst reiterated that she was a political prisoner— and said her captors were angry over descriptions of their demands as "extortion" and of her kidnaping as a "racial issue."

"This is a political issue and this is a political action that they've taken," she said. "Anyone who really reads the stated objectives of the SLA can see very clearly that this is not a racial thing."

She said her kidnaping was "a warning to everybody" that some people would not accept her father's support "of other governments."

Minister thrust into go-between position

Liaison gets Hearst tape

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rev. Cecil Williams, pastor of Glide Memorial Methodist Church, said an anonymous phone call Saturday morning led him to the latest tape recording by kidnaped Patricia Hearst.

Williams said the telephone caller gave a staff member directions to find the cassette with the message from 19-year-old Miss Hearst, daughter of newspaper publisher Randolph A. Hearst.

Following the instructions, the pastor and two staff members found key No. 531 taped to the bottom of a telephone inside a booth at the Hilton Hotel. They took the key and walked a block to the airport terminal where the key opened a locker containing the recording inside a brown envelope.

"I took out the package, wrapped it in my coat and took it back to the church office," said Williams. "I played it one time and called Randolph Hearst. I said 'I'm not sure if this is legitimate, but you should hear it.'"

Williams said the tape seemd to be "running fast" and the voice was distorted. He said Hearst listened to it over the phone and at first said, "I really don't know." Hearst then sent a courier to pick up the tape and take it to his Hillsborough estate.

An hour-and-a-half later, Williams said, Hearst called and said it was legitimate, that it was Miss Hearst's voice.

Williams said he considers it "very important" that he received the tape because it "indicates we are now considered a liaison between th Symbionese Liberation Army and the Hearst family."

A coalition of six groups, including Williams' church, had earlier offered to act as a mediator between th kidnapers and the family.

Ford denies he's eyeing presidency

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford, winding up a three-day swing through the Midwest, Friday denied that his recent, expanded travels have anything to do with running for the presidency in 1976.

"I am not a candidate and I have no intention of being a candidate for any office in 1976," he said. This, he added, included the presidency and the vice presidency.

Ford, in the city of his birth to address a $100-per-plate GOP fund-raising dinner Friday night, met reporters after completing a briefing at the Strategic Air Command headquarters near here.

Ford coupled his disavowal of presidential ambitions with a firm defense of President Nixon's handling of the Watergate matter and a sharp criticism of Congress for inaction on the President's legislative program.

"I am confident that President Nixon can restore confidence in his government," he said. Ford cited a recent Louis Harris poll which he said showed that the President has the confidence of more people than the Congress.

FBI chief to open up to news media

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, in a major break with traditions of the late J. Edgar Hoover, has pledged to hold regular news conferences to tell the public what is going on in the bureau.

Kelley declared soon after taking office last July 9 that he wanted the FBI to have an "open stance."

Kelley has gained wide publicity by declaring a policy against saying "no comment" in response to reporters' questions.

From now on, Kelley said Wednesday, we will hold three or four news conferences a year in Washington on a regular basis and call extra ones when news developments warrant.

"You can consider that a commitment," Kelley said.

Mrs. Johnson to talk on TV

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An aide to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson said Friday the former President's wife will appear on the Today Show Wednesday to talk about plans for a Washington memorial to her husband.

The former First Lady has made few public appearances since Johnson died a year ago.

She will appear on the program with Laurence Rockfeller, who is chairman of the executive committee for the LBJ Memorial Grove on the Potomac.

Reagan sees harm in financial disclosure

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan says requiring candidates to make public their personal finances would keep a lot of good men out of politics.

"I think everyone holding public office should have a certain degree of privacy," he said Monday. "If they don't you're going to discourage a lot of people from the private sector, and leave it in the hands of the professional politicians."

The owner of the house, John Cash, received burns on the left arm. No information on the extent of his injuries was available from fire officials.

Another fireman, John Lee, was treated for a wound he received when he stepped on a nail during the fire that caused some $6,500 in damage to the house and the garage.

Mobil hits it at record depth

Important oil strike in Venezuela

CARACAS (UPI) — A multimillion dollar oil experiment began to bear its first fruit Saturday with an important oil strike in Lake Maracaibo.

The Mobil Oil Co. announced that after drilling for more than two years and investing $15 million, a well setting a Latin American depth record of 18,583 feet had struck light gravity crude which flowed at 5,400 barrels per day, more than 10 times the Venezuelan well average.

It was the first clear encouraging strike in the 617,750-acre zone in the southern part of the 5,627 square mile lake that was granted in 1971 to Mobil, Shell and Occidental oil companies for more than $21 million.

Only last week Shell decided to abandon its 123,552-acre block after drilling four dry holes at a cost of $12 million. Occidental reported that its recent find of medium gravity crude had still not been proven conclusively commercial.

The five blocks were granted under an experimental "service contract" system and are the first new oil fields opened to foreign companies here in 15 years.

Current Venezuelan production of more than 3.2 million barrels per day comes from around five and a half million acres of oil land granted more than 30 years ago under the now defunct concession system and due to expire under law in 1983.

Although Lake Maracaibo is Venezuela's oil center, contributing more than 80 per cent of total national output, the zone where Mobil struck oil is south of the traditional giant fields.

Gas production to rise 6 per cent

HOUSTON (UPI) — Exxon U.S.A. said Friday it would increase gasoline production 6 per cent.

"The early swing from emphasis on heating oil production to increased gasoline production was necessary to help ease the present short supply of gasoline," Exxon said.

Finch denied physician's license

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch, who spent 12 years in California prisons for the 1959 murder of his wife, Saturday was denied a license to practice medicine in Missouri even though he passed the required examination.

The Missouri Board of Registration for the Healing Arts voted unanimously before announcing Finch's exam score to refuse to issue the license regardless of the grade he made on the test. Board members said they would await the outcome of a court appeal in Kansas City of whether the board must issue the license to Finch.

Finch received 77.2 points on the exam, with 75 points needed to pass.

Finch, 53, lost his California license after his conviction and life sentence. He moved to the southwest Missouri community of El Dorado Springs in the fall of 1971, shortly after he was released from prison, and has worked since as an X-ray technician at Cedar County Hospital.

He applied for reinstatement of his medical license last May, but was turned down because of his felony conviction.

That ruling was overturned last September and a Cole County Circuit Court upheld the decision allowing Finch to take the test for a Missouri license. The Healing Arts board has appealed the lower court decision to the State Court of Appeals in Kansas City, where a decision is pending. Finch took the tests in St. Louis in December.

A group of El Dorado Springs residents invited Finch to settle in the town of 3,100 persons south of Kansas City because they needed another doctor.

At the time of the murder of his wife Finch was a surgeon and the principal owner of a private hospital.

He and his former receptionist, Carole Tregoff, were each sentenced to life in prison for the murder of Barbara Jean Finch at the Finch home near West Covina, Calif. Both are now out on parole.

Finch had the support of his adopted community in his fight to regain his license. El Dorado Springs Mayor Gene Pray said, "the whole community is pulling for him.'

WARM GREETING — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger greets Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy with a hug at Dulles Airport in Washington, D.C. Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf looks on. Julie much better; eating solid foods

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana (UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower, recuperating from emergency abdominal surgery, was described as much better Saturday. She had breakfast of solid food for the first time since her operation.

An Indiana University Hospital spokesman said "the night passed uneventfully" and "her appetite remains good'' following surgery Thursday for a condition described by doctors as a bleeding ovarian cyst.

White House sources said in Washington that Dr. William Lukash, a deputy White House physician, described the President's 25-year-old daughter Saturday as much better and progressing as expected.

The word from Lukash indicated Mrs. Eisenhower will be hospitalized no longer than seven days, which would place her dismissal at next Wednesday or Thursday.

The speculation also hinted that Mrs. Pat Nixon and Julie's husband), David Eisenhower, would return to Washington with the President if he visited here.

Mrs. Nixon previously had planned to go to Huntsville with the President but now intends to remain at Indianapolis at least through Monday, the White House said.

It was expected that Eisenhower might return to Georgetown University where he is a law student by the time classes resume next Tuesday.

Suez Canal reopened by year's end?

TOKYO (UPI) — Egyptian Deputy Premier Abdul Hatem said Saturday his country hopes to reopen the Suez Canal by the end of the year.

Hatem told a news conference that the removal of mines and stranded ships and dredging work could be completed in six months.

He said the Egyptian government is considering a three-stage project for the reopening and expansion of the canal to enable it to allow super tankers of 270,000 tons class to sail through.

Hatem arrived here Friday for talks with government and business leaders, returning a visit by Japanese Deputy Prime Minister Takeo Miki to the Middle East late last year.

Japanese sources said Japan is prepared to offer $140 million in low-interest loans to help finance the reopening of the canal—closed since the 1967 war—and other projects.

Arson probed in Pomona car lot fire

POMONA — Arson investigators were continuing to probe the cause of a fire that inflicted $4,500 in damages on a used car lot garage at 1594 E. Mission Blvd.

The blaze Friday night destroyed several motorcycles, tires and wheels stored in the garage and caused about $3,000 in damage to the building, owned by A and A Auto Sales.

Firemen who responded at 8:04 p.m. said they were able to keep the blaze from spreading to adjoining sales offices.

Cause of the fire is undetermined, but Battalion Chief Paul Murphy said it could have been the work of arsonists.

City-owned garage is hit by fire

POMONA — Fire gutted a garage at 954 Weber St. early Saturday, causing damage estimated at $8,100.

The blaze, caused by an electrical short, inflicted $4,000 in damages to the contents and $3,100 to the building, fire officials said.

Battalion Chief Paul Muphy said the garage, and adjoining house, are owned by City of Pomona and are under condemnation proceedings, making way for Weber Park.

Thirteen firemen responded to the fire, including two engines and a truck company.

The garage was totally involved at 3 a.m. when fire fighters arrived, with flames shooting through the roof and upper walls.

Rain boosts farm crops in S.B. County

SAN BERNARDINO — Rain and warmer temperatures aided the growth of field crops last month in San Bernardino County.

Officials measured six inches of rainfall during varied storms. Temperatures, they added, were generally several degrees above normal.

Lemon picking increased after the rains, and the estimated yield was upped 30 field boxes per acre.

There are 2,482 acres of lemon groves, all in the West End. Officials had previously estimated the yield at 248 boxes per acre.

The present harvesting indicates an improved quality. Domestic shipments remained the same during February but exports were reduced.

Valencia oranges showed improved fruit sizes because of the favorable weather. But the summer harvested crop will have less volume than last season, officials forecast.

There are 4,856 acres of valencia oranges, with the yield estimated at 135 field boxes per acre.

Rain and warmer weather also aided the grapefruit crop. Both color and fruit sizes have accelerated during the month, they said.

There are 1,535 bearing acres of grapefruit, with the yield estimated at 244 boxes per acre.

School, city officials to seek home for Pomona boxing club

POMONA — Members of the Pomona school board and the City Council will meet at 5 p.m. on March 12 in council chambers in an attempt to find a new home for the Sacred Heart Athletic Club.

The club, which offers other youth services but primarily sponsors a youth boxing program, has used the district-owned gym at 800 S. Garey Ave. since May 25, 1971.

Club officers were informed by letter Feb. 1 that the school board, at its Feb. 5 meeting, would take action on a recommendation by a district administrator that the club be instructed to vacate the gym by April 6.

The reason given was that the school district was in "desperate need" of storage space.

Approximately 200 club members, officers and supporters attended the Feb. 5 school board meeting, many anxious to speak. Dr. James Bell, school board chairman, advised them to wait for the joint meeting.

The board took no action on the recommendation that night, staying the April 6 eviction notice.

School officials said that the 1971 agreement with the club to use the gym was for one year, as mandated by state law.

Club officials had agreed to repay $1,864.41 the district spent on gym "modifications," and as of Feb. 1, still owed $584.41.

The original, one-year agreement said that if the district needed the gym, it must give the club 60 days notice.

A district administrator had recommended that 60 days notice be given, even though technically there is no current operative agreement for the club to use the gym.

Rep. Veysey in group urging Nixon to stay

Rep Victor Veysey and 100 other House Republicans have joined in a letter to President Nixon urging him not to resign. The letter was sharply critical of members of Congress who have demanded the President's resignation.

"Such demands ill serve the nation, and in fact damage the prestige of the House itself," the letter stated.

Veysey, Republican incumbent in the 35th District, explained that the letter is "to correct any misapprehension the public or the White House might have that the demands for resignation are widely shared by members of Congress."

Veysey said that instead of demanding the President's resignation, the congressmen so inclined should be "using their influence to bring House consideration of these proceedings to a prompt conclusion, so we can all focus more effectively on other important issues confronting the nation."

Year of tree sad indeed in Britain

RICHMOND, England (UPI — In the fading days of 1973, three diseased elms crashed to the ground at Hampton Court Palace, felled by a woodsman's buzzsaw in a fitting epitaph to the "Year of the Tree."

"For a year that was to have been a good one for trees, 1973 turned out to be a sad one indeed," said a spokesman for the Countryside Commission, a government appointed body concerned with maintaining the beauty of rural England.

The Hampton Court trees were among hundreds of thousands of elms in Britain which fell victim to Dutch elm disease during 1973, designated by the government as the "Year of the Tree" in an effort to promote reforestation of denuded woodlands.

The Department of the Environment estimates that 17.5 per cent of all elms in England and Wales succumbed to the epidemic last year, bringing to several millions the number of trees which have had to be destroyed in the past five years.

Across the country, countless elms shed their yellowing leaves as early as July, a telltale sign of the disease borne by beetles that burrow into the bark.

So quickly does the disease spread that biologists say the only effective way to deal with it is to destroy elms as soon as they are affected.

"We've traced this particular epidemic to a virulent strain somehow imported from Canada or the United States," an Environment Department spokesman said.

At Hampton Court Palace, near Richmond, woodsmen in one week alone felled 330 diseased elms along a stretch of the River Thames where King Henry VIII strolled hand-in-hand with Anne Boleyn and his other unfortunate brides.

The Forestry Commission, whose task it was to destroy the elms, did manage to plant an estimated 1.5 million trees during the year. Queen Mother Elizabeth laid a plaque in the Scottish village of Abertoyle to commemorate the one millionth acre of trees planted by the commission in Scotland since 1919.

Nearly $500,000 in public funds went to local government authorities to encourage tree planting. The midlands city of Peterborough planted 70,000 trees along a new superhighway to screen it from the surrounding countryside.

But other trees fell victim to "progress."

Under a spreading chestnut tree in the Wiltshire town of Broad Hinton, village postman Ned Downes, a staunch conservationist, stood guard for six days until finally surrendering the tree to bulldozers clearing land for a highway.

"A tree is a living and beautiful thing," Downes said in a letter to a local newspaper. "I even get upset when lovers carve their initials into them or people let their dogs piddle on them. But this kind of wanton destruction leaves me crushed."

Lottery ticket sale in Oregon clearly illegal

SALEM, Ore (UPI) — Oregon Attorney General Lee Johnson said that it would be "clearly illegal" for Oregonians to purchase tickets on the Washington State Lottery from sources on the Oregon side of the Columbia River—boundary line between the two states.

Dealing with such a situation, he said, would be a local law enforcement problem. He said he would "advise" local authorities on the matter, but said he does not anticipate getting involved in any effort to seek out such gambling activities.

However, he said he would get involved if it appeared an organized gambling operation developed in Oregon in connection with a Washington state lottery.

The attorney general said local law officials should be able to handle any lottery ticket sales operations that might spring up. There was speculation the populous Portland area might be a prime market for persons wanting to try to win on a legal Washington lottery.

Men's wear

The French arrive --with new styles

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first French invasion of note was in 1066 when William the Conqueror crossed the English channel and clobbered King Harold II in the Battle of Hastings. The second invasion of note is 1974 —the shores of the United States are swarming with French men's wear designers.

Pierre Cardin has been here for years, but now we have Yves Saint Laurent, Givenchy, Nino Cerutti and Marc Bohan of the House of Dior. Waiting in the wings are a dozen more including the House of Lanvin which expects to bring in a line next fall.

All are noted women's wear designers who were perhaps inspired by Cardin's enormous success in the United States where his designs, translated into wearable American shapes and sizes by the genius of midwesterner Don Robbie, sell from Maine to California.

Robbie has forsaken Cardin for Saint Laurent and has the fall collection ready for the stores, a group of clothing billed as a fresh and elegant collection of "deluxe menswear to have fun in." The designs are Saint Laurent. the all important interpretation by Robbie.

Hollywood feeling

In line with the feeling of nostalgia that has swept into the men's wear market in recent months there is a feeling of the old Hollywood about the designs. They have been updated but you can still wear them with the feeling the suit is something Clark Gable would have worn.

"The most important fashion point is the golf jacket detailing in the sportswear," Robbie said. These details include buckled flaps on the sleeves, buckled flaps on each side of the waist, half belts in the back, occasional pleated backs like the bi-swing backs of the 30s.

A coat in a dozen shades of camel hair had these details as did a cotton raincoat. Another coat with raglan sleeves had a lot of swing and the details included leather buckled epaulets on the shoulder, buckles on the belt and sleeves.

There were many nostalgic fabrics in suits, including sharkskin, the favorite in Hollywood when Hollywood was in its zenith. A brown tweed suit with an orangeish overplaid had four patch pockets, and a pleated back. The pants were pleated and straight with a narrow waistband. Another suit jacket was quite short with a plain back and four flapped pockets. A double-breasted sharkskin with very wide lapels had only two buttons. Fabrics included Harris tweed, whipcord, flannel.

Givenchy shows styles

Two of the Paris designers are in the Hart Schaffner & Marx stable —Nino Cerutti who designs the Society Brand line and sportswear for Gleneagles, and Marc Bohan of the House of Dior. Cerutti is really Italian but has made his fame with his boutique in Paris. But then on the other hand, Cardin was born in Venice.

As an HS&M executive put it, "The Dior collection offers that advanced fashion created with taste and elegance for the worldly man who regards his dress as an extension of his personality." That translates into suits selling for $175 to $275.

Hubert Givenchy, who has long had a boutique in the Hotel George V in Paris, showed his collection in New York late in January. They were clothes with a French accent but translated into American since American men seem to have wider shoulders and deeper chests than Frenchmen.

The French accent includes the very high armhole, a very slight flare to the pants, jackets that fit close to the body, rope shoulders that are slightly angled or swept back. And fabrics ran everywhere from worsted serges through gabardines, twills, cashmeres and plaids. Givenchy was high on country suits and many had multiple patch pockets.

Jackets are shorter

One of the immediate effects of the Robbie departure from Cardin was an immediate and greater involvement of Cardin himself in his American line, and his personal training of Larry Case and John McCoy to take over the "translating" job.

So for the spring line there are shorter jackets, usually without vents, and with broadly built up shoulders coupled with full, pleated pants. New for spring is a jacket with a very low gorge with full and deeply notched lapels, and featuring open side seam double venting. There is a one button double breasted coat in everything from white flannel to linen. The spring collection runs to pastels but with a lot of black for both fun and formal wear.

Reporter finds he's suspect as hijacker

By DALE McFEATTERS

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — To most people, I'm a mild-mannered, somewhat chubby reporter. But to United Airlines, I'm 210 pounds of potentially mean blue steel ready to hijack a plane at the point of a cheeseknife.

It happened at the Dayton, Ohio, airport.

And as a great moment in airport security it ranked with the time National Airlines confiscated the ceremonial swords belonging to a group of freshly minted U.S. Marine second lieutenants going on leave. My wife Ann and I were heading home after a long holiday and one wedding. Even if we had wanted to, we were in no shape to hijack a tricycle let alone a jetliner — and parking is tough enough in our neighborhood as it is.

Ann was carrying a ship-model — which along with uncoiled barbed wire, surely has to be one of the world's most awkward things to carry — and I was carrying a travel bar. Both were Christmas presents.

Travel bar banned

The ship model, even with its tiny little guns, got through airport security. But when airport security, in the guise of a runner-up high school prom queen wearing a little blue jumper that said she was security, got a look inside the travel bar, it was:

"I'm sorry, sir. You can't take this aboard."

"You're kidding. Why?"

"That," she said, pointing at a cheese knife clipped inside the bar along with jigers, a corkscrew and muddler.

Now this is no Bowie knife; it's not even a 1950ish juvenile delinquent's blade. It's one of those dumb little knives that seem to breed in kitchen drawers and can never cut anything.

I mean, it didn't even have an edge, just a serrated blade for making lemon twists and it had no point, only a two-pronged deal for spearing cheese slices or fishing out olives from narrow jars.

Thinking that a young girl might be unduly impressed by bar tools, we took it to the United Airlines attendant for a second opinion.

"You're kidding," I said.

"This is insane," added Ann shifting her ship model. Checking the cheese knife with the stewardess, like National did with the Marines' swords, was out of the question.

"You can leave it here and pick it up when you come through again," security said sweetly. You dummy, I thought. What good is a cheese knife I use three days every year which is how often I come to Dayton.

Solution

The solution, finally, was to check the whole travel bar through as luggage which I was reluctant to do for three reasons: They are fairly fragile; liquor containers are the most-stolen luggage according to Ann who knows these things and also, you never know when you might get an emergency call to operate on a sick martini.

(The second dumbest part of the trip was when the stewardess told Ann to put the ship model under her seat, a trick that could be accomplished only by the splintering of little masts the snapping of tiny spars and the ripping of its minute rigging. We pretended it was a garment bag.)

Now, to help United Airlines out of the bind into which petty officialdom has gotten into, we offer this time-saving profile of who is completely unlikely to hijack a plane.

You have a certified non-hijacker on your hands if, as in my case:

—His wife is carrying a ship model.

—He is driven to the airport by a nun and his wife's grandmother.

—He has come from a holiday with five sisters-in-law, their husbands, a father and mother-in-law and an unbroken losing streak at the games they all received for Christmas.

Actually, I'm pleased that United wasn't deceived by my unprepossessing exterior and that underneath I am a man of steel and lightning reflexes, equally at ease with two-handed broadsword or tiny cheese knife.

Wake still going on

Beer drowns sorrow at loss of saloon

DALLAS (UPI) — The wake was underway. People of all economies and ages drank beer from coolers scattered around and talked about the glorious times that lay buried beneath the ashes of The Creek.

The Creek has been a saloon all its life, which probably began around the turn of the century in open fields well north of downtown Dallas. It was barn boards nailed together and given just enough upkeep through the years to satisfy the Health Department.

Probably a cigarette butt smoldering on the floor or the old water heater was the cause. Regardless, it burned down a week ago and the wake began at 7 a.m. that morning and won't be over until there's another The Creek.

"You probably burned it down yourself cause of all the hot checks you got in there," Nick Wilson said to a crusty old gentleman sitting on a stack of three concrete blocks.

"Yah," said the man, who mumbled his name through a beer can so you couldn't understand it.

But the humor was only on the face, and it was fleeting. Between remarks, everybody would look at the charred walls. It had been home for rebel celebrities from Bonnie and Clyde to pro golfer Lee Trevino.

"I bought whiskey in there back in 1931," said Jack, another older man, a carpenter or pipefitter from the look of him. "It was a dollar a quart and they gave it to you in a Mason jar."

Ed Rogers bought The Creek 23 years ago and gave it its name. Before that, it was The First and Last Chance. Under Rogers, The Creek's beer flowed as swiftly as White Rock Creek which meanders within 50 feet and provided the name. It sold the third largest amount of Budweiser in Texas. There were a line of bar stools and three booths. Everybody else sat on stacked beer cases.

"Ed'd come over and tell you to get up so he could cool some more beer," Wilson said. "Then you'd sit back down. When you got to sitting on the floor, it was time to go home."

Rogers said the fire was out and the firemen gone when he arrived to open up that Wednesday morning.

"I get here at 5 a.m. when I have to open," he said. "Nobody had told me about the fire. I about had a heart attack. I just went out back and sat down."

For two hours, Rogers was a lonely man. But then the regular customers began showing up. Some of them knew and some didn't. They began to dig beer out of the ashes and paid Rogers from 25 cents to $1 for each. The wake began and has not stopped.

Streetcar his desire

'Guess in a way we're all still little boys'

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Lou High adjusted his black cap, climbed aboard a green and yellow streetcar, then looked down and grinned, "It took me 70 years but I did it. I'm a streetcar motorman-conductor."

They are the conductors, operators, dispatchers, motormen and rail crew for the Baltimore Streetcar Museum. High finds their interest easy to explain.

"I guess in a way we are still little boys," said High, the motorman-conductor the last two years on No. 264, a 46-seat car restored to its original 1900 condition.

"It's the same one that used to run in my neighborhood more than 60 years ago when I lived in Baltimore on Carrey Street," he said. "I used to ride it downtown with my mom and think someday I'm going to be a conductor.

"Well I made it and I love it," he said.

The museum, started in 1968, five years after the last run of a Baltimore streetcar, averages 50,000 riders a year.

Each Sunday the streetcars travel up and down a half-mile of track, gongs clanging, dispatchers collecting fares and crying out, "All aboard." Adults pay 50 cents, children a quarter.

Charles Lloyd, 48, one of the museum founders and a regular motorman-conductor at the close of World War II, says for many elderly persons the streetcars offer a ride back into their memories.

"I remember one time an elderly woman was in one of my cars and started crying," he said. "We asked her if there was anything wrong. She said no, she was just thinking when her husband proposed to her in a streetcar many years ago."

Irked dealers want to pump stations dry

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The Evergreen Gasoline Dealers Association reports that some of its dealers want to open up and pump their stations dry to protest energy chief William Simon's ending of preferential treatment.

"We don't want this to come across as a threat," said Mike Moises, spokesman for the association for dealers in Oregon and Washington. "But the regular customer is sacred to these guys. If a dealer has had a customer for 10 years, he's not going to throw him out in the cold, and no one's going to make him."

Moises said that since Simon's announcement dealers had been calling in and "they're all very upset.

Bored worker absenteeism growing business problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bored workers who take a day off at the slightest excuse have become a mushrooming problem for American business, according to the Morgan Guaranty Survey.

The publication of Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York said absenteeism has been increasing 2.8 per cent annually since 1967.

And guess in what class the absenteeism is rising most rapidly—managerial personnel!

The periodical said Department of Labor figures showed other interesting trends. The female absenteeism rate is higher than that of men. Married women have a worse record than single women. Among men the opposite is true —married men come to work much more faithfully than bachelors.

By class, the highest absentee rates are among semi-skilled factory workers and laborers.

Youthful workers have far more one-or two-day absences, but more mature workers have more absences of a week or longer.

The old-fashioned Monday morning and "day after payday" blues still are responsible for many one-day absences.

Tobacco plants have the highest absenteeism rate of any business. The auto industry is second. Printing and publishing have the best worker attendance records of 20 major industries by a substantial margin.

The cumulative loss of man hours due to absenteeism has grown significantly. One-or two-day absences alone cost business 43.8 million man hours, or 1.5 per cent of potential capacity, in 1972. Absences of a week or longer cost more man hours—59.4 million.

Absenteeism unquestionably is a factor in the failure of American productivity to keep up recently with Japan and more advanced European countries, say President I.W. Abel of the United Steel Workers and industry's National Commission on Productivity.

Illness—genuine and feigned —and "goofing off" appear to be the big causes of absenteeism, Morgan Guaranty said. Work injuries have increased in industry and bad health conditions that might have been ignored in the past now cause an increase in legitimate absenteeism. But industrial physicians and psychologists say there is much feigned illness, and some blame that on liberal sick leave policies.

One company physician said pointedly that illness and accident absenteeism jumped 43 per cent at his firm in five years. He said the rise was too big for him to accept as genuine. The increase in absenteeism due to illness and accidents for all business in that period was only 15 per cent.

Some companies check feigned illness, but when a Massachusetts firm began making such checks, the shop union filed a complaint accusing the company of unlawfully practicing medicine and the company backed down.

In addition to illness and accidents, there's an "all other" category in absenteeism statistics that has been increasing steadily. This ranges from those who are off for a day to attend a funeral or a wedding to the fellow who just goes fishing and has his wife call the boss to say he won't be in— without giving any reason.

Grandson still trying to exonerate him

Booth doctor's name was Mud(d)

By GARY THOMAS

SAGINAW, Mich (UPI) — When people say "your name is mud" then you know your name has fallen into disrepute somewhere.

But when your name really is Mudd, and the expression originated because of your grandfather, then that particular phrase takes on extra dimensions — and an extra amount of pain.

For 50 of his 73 years, Dr. Richard D. Mudd of Saginaw has been working to clear the name of his ancestor, Dr. Samuel A. Mudd.

At 4 a.m. in the morning on April 15, 1865, Dr. Mudd was aroused from his bed in Maryland by a knock at the door. When he answered it, there stood a brooding figure, hobbling and obviously in pain. The stranger asked Mudd to fix his broken leg, and the physician complied. The man quickly left after the treatment.

Later that same day, Dr. Mudd read of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, and of the famous actor who had committed the deed. He also read that the actor had broken his leg on the stage after jumping from the President's box at Ford Theater.

It was then that Mudd knew he had set the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth.

"When he (Dr. Mudd) heard of the assassination later that day, he notified the authorities," said the present-day Dr. Mudd. "My grandfather was arrested and sentenced to life imprisonment by the military authorities."

And so "your name is mud" came into the English language out of the fever of those troubled times.

Dr. Samuel Mudd was imprisoned on Shark Island that same year. In 1867, yellow fever broke out and the prison doctor died in the epidemic. Mudd took over his duties and, as a result of letters written by both soldiers and prisoners, he was released by President Andrew Johnson in 1869. He died, a broken man, in 1883 at the age of 49.

The present Dr. Mudd has been lobbying in Congress and state legislatures for the past 50 years to clear his grandfather's name. He claims his ancestor did not even know who Booth was until later that day, when he notified authorities.

"I'm 73 years old now," said Dr. Mudd, who lives in Saginaw. "I just hope before I kick the bucket he can get this thing settled."

The present-day Dr. Mudd, a former flight surgeon of 36 years and a retired Air Force Colonel, began working 33 years ago on the exoneration project. He was instrumental in the production of the film,"The Prisoner of Shark Island," in which Warner Baxter played his grandfather.

Violence of 1960s could return

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor

HONG KONG (UPI) — Some diplomats specializing in Chinese affairs are reporting a revival of the Cultural Revolution that rocked the Communist giant in the late 1960s.

The diplomatic specialists say the movement undoubtedly has the full backing, if not the personal direction, of Mao Tsetung, the 80-year-old Communist party chairman.

The original Cultural Revolution was launched by Mao in November, 1965, as a campaign to eliminate "revisionism" within the government, population and Communist party.

The renewed campaign, centering around criticism of ancient Chinese philosopher Confucius, has increased considerably since the beginning of the year.

The debate has been broadened in what some analysts call a "Neo-Cultural Revolution," and has taken on a tinge of extreme nationalism, a characteristic of the original movement.

The increased Chinese dislike of foreign influences has been reflected in sharp criticism of Western music as well as in a more militant attitude on foreign policy.

Diplomats, newsmen and other foreigners in Peking also have reported a growing "coolness" on the part of Chinese officials they have been dealing with regularly.

The sources say the revived revolution is under control at the moment. They report no signs of public disorder.

But more large public meetings and rallies are being held to criticize Confucius and Lin Piao, the late defense minister who played a key role in the original movement and then lost his life in a 1971 attempt to oust Mao.

There are also signs of moves by contending political factions in China to manipulate the current movement. Some analysts say the political infighting reaches to the highest levels of the party.

If the political manipulation intensifies, there is a danger the current movement might take on some of the violent aspects of the Cultural Revolution in the 1960s.

In 1967, at one of the most violent stages of the Cultural Revolution, Mao said, "The present Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution is only the first; there will inevitably be many more in the future.

"Let no one in the party or among the people in our country think that everything will be all right after one or two great Cultural Revolutions, or three or four," he said.

Mideast issue

Another bombshell from Rev. Berrigan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rev. Daniel Berrigan, the Jesuit priest whose resistance to the Vietnam war led him to prison and stirred heated debate in the religious community, has done it again.

Berrigan didn't burn any draft records this time or talk about kidnaping high officials. Instead, he announced his support for the Arab cause in the Middle East and accused Israel of being the first "criminal Jewish community."

The antiwar priest's remarks to a gathering of Arab scholars were little noticed until American Report, newspaper of Clergy and Lay Concerned and one of the most widely read periodicals among religious liberals, reprinted his speech. Reaction came fast and furiously.

Berrigan's analysis — sometimes intemperate, sometimes not fully informed (he admitted being "non-expert" on the subject) — was challenged in American Report by Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress.

The flavor of the nondialogue can be captured in Berrigan's portrayal of himself as a "biblical Jew" and his accusation that Israel had switched from "settler ethos" to "imperial adventure." For his part, Hertzberg accused Berrigan of "old fashioned theological anti-Semitism."

Hertzberg, like Berrigan, was a longtime opponent of the Vietnam war and his angry response to the priest emphasized the depth of the split on the Middle East question.

The response to Berrigan was not simply a Catholic-Jewish difference. Berrigan was attacked from within his own religious community, most strongly by theologian Michale Novak.

Novak said Berrigan's criticism of Israel "shows exactly how the 'new left,' including the Catholic left, has veered around to join the ancient right."

Soon after Novak's criticism, the Rev. Donald Harrington of New York Community Church dropped out of ceremonies at which he was to present Berrigan the Gandhi Peace award, given by the "Promoting Enduring Peace" organization made up of about 1,200 clergy and lay people.

Harrington refused to participate in the ceremony because he said Berrigan's speech was "inflammatory."

The peace organization then decided to poll its board on whether to present the award anyway. Before the results were in, Berrigan announced he was rejecting the award, refusing to be "a bystander at a degrading consensus game," after he said the group had yielded to pressure.

It might be argued that the entire incident is a tempest in the religious left's teapot. Instead, it suggests that the peace movement like the American public at large has failed to come to grips with the complex situation in the Middle East.

Allan Solomonow, director of the Committee on New Alternatives in the Middle East, takes this position. Writing in American Report after Berrigan, Hertzberg and several letter-writers had expressed themselves, Solomonow said:

"If the Great Berrigan Debate on these pages has done nothing else, it has finally moved Jews and Christians to talk firmly and openly. Before, only whispers broke the silence."

Solomonow, a Jew, observed: "Whether Berrigan is right or wrong, the issues he raised are the legitimate, crucial human issues we must confront if we are to formulate any useful response to the needs of the peoples in the Middle East."

Wabash still a male refuge

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Wabash College, for 141 years an all-male campus, voted recently to remain as a men-only institution.

The board of trustees made the decision unanimously, supporting findings in a special report that it would be "fiscally unwise" to expand beyond 900 students which was necessary if it became co-educational.

Wabash is the only all-male college campus left in Indiana and one of the few across the country.

More hunters, but less game

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says more Texans apparently are going to hunt for deer and other game this season, but they are likely to find increased costs and less game.

Department information director Richard McCune says the meat shortage has got something to do with the greater influx of hunters this season.

"The guy who never goes hunting is talking about going this year," he said.

Sculptures by Auguste Rodin given museums, university

LOS ANGELES — Gerald Cantor, Beverly Hills investment banker, last week divided up among the county Museum of Art, Stanford University and the Museum of Modern Art in New York City his collection of August Rodin sculptures, termed by an art authority "the most important and comprehensive collection of the works of Rodin in private hands."

The county Museum of Art will receive 29 major Rodin bronzes, including "the Shade" and "Eve," originally created for his unfinished masterpiece, the "Gates of Hell," and the "Monument to Balzac," which will be installed in front of the Museum. Eleven of the larger works will be placed in an outdoor sculpture garden being designed around them.

Museum director Kenneth Donahue expressed his appreciation to Cantor for his generosity in "providing his community with a significant number of major works by one of the greatest sculptors who ever lived."

Stanford University, where one of the world's leading authorities on Rodin, Albert E. Elsen, is professor of art history, will receive 88 Rodin sculptures in bronze, plaster, clay and ceramic, as well as many drawings and personal memorabilia. The major portion of Cantor's reference library on the sculptor and the results of many years of research will accompany this gift.

The works designated for Standord span a period of more than 50 years, ranging from the 1863 "Head of Father Eymard" to the "Hand of Rodin with Torso," completed in 1917, just a few months before the sculptor's death. With this acquisition, Standord University will become a major research center on Rodin ranking with the Rodin Museum in Philadelphia.

A series of 10 bronze studies for the "Monument to Balzac," long a dominant feature of its sculpture garden, will be given to New York's Museum of Modern Art. Included are the "Bust of the Young Balzac" and the "Headless Naked Figure Study for Final Balzac" which evidence Rodin's meticulous attention to detail.

Cantor is an active member of the Business Committee for the Arts, a trustee of county Museum of Art, and benefactor of numerous other museums. He is a collector in a variety of fields, most particularly late 19th and early 20th Century painting and sculpture. He began his collection in 1946 when he acquired his first Rodin, called "The Hand of God" or "the Beginning." Twenty years later his collection of Rodin was termed "the largest and most important in private hands," by Mme. Cecile Goldscheider, then director of the Musee Rodin in Paris.

All of the gifts will be reunited in late 1976 or 1977 when they, together with other works still in Cantor's collection, will form a major Rodin exhibition which will open the new wing of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

RODIN SCULPTURE — "Monument to Balzac" by Auguste Rodin is one of 29 Rodin sculptures given to the County Museum of Art last week by Gerald Cantor. He also gave 88 Rodins to Stanford University and 10 to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. This statue will stand on the lower plaza of the County Museum at the main entrance.

AFRICAN SCULPTURE — "Mapakatsine," a black granite sculpture by John Takawira, is one of the works in an exhibition of contemporary African stone sculptures opening Monday at the Clark Humanities Museum, Scripps College. The work represents the mystical fusion of spirits. The exhibit runs through March 8. Admission is free.

Exhibition of African sculpture scheduled

CLAREMONT — An exhibition of conetmporary African stone sculpture will open Monday at the Clark Humanities Museum, Scripps College. It continues to March 8.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Southeast African Cultural Arts Foundation, may be viewed from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays freee of charge.

Focusing primarily on the Mashona tribal culture and the people of Malawi, the pieces range from Douglas Sande's "Ziwa Slave," a green serpentine sculpture portraying the bewilderment of a captive slave, to John Takawira's "Proud Mother," a black granite representation of a Mashona mother carrying her child in traditional fashion. The 11 artists represented in the show express their current beliefs and times as well as those of their ancestors who inhabited the great ruined Zimbabwe temple which legend links to King Solomon's mines.

According to legend, the Southeast Africans were great stone carvers until 300 years ago when Chief Chipunza ordered his crypt adorned with sculptures of the ancestral spirits and told his people to stop carving when he died as their abilities would enslave them to foreign bondage. For many years his command was obeyed until a developing renaissance of the Chinmasaka and Nyadundu schools of sculptors began producing artists worthy of their hertiage.

Several artists represented in the exhibit have been featured in African Arts magazine. Takawira, considered the group's spiritual leader, received his first internationl recognition in 1972 when his collection was exhibited and completely sold at the Rodin Museum in Paris. His younger brother, Lazarus Takawira, and his cousin, Patrick Makawira, also have works in the exhibit.

Edward Ndoro, founder of the Chinmasaka school, is represented in the display by his work, "Ama-Holi," a green-brown serpentine depiction of a captured boy slave who will never become a warrior. John Karikayi's "Dunhu," a green serpentine carving, represents the headman as he searches his tribal wisdom for a just decision.

Industrial output: you name it, we've got it

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

POMONA — They range from model airplanes to guided missiles, street sweepers and concrete manholes. They also include telephones, orchard heaters, survival equipment, truck bodies and air cleaners.

These are only a few of the varied products manufactured, processed or assembled in the nearly 500 industrial plants within the Pomona Valley.

The Pomona Chamber of Commerce recently printed a revised edition of the "Guide to Pomona Valley Industry" for an area extending from Pomona to Fontana and San Dimas and La Verne to Chino and Guasti.

These publications have assisted industrial development, labor force recruitment, sales and market research, said officials. The guides are available at the chamber office at $5 per copy.

Thousands of workers employed in industry supply something for nearly everybody.

The wheels of transportation are kept turning (or stopping) with locally produced brake shoes for trains, elevator parts, anti-collision beacons for airplanes, car wheels, truck bodies, vehicle batteries and axles. And should those wheels grind to a halt, mechanics can use hand tools forged in a local shop to make the necessary repairs.

Local products are visible in your favorite market. These range from ice cream and sherbet to hair sprays, eggs, oranges and lemons, food flavoring, napkins, candied fruits and syrups. You also carry them home as cans and bottles.

Planning a social affair? Then try the locally processed wines or brandies. And there are even olives to be served in drinks.

Families wanting to furnish their homes needn't leave the valley. They can find all kinds of furniture, mattresses and bed springs, cabinets, and also nameplates for their front doors.

Even your clothing is produced locally. These include men's sportswear, ladies coats, and knitwear. Steam irons are produced in Ontario to keep them wrinkle-free. And to accent a new dress, women can purchase locally made jewelry.

Agriculture still draws attention from the industrial plants. They produce poultry cages, orchard heaters and sprayers, milk cartons and horse corrals.

If your "bag" is concrete, then try the concrete manholes, concrete irrigation pipes, and concrete burial vaults.

One Pomona firm provides a "clean sweep" in many countries, cities and towns with its wide assortment of street sweepers.

And the children aren't forgotten. For them are vitamin premixes, a wide selection of toys, basketball goals, playground equipment, and brick dust for ball diamonds.

Even dad's needs are met. He is supplied with fishing gear, fiberglass boats, boat and travel trailers, flight helmets, motor homes, outdoor barbecue pits, gun drills, paper for his newspaper and building blocks.

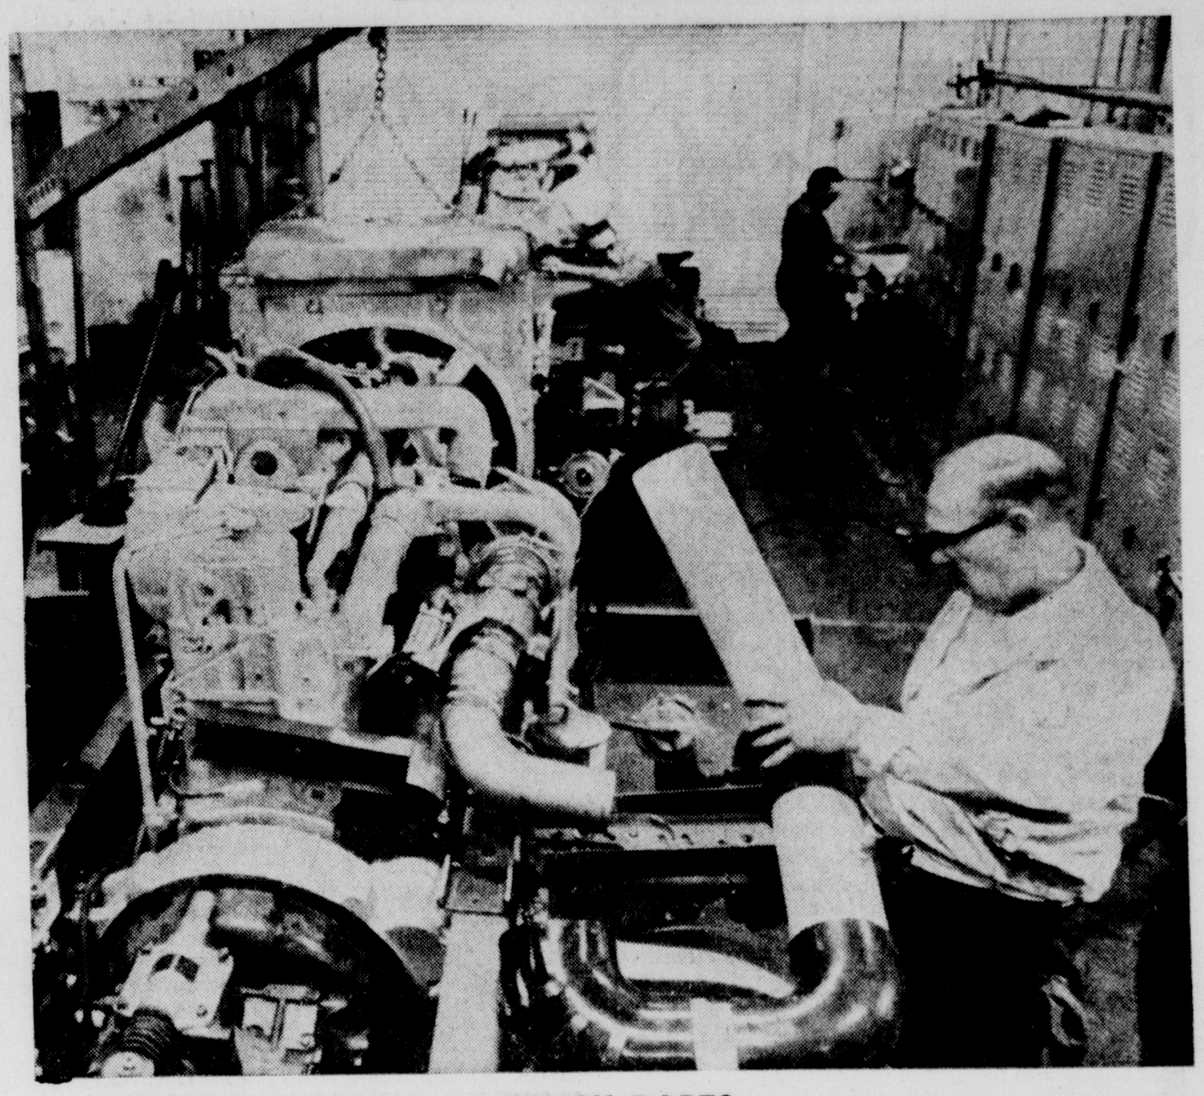
The sizes of area plants range from those hiring only a few workers to "giants" such as General Dynamics, Kaiser Steel, Vinnell Corp., General Electric and the Lockheed Aircraft Service Co. Their payrolls each exceed 1,000 employees.

The bulk, however, falls within the range of less than 50 workers. They include 195 firms with 10 or less employes and 171 with 11 to 49 workers.

Other categories include: 500 to 999 workers, seven firms; 250 to 499, 10 firms, 100 to 249, 39 firms; and 50 to 99, 48 firms.

According to the chamber guide, Pomona has the most industrial plants with 118. Guasti has the lowest with two.

Plants in other communities are Ontario, 91; Fontana, 72; Upland, 47; Cucamonga, 34; San Dimas, 30; La Verne, 24; Montclair, 22; Chino, 17; Claremont, 13; and Etiwanda, 4.



TRUCK PARTS

HAIR SPRAY

Action Line

To ask help in solving problems with which you have been unsuccessful, write to Action Line, The Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766. Dog finally found dead and owner is unhappy

My dog got out of my fenced yard one morning when my wife left for work.

I followed him on foot while it was still dark. When I lost him, I went back home and got my car. It was now daylight. I drove up every street and alley in the area but was unable to find him.

At about 8:30 a.m. I found the Humane Society truck parked at Fourth Street and San Dimas Avenue. I waited for the driver to come back and told him about my dog being lost.

He said from the description it was the dog he had been chasing in a field. I drove to that area but was unable to find him.

That afternoon I inquired at the dog pound. The people there had no record of him. When I called back at 5 p.m. there was still no record of my dog.

The next morning I went to the dog pound again without results. When I went back after 4:30 p.m. I found the same truck and driver I saw the day before at Fourth and San Dimas.

I was told that my dog had been found dead, apparently killed by a motorist. I was shown the dog. There were no signs of his having been hit. I picked him up and took his harness off. I was informed that I would have to pay $5 for disposal of the remains. I paid the $5.

This dog was raised by me from a small pup. He was very gentle and lovable. Every time heretofore that he got out of the yard, he returned to the gate about 15 minutes later.

I would like to know the truth about why it was necessary to chase my dog and just how he met his death. — G. B., San Dimas.

Humane Officer Al Gallagher's report differed from yours in ways too many to repeat completely.

One of the things he said was that when the dog was discovered dead, he tried to locate you but was unable to do so.

Bruce Richards, the Humane Society's executive director, states that you had the opportunity to request an autopsy to establish cause of death. He said also that you could have taken the dog and disposed of it yourself.

"The Humane Society is not a fully tax-supported organization and we have to pay the cost of disposal of dead animals," Richards said. "Therefore, we set a $5 fee for animal disposal."

He added that quite often the pet owner cannot afford the disposal fee and disposal is done without charge with the hope that the pet owner will pay at a later date.

"Pet owners and the Humane Society would not have to experience the emotional suffering that is generated over pets that have been killed on our streets," said Richards, "if owners would not allow their pets to run at large throughout the neighborhood.

"When a pet is killed, the owner is ready to blame anyone but himself. On the East Coast, a pet owner whose pet is killed by any type of moving vehicle may be charged with cruelty to animals for allowing the pet to be on the street, thereby exposing it to dangerous conditions."

FOLLOW-UP:

A reader telephoned to say that Mensa, the name of the society for highly intelligent people, means "stupid."

It is true that the word "mensa" is used in the Spanish language to refer to someone of extremely low mentality.

In Latin, however, the word means "a table" and is used by the superbrains to indicate that their association is a round table society where no one has special precedence.

Passers-by aid in kitten rescue

LA VERNE — Rescuing kittens from trees can't be compared to rescuing maidens from dragons, but it does not go unnoticed in the eyes of Charlotte Mae Trostle of 1983 Bonita Ave.

Her kitten, Panda, was frighened by a neighbor's dog and escaped up a parkway tree. It stayed there all day long, afraid to come down.

Then along came Progress-Bulletin carrier Junior Quintenro, 10, of 429 W. 3rd St., La Verne, a fifth grader at Ekstrand school. Junior and his friend, Albert Aviles, 13, saw Mrs. Trostle standing beneath the tree, talking to Panda.

Businesslike, Junior went on and delivered the rest of his route, then returned with Albert.

The parkway trees along Bonita are tall, with many limbs. Panda, by this time, was up high and out on a limb.

Junior and Albert were working with a ladder, and a blanket and a broom, when along came two men from La Verne College. According to Mrs. Trostle, the men moved the ladder out under the limbs. Junior climbed up, gently picked up the frightened kitten and climbed down.

"I just want everyone to know that good boys are appreciated," said Mrs. Trostle.

Claremont experiment to muffle job hazard

Firemen fight hearing loss with radio headsets

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Local firemen are trying something different in an effort to cut down on an occupational hazard—hearing damage caused by continuous exposure to noise of the air horn, siren, and engine as they respond to fire alarms.

Fire Chief Robert A. Lee has the firefighters wearing radio headsets, which keep them alerted to the current situation but muffle the damaging decibels of their immediate surroundings.

Lee, who wears a hearing aid, explained that the idea of firemen wearing some type of ear muff started when the department received evidence of great hearing damage over a period of time.

He said that the headsets bring the sounds down to an acceptable level. He called the new arrangement awkward, because the fireman cannot wear their helmets while they have the sets on.

Lee recalled that sound-deadening ear protectors were tried, but the firemen couldn't hear anything.

Lee believes Claremont is the first fire department in the Pomona Valley to try the headset approach.

Planning Director Sharon Hightower tested the equipment with the city's new noise meter by having the engine going at 45 miles per hour, the air horn blaring and the siren wailing. She received a reading of 111 decibels on the A scale.

Mrs. Hightower said the combination of noises compared with a jet taking off at 100 feet, a rock and roll band, or a riveting machine.

She explained the ambient noise level in the northern part of Claremont during the day is 45 decibels, and 25 to 30 decibels at night. She said that every rise of 10 decibels means a 100 per cent increase in noise.

A QUIETER RIDE

Claremont firemen Bob Bringhurst and R. A. Hood show off new radio headsets being worn by local firefighters when they respond to alarms. The headsets were ordered by Chief Robert A. Lee after evidence showed firemen's hearing is impaired after exposure over a long period of time to the roar of the engine, the wail of the siren and the blaring of the air horn.

Opinion

Previewing the years of hunger

It now appears likely that unless a miracle is in the offing, within the next one to two years we shall see a devastating worldwide food crisis in which millions more will be on the brink of starvation.

There are today thirty underdeveloped countries in the world — with 900 million citizens — whose economies are so shaky, food supplies so marginal and export prospects so dim that the rising costs of petroleum and the growing scarcity of fertilizer in the year ahead will cut back most greviously on their ability to grow the food they require to live.

In the past, such crises would have been ameliorated by massive increases in American aid. But that seems less likely today, in a U.S. suffering from inflation, shortages, unemployment and a cynicism as to the effectiveness of overseas assistance.

In any event, the cumulative effect of these production cutbacks could very well be a worldwide food shortage so great there will not be sufficient wheat and rice to bridge the gap at any price.

One example, India, will suffice to point up the problem of this group whose plight has been studied at length by the Overseas Development Council.

India will have to spend a billion dollars more this year for its petroleum and approximately $500 million more for imported food, if it can be bought — a cool $1.5 billion added to its import bill. It appears that India may be forced to cut fertilizer imports by half a million tons, which could mean a 5 million ton slump in grain output next season. Japan has been forced by her own energy shortage to slash fertilizer production 25 per cent, which means a disproportionately larger slash in exports. The East European countries have cut exports sharply. So have other important producers. In a recent Indian attempt to purchase, there were no bidders — at any price.

U.S. assistance to India has been on the way out for some time, though there is still a small amount of food aid. Indian credit is shaky.

If prices remain at the level set on December 22, 1973, the non-oil-exporting developing countries will need to pay some $15 billion for oil imports in 1974, compared with $5.2 billion in 1973 and $3.7 billion in 1972. They will face import bills for food and fertilizer imports $5 billion greater in the crop year 1973-74. (Increased costs for wheat imports alone are estimated at well above $3 billion). The combined one year price increases are equivalent to nearly five times the net U.S. development assistance in 1972, and almost double the total development assistance from industrial countries that year.

The figures above are for all developing countries which are not oil exporters. The 30 hardest hit of the poor nations, mostly in tropical Africa, South Asia and in the central American-Caribbean area, including Chile, Uruguay and possibly the Phillippines, will find their fuel, food and fertilizer import bills up by $3 billion. They face other losses. Private investment is expected to decrease.

The difficulties these underdeveloped countries face will ripple outward. Few are major importers from the United States, Western Europe or Japan; but as a group they are a significant factor in what we sell abroad. Their plight, and reduced purchases, will add to the pressures for a worldwide and U.S. recession, or depression.

Ironically, India, the Philippines and Bangladesh probably could double their grain production in less than a decade with greatly increased research, more irrigation and fertilizer and widely available farm credit, according to a team working with James P. Grant of the ODC which has been singularly accurate in past predictions regarding the underdeveloped sections of the world. Sri Lanka and Nepal have considerable hydroelectric potential. India has large coal reserves. Considerable possibilities exist in a considerable number of the unfortunate thirty nations dealt with here.

'Inoperative' ads

The energy industry is currently giving Americans a cram course in conservation.

On television especially, pretty ladies tell motorists how to get the most out of a gallon of gasoline, homeowners how to save heating gas or oil, housewives how to use a stove or washing machine economically.

It's all pitched to the understanding of a 12-year-old — but that's probably all right since it is said that this is about the intelligence level of the average person. And certainly Americans have never before had to worry about where their next gallon or cubic foot or kilowatt of energy was coming from.

The trouble is that these pitchmen are the same crew who not so long ago were urging Americans to use more of everything as if there were no tomorrow, pushing such hardly essential items — for example — as decorative outdoor gas lights.

Energy industry spokesmen remind us that they warned the nation about a coming energy shortage, and it is on the record that they did.

They just forgot to notify their advertising departments until lately.

JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN

The case of the drunken diplomat

WASHINGTON — We are beginning to feel that the Nixon Administration has nothing to do but investigate us. Once again, we have caught the President's heavy-handed Keystone Kops grabbing our personal phone records and snooping into our private lives in an attempt to put a stop to stories that embarrass the White House.

This time, his slippery sleuths made off with five different batches of our toll calls so they could check out the numbers and find out who we've been speaking with.

As so often happens when a corrupt government tramples on private rights, the FBI men unleashed on us by the Administration badly wronged the innocents. One of those whose records were seized committed the unpardonable sin of bearing the same name as one of our reporters.

With no check whatsoever, the FBI grabbed his records along with those of almost everyone on our staff. They even investigated the 18-year-old son of one of our newsmen.

One would think all this unconstitutional folderol had to do with a life-and-death matter of national security. Quite the contrary. The hordes of FBI men were directed to sniff out the source of a humorous story about the drunken hijinks of a Nixon appointee in Africa.

The errant diplomat was Bert Tollefson, a former corn lobbyist, honored for his loyalty to the Republican party with the top foreign aid job in Kenya. He had been there but a few weeks when then-Vice President Agnew stopped by for an official visit and traveled with his entourage to a fancy jungle lodge called "Treetops."

Tollefson was not invited to the Vice President's party, but he went anyhow. The raucous scene he created still has the striped-pants set in a twitter.

The American ambassador to Kenya, Robinson McIlvaine, described the incident in a series of blistering, "eyes only" wires to Tollefson's boss, Dr. John Hannah, then head of the Agency for International Development.

"I regret to inform you," Ambassador McIlvaine cabled, "that Bert Tollefson blotted his copy book so badly during the Vice President's visit (that) you may be hearing from the Vice President directly on the matter.

"The problem started with Bert's well-known pushiness and general lack of sensitivity and culminated in his getting sloshed at Treetops, making passes at the Vice President's secretary and trying to drag her down the steps to meet an elephant at ground level . . ."

Tollefson capped his performance, the ambassador continued, by talking a native Kenyan out of a room at the lodge, oversleeping the next morning, then making off with "the remaining Secret Service car" leaving the government agents "stranded and furious."

Our associate Joseph Spear reached AID chief Hannah, whose main concern was not how Tollefson had shamed the U.S. in Africa, but how Spear had gotten a cable which had come to him "highly restricted, hand-carried and sealed." Spear, of course, declined to reveal his sources.

The outraged Hannah forthwith ordered all AID photocopiers moved to "secured areas" where they could be guarded all day and made "inoperable . . . during non-working hours."

Not content with these steps, the Administration ordered the FBI to invade the State Department to administer lie detector tests, grill distinguished officials and generally terrify the timid.

Still unsuccessful in finding who tattled on Tollefson, the government ordered a federal grand jury to issue subpoenas for all phone toll calls made from our office and from the homes of our reporters during the entire month of July 1971.

The Bell System, whom we — not the White House — pay for our costly long distance charges, slipped the FBI all our records without a whimper. By the time Ma Bell had stopped gossiping away our secrets to the FBI, the Administration had the toll records for our office, Spear, Brit Hume, Les Whitten, and Whitten's 18-year-old son, Les Whitten III.

They also seized the records of a Kensington, Md., technical writer named Charles Elliott. His crime, it seems, was to carry the same name as an intrepid young reporter then on our staff, Chuck Elliott.

The Administration's goof on Charles Elliott of Kensington was compounded because Chuck Elliott, our reporter, was already well known to the FBI. He was the man we dispatched to sort through J. Edgar Hoover's garbage, as Hoover's agents had done so often to those he investigated.

Despite their dossier on Chuck, the G-men still got the wrong Elliott.

With these new revelations, at last we are willing to believe that the White House "plumbers" reflected the President's views when they posted our name on a wall board in their basement bunker as their Press Enemy Number One.

After all, the Nixon Administration has used lie detectors, tapped phones, invoked grand juries, set up stake-outs, and followed us in unmarked cars to try to inhibit our reporting. They arrested Les Whitten on a phony charge of possessing stolen Indian documents — a charge later thrown out by a grand jury and the Justice Department.

They used that case as a pretext for previously seizing all our toll records and harassing our callers. They refused to give the records up until forced to by Judge John J. Sirica. Indeed, this time, as far as we can determine, the FBI still has copies of our records in the Case of the Drunken Diplomat.

FOOTNOTE: Through the hard work of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, we, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Knight Newspapers learned of the seizure of our toll bills. In defense of the FBI, however, they took the dirty case only when ordered to and they frankly admitted to us the goof in the Elliott seizure. This is heartening evidence that the new FBI director, Clarence Kelley, means what he says about running a more open shop.

Barbs

The food price rise has come home to the kids. Pizza has gone up 5c a slice.

Please your girl friend with, so to speak, pearls beyond price: give her a necklace of breakfast sausages.

Gossip for today

The best brains in government are now working overtime to help solve this country's ills.

As if aluminum one cent pieces weren't enough to bolster our precarious financial position, the Treasury Department is also considering bringing back the $2 bill.

To help curtail inflation, the Cost of Living Council has asked the fertilizer producers to hold down their prices.

In another effort to help stem rising prices, a Chicago alderman has introduced a resolution which would prohibit shops in that city from offering topless shoe shines or manicures for $11.

As a result of all that expert activity and advice, it's little wonder that a lot of folks are beginning to think it would probably be a lot easier to suffer from the diseases rather than having to put up with the cures.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Lawyer forces FEO to abide by law

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A young, determined state attorney general has showed there is a way to overcome at least some of the appalling lack of perception shown by the Federal Energy Office — force the agency to abide by the law.

Arkansas' Jim Guy Tucker, Jr., at 30 the youngest attorney general in the nation, came to Washington two weeks ago armed with a civil suit aimed at providing relief for several million rural users of propane and butane, or liquified petroleum gas (LPG).

Tucker took FEO to the court house door on two important counts . . .

. . .FEO was not obeying amended provisions of the 1970 Economic Stabilization Act by allowing public interests to be heard at formal hearings. (FEO officials admitted to Tucker that prices for LPG were allowed to skyrocket, even though no economic impact studies had been conducted.)

. . . In direct contradiction to the 1973 Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act, FEO ruled that refiners could pass on increased costs of other products through higher prices for LPG.

Faced with the strength of Tucker's proposed brief, which one local attorney said was "excellently written," FEO caved-in and granted its first formal hearing to Tucker.

Out of that meeting has come the first roll-back of petroleum prices FEO has ordered. Tucker was told a 30 per cent reduction of new propane prices would be forthcoming. It wasn't all the attorney general had hoped for, but it was a "meaningful first step."

In his own state is 17.1-per cent of the American poultry industry. Over 70 per cent of Arkansas' chicken ranchers use LPG to heat incubators. In a razor-thin profit industry like chickens, LPG costs increases of up to 500-per cent threatened economic catastrophe.

Across the nation, 49 per cent of a total 2.9 million farms use LPG in various capacities. Projecting the difficulties of Arkansas poultry raisers leaves the staggering impression that without the roll back, food prices in the very near future would soar to intolerable levels, even worse than now.

Further, not all LPG is used for agricultural purposes. Several million families, living on fixed incomes in rural areas, were being forced to pay as much as 40 per cent of a minimal subsistance just for heating and cooking fuel.

There is no way to calculate the anxiety Tucker's action has relieved for those people.

Of course, the roll back on propane does not solve all the problem. But it is action taken where FEO refused to take action before.

Coming now are investigations into possible criminal price fixing by LPG stockpilers. This is another area where FEO has dallied.

Rep. Clem McSpadden (D-Okla.) warned last spring that stockpilers were about to make a killing at public expense. FEO blithely ignored the congressman, and even helped stockpilers and market speculators by not allowing the six major oil company suppliers to bid competitively on the open market. (In fairness to FEO, the Cost of Living Council was largely responsible for this, holding major companies to unrealistic price guidelines.)

But one state official has shown the way to get action from the indurate federal policy-makers. Martin Lobel, the local attorney who aided Tucker, said the Arkansan was "mad as hell" at FEO refusals to grant a hearing. He successfully alled the federal bluff with a hand as pat as the law could ake it.

Business license fees in Claremont

Councilman pushes for college tax

CLAREMONT — City Councilman Frank Hungerford thinks the six Claremont Colleges should pay a business license tax.

But he could not generate any support from fellow councilmen when he asked, "How can we tax the nonprofit rest homes per bed and not the colleges?"

Nonprofit retirement homes, rest homes, infirmaries or hospitals are charged $15 a year for each bed space. Rest homes operated for a profit pay $17 a year for each bed space.

"It doesn't seem equitable to me that the colleges are not paying any business license tax," the councilman commented Tuesday before being appointed to a council subcommittee with Gene Block to meet with Chamber of Commerce officials who recommended a more stringent enforcement of the business licenses.

Pete Johnston, representing College Chevrolet, told the council that he doesn't think the city knows how much "slippage" there is among businessmen who get away without paying any business license at all.

Johnston took exception to the recommended hikes in fee percentages based on gross receipts, and said that a license is nothing more than a permit to do business.

He noted there are 1,100 business licenses in Claremont, and that the recommended hike from 5 cents per $1,000 in gross receipts to 20 cents per $1,000 would cost the auto firm a 200 per cent increase, from $200 to $800 a year.

Johnston said that a license tax is not an indication of profitability and ability to pay. "I don't think it is the fairest basis," he commented.

When Hungerford attacked the fact of the colleges not paying a business license fee, Mulrooney explained that the colleges have their own security force and pay the city $16,000 a year for fire protection.

Mulrooney said that the colleges collect a bed tax when the colleges hold conferences on their campuses.

"If you counted all the beds in the colleges, you would come up with all the money you need," Hungerford said.

Mulrooney cautioned the council that the "march of time is catching up with the council. The annual business licenses will be mailed out in April with or without any adjustments."

Mayor Bertye Smith said she feels the gross receipts increase is the best way to go. Block agreed, and added that the city can't audit every firm's books for profitability.

He said that part of the time problem is that the Chamber of Commerce took five months to come up with a recommendation.

DMV warning

Wrong address? no gas coupons for you

SACRAMENTO — If gasoline is rationed, some one million California residents whose addresses are not up to date in the Department of Motor Vehicles computer may not receive their coupons.

State director of DMV Robert Cozens said that from 10 to 20 per cent of California's 12.6 million drivers have incorrect addresses on their license records.

"If any address is incorrect," said Cozens, "ration documents will be returned to the department."

Those with changes of address to report should do it immediately. Cozens advised. Change of address forms are available at all DMV offices.

One person can fill out forms for all members of the family who live at the same address. He will have to know the driver's license number of each person whose address is to be changed.

W-2 forms must be with tax return

Taxpayers must remember to attach a copy of all their W-2 forms to the face of state income tax returns, says Martin Huff, executive officer of the Franchise Tax Board.

"Since state income tax is withheld from wages, taxpayers should attach a copy of their W-2 to the returns to receive credit for amounts withheld," Huff said. Many are failing to attach the forms this year, he added.

Local taxpayers also are urged to verify that their social security number is correct, sign the return, and use the label included with forms mailed to residents earlier in the year.

Refunds will be issued promptly, Huff said, if taxpayers file early and follow his suggestions. Returns should be mailed to Franchise Tax Board, P. O. Box 13-540, Sacramento, 95813.

Oil companies, major banks linked

By DONALD R. FINLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study done by a Washington research firm shows a widespread pattern of interlocking directorships between oil companies and major banks and financial institutions that its authors claim reduces competition in the oil industry.

Although federal antitrust law prohibits the same person from sitting on the boards of directors of firms in direct competition with each other, the study revealed numerous cases of directors of competing oil companies serving together on the boards of the nation's largest banks, insurance companies and investment firms.

These overlapping directorships permit a "harmonizing" of actions among the different oil companies and a reduction of competition between them, the report said.

The study was done by Stanley H. Ruttenberg & Associates for a maritime union, the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association (MEBA). Ruttenberg was federal manpower administrator in the Kennedy administration and an assistant labor secretary in the Johnson administration.

Ruttenberg said he collected names of directors of the companies and banks involved from Standard and Poor's Directory of Corporation Directors and Executives through September of 1972, and used a computer to match them up to show interlocks.

"A network of 14 banks was tied to 18 of the largest oil companies," the report said.

The Ruttenberg study showed that Bank of America shared directors with three of the 18 oil firms: Standard of California, Union Oil and Getty Oil.

Others included: Bankers Trust with Mobil and Continental Oil; Chase Manhattan Bank with Standard Oil of Indiana, Atlantic Richfield, Diamond Shamrock and Exxon; Chemical Bank with Mobil, Texaco, Amerada Hess and Exxon; Continental Bank of Illinois with Standard Oil of Indiana, Texaco, Universal Oil Products and Continental Oil; Crocker National Bank with Standard Oil of California and First Boston Bank with Commonwealth Oil.

Others were: First Chicago Bank with Atlantic Richfield; First National City Bank with Shell Oil, Phillips Petroleum and Mobil; Manufacturers Hanover Trust with Cities Service; Mellon National Bank with Diamond Shamrock and Gulf Oil; Morgan Guaranty with Exxon, Continental Oil, Cities Service and Atlantic Richfield; Security Pacific Bank with Getty Oil and Kerr-McGhee; and Western Bancorporation with Union Oil and Standard Oil of California.

For Mineral Heritage

Stamps go diamond

By GUSTAV DETJEN, JR.

Designs for four 10-cent postage stamps, representing new treatment of the classic square format were announced by the U.S. Postal Service in Tucson, Artizans. The set is to be issued to commemorate America's Mineral eritage at the 20th annual Tucson Gem and Mineral show.

By rotating the format of the stamps 45 degrees, designer Leonard Buckley achieved nearly diamond shape for the stamps. The stamps will be released June 13 at the National Gem and Mineral Show in Lincoln, Neb. The show is also the occasion for meetings of the Mineralogical Society of America, the Mineral Museums Advisory Council and the Friends of Mineralogy.

They will be printed in eight inks. There will be 48 stamps to a pane and one plate number. First day cancellation requests should be sent to "Mineral Heritage Staps, Postmaster, Lincoln, NE 68501" with 40 cents for eachblock of four. Requests for single 10-cent stamps should include information as to the gem required. It should be indicated in the upper right hand corner of the cover.

On Jan. 24 the Post Offices of the Cook Islands placed on sale five multi-colored stamps, as well as a souvenir sheet, to commemorate the 10th British Commonwealth Games at Christ-church, New Zealand. Nine sports are included in these games and the Cook Island issue symbolizes five of these sports which are popular in the Cook Islands:

1 cent — Swimming and diving; 3 cents — weight lifting; 5 cents — Track and field; 1-cent — boxing; 30 cents — cycling.

A 50-cent value is in souvenir sheet form and shows the traditional international symbol of sports, the Discobolus Statue, against the brightly colored Tenth Commonwealth Games symbol.

On Dec. 4 East Germany issued a set of six stamps featuring motives of the popular Russian story "At the Pike's Bisding." The six value are printed on a miniature sheet. Information on this issue and future ones available from Buckexport, Leninstrasse 16, DDR, 701-Leipzig, East Germany.

Austria commemorated the birth of the poet Hugo von Hofmannsthal on Jan. 25 with a 4 Schilling stamp. He was born in 1874 and died in 1929, but already at the age of 16 published his first poem and then wrote dramas. When he was only 19, he scored his first, still lasting success with a one-act play "The Fool and the Death." He wrote a great number of plays, stories, poems, for which he became famous.

Collectors are invited to take part in the 10th annual philatelic poll sponsodel by the Czechoslovakia newspaper Mlada Fronta. The questions are:

a) Which Czechoslovakian stamp of 1973 do you like best, as far as the design is concerned?

b) Which stamp do you like best as far as the artistic level of engraving is concerned.

Send answers to Mlada Fronta, Philatelic Poll, Panska 8, 111 22 Prague 1, Czechoslovakia. Enclose addressed envelope and two International Reply Coupons for a beautiful engraving.

Northwest, Texas

The Californians are coming

SACRAMENTO, California (UPI) — Watch out Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho and Texas for it is your clean air, wide open spaces and fresh water that departing Californians have their eyes on.

Figures from major moving companies indicate that the Northwest and Texas are a favorite refuse for discontent. Golden State residents who are sick of crowded freeways, smog and eye irritation.

One large moving company figures that nearly one-third of the 15,895 families it moved from California went to the Northwest or Texas.

Another figures that 5.3 per cent of all its trucks dispatched from Northern California end up in Oregon, while a combined 9.5 per cent have a destination of Nevada, Idaho and Washington. These figures take on significance when it is noted that only 30 per cent of its trucks leave the state.

"We just have to find somewhere that has a slower pace," a couple recently told Allied Van Lines mover Wes Hamilton. "Maybe the money won't be as good as it is in California, but you have to sacrifice one thing for another."

Hamilton has the feeling that more and more people are leaving the heavily populated areas of California to "head for the country."

"They just want to slow the pace down a little," he said.

For example, in Idaho it is not an unfamiliar sight to see a car toting a bumper sticker saying "Don't Californicate Idaho." The state's largest newspaper—The Idaho Statesman—carries occasional letters from residents concerned about the invasion.

It is felt by some population experts that when a family decides to move for environmental reasons it tends to leave the state altogether, rather than just migrating within it. There are also the hopes for lower taxes and decreasing living expenses.

Walter Hollomann, a member of California's Population Research Unit, said it is impossible to determine just how many people are moving out of the state in a given month or year.

He said the "net migration" figure for the state has started to increase again.

"The decline in annual net migration which began in 1964 and continued with but a single year's interruption to 1971 reflected either a decreasing number arriving, an increasing number departing or both," he said.

Although some indications may point to a greater number leaving California, population experts predict the state will have 24.3 million by 1985 and 29.2 million by the year 2000.

"I feel there is probably an increase in the outflow of trucks from California," said Ralph Shivers, a vice president of U-Haul.

Shivers said figures for the first seven months of 1973 show 3.2 per cent of all trucks leaving Northern California end up in Washington, 5.3 per cent in Oregon and 3.3 per cent in Nevada. Only a total of 30 per cent of its trucks leave the state.

Texas receives about 2.5 per cent of the trucks out of Northern California and Idaho .6.

Bant D. Zehren, a research analyst in Allied Van Lines' Chicago office, said out of total of 15,895 families moved by the company out of California during 1973, 1,046 went to Washington. Another 1,521 went to Texas, while 736 settled down in Oregon.

Nevada received 492 families while Idaho was on the other end of 236 moves, the company said.

A 1972 study by the company revealed that for every eight families moving into the state, six were leaving.

Cut your own taxes

Special tax benefits for smart investors

By RAY DE CRANE

Most people make investments in real estate or in stocks and bonds in order to provide a better life for themselves after retirement.

Those who plan their moves wisely with the tax consequences in mind will have far more to show for their efforts than those who ignore the tax collector.

There are risks involved in every investment. Your money may be doubled; it might also be lost.

Tax laws take these risks into consideration. But woe to the person who is unaware of the special tax benefits on investments or who refuses to use them to his own advantage.

For example: Sell some stock you have owned for six months at a handsome profit and only one-half of the profit is subject to tax. If you sell the same stock within six months of purchase, the entire gain is taxable.

The same logic now applies to losses. If you take a short-term loss, that is sell something at a loss within six months of the purchase date, the entire loss is deductible.

But if you sell the same investment at a loss and the sale occurs after you have held it for at least six months and one day, your long-term loss is worth only 50 cents on the dollar. Only one-half of your loss is deductible.

From this a simple conclusion can be formed: Make all your gains long-term, so that only one-half is taxable; make all your losses short-term, so that they can be fully deductible.

This is admittedly an oversimplification which wuld apply only if you had one transaction in the year — either a gain or a loss. It nevertheless points out the workings of the tax laws on investments.

While tax consequences should never be the sole determination of when to sell, it still has to be a major consideration.

In the next installment it will be pointed out what to do when you have several transactions — both of the short-term and long-term variety during the course of the year — and what can and should be done about claiming losses.

Coach suggests boxers judge own winner

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Both coaches and fighters have been griping about "home town" decisions in the California Collegiate Boxing Conference, and Nevada-Reno coach Jimmie Olivas thinks he has the solution.

He suggests letting the boxers judge their own fights.

"When the fight ends, both would go over to the head judge and say whether they won or lost. A fighter would be embarrassed if he lost and said he won. He'd get booed out of there," Olivas said.

"Every kid knows whether he won or lost unless it is real close.

Erma Bombeck

Her husband can't buy it

I can't imagine why people laugh when I tell them I was hit by a garbage truck.

Believe me, there is nothing humorous about being in an ancient German compact car and being chased all over the street by a Mack truck, laden with orange peeling and coffee grounds!

And I told my husband so, when I returned the car to him minus two fenders, two headlights and a trunk lid. "This car is Hitler's Revenge and you may have it," I said. "We just don't seem to communicate."

"If I've todl you once I've told you a hundred times," he said, "the car doesn't understand a word of English. It responds only to German commands."

"I tried that," I said. "I saw this truck begin to back up and I said, "Das ist ein garbage truck, lunkhead, let's get out of here."

"What happened?"

"Nothing happened. It just sat there like a stick until the truck hit us. I tried blasting the horn and it peep-peeped like it was apologizing. Incidentally, the horn broke off in my hand. It's in the glove compartment."

"Then what happened?"

"I ran out of German. That's what happened. The truck still didn't know I was back there and started at me again. I tried every German word I know: glockenspiel, pumpernickel, Marlene Dietrich. I even sang a chorus of Oh Tannenbaum. That is when the second impact hit. That did it! I whacked it on the instrument panel and said, 'Du bist ein cheapie, that's what you are. One more hit and we're going to look like ein crock of sauerkraut. Just about that time, the driver got out of his truck and said, very surprised, 'I thought I hit a bump in the road.' How's that for humiliation!"

"Don't worry. I think we can fix her up."

"Fix her!" I shouted. "You wouldn't dare. Not after what she's put me through. Just think of the merits of a big car. No more shimmying into the seat like a snake into a sleeping bag. No more mud goggles on rainy days. No more massaging your cold feet and shifting gears at the same time. Think what it would be like to pass cars on a hill. And to ride with your legs outstretched, instead of in a fetal position? Just imagine. We could talk to it in English. No more having to say—by the way, what is it you say when you want the car to go in reverse?"

"Mutter, Bitte," he said.

"Which means?" I signed wearily.

"Mother, may I?"

It figured.

Divorce, Italian style, could break up the nation

ROME (UPI) — Contrary to some predictions, divorce has not broken up the Italian family. But it may still break up Italy.

Barring an unlikely last minute compromise in parliament, Italians must go to the polls one Sunday between April 21 and June 9 to vote on a Roman Catholic demand for repeal of Italy's three-year-old divorce law.

Whichever way the vote goes, the campaign may push Italy very close to civil war unless everyone keeps calm.

In the antidivorce forefront are Pope Paul VI, the neofascist Italian Social Movement (MSI) and Premier Mariano Rumor's Christian Democrats, Italy's dominant party for the past 30 years.

Supporting divorce are all of the Christian Democrats' past and present coalition partners plus the powerful Communists and smaller groups of the left.

Explosive issue

Religious overtones make the issue explosive in Italy, a country where religious implications of minor laws about nursery schools were enough to cause two government crises in the past 10 years.

The Vatican, which has come to accept civil divorce as a disagreeable fact of life in most countries, has staked its prestige against it in Italy. Lay Catholic civic leader have attacked it in the same category as pornography.

Divorce advocates have struck back in kind, accusing the Vatican of trying to restore the temporal power of the Popes, lost since 1870.

Although Rumor's coalition government of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans has proclaimed itself neutral in the dispute, politicians in both camps feel the coalition could hardly stand the strain of a public dispute among its members.

"White widows"

The man who started it all is Loris Fortuna, a self-taught Socialist lawyer, parliament member and amateur folk singer who became a champion of divorce to ease the plight of "white widows" —wives abandoned by their emigrant husbands —in his impoverished native province of Friuli.

When Fortuna introduced his bill in parliament Oct. 1, 1965, it looked like just another in a century-long series of unsuccessful attempts to bring back divorce, abolished in Italy after the fall of Napoleon in 1815.

The Christian Democrats used their parliamentary power and experience to pigeonhole the measure in committee for years. When it eventually came up for floor debate in 1970, Pope Paul led an attack on it, arguing divorce would violate a clause of the 1929 concordat between the Vatican and Italy which gave church courts jurisdiction over state-recognized religious marriages.

Supporters and enemies of divorce traded insults in a marathon Chamber of Deputies debate that went on nonstop for one week. The vote came before dawn Dec. 1, 1970. It was 319-286 in favor of divorce.

The law provides for divorce in cases of long imprisonment, sex crimes against spouses or children, insanity, separations for periods between five and seven years and cases where an Italian marries a foreigner who then obtains a divorce or annulment abroad.

Enemies of divorce

Enemies of divorce said the measure would sow dissension in countless homes and break up the Italian family.

Divorce advocates said it would allow one million men and women living together outside wedlock because of past matrimonial breakups to become man and wife and recognize their children.

The facts did not bear o either prediction. There we only 16,988 divorces in 197 31,717 in 1972 and 13,013 in t first nine months of 1973. O of the divorcees was a 1 year-old woman who had n seen her emigrant husba for 56 years.

Enemies of divorce lost o in two attempts to have t Fortuna law killed by Italy highest court. The Co stitutional Court ruled in 19 and again last year that vorce did not conflict wi Italy's 1947 Constitution.

Clothes dryer shock hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission warned Friday that about 3,000 gas and electric clothes dryers delivered since last November may have defective timers that could cause fatal electric shock.

The commission said it was alerted by Franklin Manufacturing Co., Webster City, Iowa. Franklin told its wholesale customers to halt delivery of the dryers and advised consumers to contact their dealers if they suspected they had purchased a potentially defective machine.

The timers were manufactured by Lux Time Co. and sold to Franklin for installation in the dryers, the commission said.

Owners of suspect dryers, all manufactured after Nov. 8, were urged to unplug the machine and not to touch any metal surface.

Half the dryers were bought by Kelvinator, the commission said. Other brand names involved are Bradford, Admiral, Hamilton and Coronado.

Prices rise

Between 1952 and 1972, the prices for all consumer items rose 58 per cent. But retail food prices increased only 47 per cent while housing went up 64 per cent. The cost of medical care zoomed 123 per cent during the 20-year period.

Ask mayor to 'change it'

Detroit 3rd graders troubled by growing violence in city

DETROIT (UPI) — "Things are bad in Detroit," wrote third-grader Shiree Woody to Detroit's New Mayor Coleman Young. "I cannot go to the store for my mother because she is afraid something might happen to me.

"People are getting killed and kidnaped. I would like it very much if you can change this in Detroit. I wish you good luck."

Although they are only nine years old, the 30 third-graders at Lillebridge School showed they are already concerned about violence in the city in their letters to the mayor.

"Now that you are mayor, I'd like you to know about some of the things that are needed around here," wrote Aretha Moss. "I wish we had a park with playground equipment. We don't have any at our school.

"I suppose you know about shooting and robbing, and I hope you do something about it —please."

Young, the city's first black mayor, said he was touched by the letters and promised to write the class personally.

"The future of the city belongs with the children," he said, because they can, by example, teach adults about cooperation and brotherhood.

"I'm interested in our city. I don't want our city to fall apart," wrote Tracie Evans. "Detroit was one of the best cities in Michigan, but now people have been getting raped and shot and kidnaped. Also, stealing is a problem ... I love this city and I don't want to leave it. I wish you well."

Most of the third-graders conveyed their best wishes to the new mayor and asked him to help build a better city.

By GEORGE GUDAUSKAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "You know," he said with his eyes twinkling, "they're just like people, pigeons are. Some are real nice; some are greedy. So, I've come to the conclusion that all animal life is a good deal alike."

A rare political animal himself, Sen. George D. Aiken reflected on his love for pigeons and squirrels, flowers and fishing recently after announcing his retirement from the Senate after more than three decades.

Aiken, the dean of the Senate and a liberal Republican from conservative Vermont, will be 82 when he finishes his current term next January after 34 years. He announced his retirement in a typically brief and low-key statement issued from his office. He said he never felt at home in Washington.

In an interview later, the Vermont Republican leaned forward in a creaky chair and said, "It's just reached a point where I didn't have any time at all. Next year, he said, "I'll have a chance to go fishing and take a day off."

Not only is Aiken one of the most powerful men in the Senate, serving on the Agriculture Committee, as ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee and ranking senator on the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, he is regarded as the Senate's wisest member and a pillar of integrity.

It was Aiken who last fall made a typically blunt statement about President Nixon's Watergate troubles, and today, "Impeach or get off his back" is part of the nation's political lexicon.

And Aiken was among the lonely few who in 1952 would get up on the Senate floor and condemn his GOP colleague, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, for his tactics in fighting communism.

He always believed in a bipartisan foreign policy and voted for every Supreme Court nominee, believing every president has a right to name whom he wants.

Aiken found his agriculture and foreign affairs committee assignments among his most important duties. "It's developed to the point now that you can't separate foreign relations from American agriculture," he said.

In the Vietnam debates of the mid-1960s, he criticized U.S. involvement, but rejected a "pell-mell" pullout. Amid the hostility between hawks and doves, he preferred to call himself an owl.

In 1966, Aiken got headlines and wide praise, for suggesting President Lyndon B. Johnson declare a victory and then concentrate on a political settlement, forcing responsibility for wider war on the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Despite his lifelong liberalism in a conservative state, Aiken probably could have been reelected this year. He was unopposed in 1968 and spent a mere $17.09 on his campaign.

Instead, he chose to leave the feeding the pigeons and squirrels near his Capitol Hill home to someone else.

Gave up $15,000 a year for Peace Corps job in Thailand

CHIANG RAI, Thailand (UPI) — Five years ago Larry E. Rose was a well-paid aerospace engineer designing computer systems for earth satellites who spent his weekends on hiking trips in California's Sierra Mountains. He was bored.

He gave up what was then a $15,000 a year job for the $1,800 a year salary of a Peace Corps volunteer and came to work as a civil engineer in the villages of North Thailand.

He's been here ever since, designing and building reinforced concrete irrigation dams in isolated areas. "The challenge from an engineering standpoint is really just about the same," he says. "As long as it remains challenging I'm willing to work here."

Rose, 36, used to work at Lockheed's aerospace and missile division in Sunnyvale, Calif. He talks about his dam building in terms of "inputs" and "decision factors"—the language of aerospace.

He also discovered that cost-effectiveness concepts of the aerospace industry can be applied to his horse-and-buggy age rural development projects, with the result that they have been more successful.

So far, Rose and two other Peace Corpsmen working in Chiang Rai Province have completed eight dams which have helped increase rice yields by an average of 40 per cent in each area they serve, raising the standard of living of thousands of peasants.

Lanky and starting to bald, Rose has extended his Peace Corps term twice. He says he doesn't know how long he will stay but has nine more dam projects he wants to complete.

"Life isn't all that much different here," says Rose, who operates from a concrete - floored combination home, workshop and office at the rear of a Thai government compound. "Only these days on cold mornings I'm riding a 90cc. motorbike instead of in a T-bird (Ford) with the heater on."

Rose said that the Peace Corps came to Lockheed in 1967 to try to recruit engineers, but at that time he was wraped up in his computer work. Two years later it had paled and he got in touch with the volunteer agency.

"I was pushing paper, and is that living?" he asked. "I used to wait for Friday afternoons so I could get off on weekend hiking trips. Here I do that seven days a week.

"And I used to wait for my two-week vacation each year so that I could go off to South America, try speaking another language and do something different. Here I only do that 52 weeks a year."

Amtrak annual report

Bigger deficit in spite of revenue hike

The 1973 Amtrak annual report projected large losses will continue through fiscal year 1975, with revenues increasing rapidly yet with costs maintaining the same upward spiral.

Amtrak's 1973 loss was put at $158.6 million, which was 11.1 million higher than in 1972. The increased loss came despite an increase in revenues of $39.5 million.

The annual report was optimistic about Amtrak's future ridership potential, predicting growth because of the energy crisis and other factors pushing the public toward trains.

To handle the increased traffic, Amtrak said it would soon order a substantial number of new passenger cars.

Several new trains will be added shortly, the report said, including two that were previously unannounced—a second train between Chicago and New York and Washington, and a second train between Chicago and Los Angeles.

The report noted advance bookings for Amtrak trains were running two and a half times the volume of the peak summer months and demand for train travel is increasing much faster than expected.

Student movement reshaping Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) — Most are in their early 20s and look much younger, but they have toppled a military dictatorship and have met visiting heads of state.

They are the students of Thailand whose activism in the past 18 months has made them one of the most dominant influences in this ancient kingdom.

Their movement is literally reshaping the politics of Thailand, ruled for nearly 25 years by military strongmen.

"We are not happy with the social situation," Sombat Thamrongthanyawongse, 23, said in an interview. "The gap between the rich and the poor must be removed. Justice is bad. It is a student's duty to protect the people who pay for their education."

Those words could be uttered by any one of thousands of student activists all over the world. But in Thailand there is a difference. The students are intensely nationalistic.

Studnt Riots

"Some foreign students have offered to help us," Sombat said. "Foreign students don't understand our problems."

The problems in Thailand came to a head last October, when Prime Minister Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn was forced to flee the country, his government in ruins following more than a week of student riots. The cost, however, was high. At least 67 persons were killed in the riots, and up to 800 wounded.

Sombat says the current Thai student movement began in November, 1972, when students began to organize against what he called Japanese economic domination of Thailand. Shortly afterwards, when the government tried to dilute the power of the Supreme Court, the students turned their attention to their own government.

In June, 1973, nine students were dismissed from classes after they published a satire on a scandal involving government officials participating in illegal hunting expeditions. Finally, the government arrested 12 students in early October, a move that sparked the 10 days of rioting leading to the government's downfall.

Sombat, who is Secretary General of the National Student Center of Thailand (NSCT), talked about the student movement in his headquarters. The room, dominated by a romantic oil painting of the October demonstrations, was littered with trays of half-eaten food and thousands of neatly stacked posters.

Just three weeks before, Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka had come to Bangkok and was met by thousands of demonstrating students. Tanaka later met the same fate in Malaysia and Indonesia.

"Oh, yes, there was an agreement that they (Indonesian and Malaysian students) would also launch demonstrations against Tanaka," Sombat said. "He is a big economic power in this part of the world."

Sombat met personally with Tanaka, who, he said, "would do anything to protect his economic interests. He told us that Thailand's relationship now with Japan was the same relationship Japan had with the United States just after World War II."

Sombat was asked whether the former government had tried to supress the student movement.

"No, there was no pressure or threats," Sombat said. "The authorities followed our movements, but there were no physical threats. They couldn't threaten us, because our movement is for the people...."

Since the successful student demonstrations in October, Sombat said his group has received requests for assistance from students in other parts of the world.

"A lot of foreign students have come to ask how to fight their governments and how to organize," he said. He mentioned student movements in Australia, Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Hong Kong and Israel. There has not been much contact with American students.

Since the fall of the old government, the students have received about $1.05 million to instruct the public in democracy. He says the students have no problem in handling such sums of money "because all our people have motivation."

UCLA begins new streak....losing

Oregon hands Bruins second straight loss

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon, getting brilliant shooting from Bruce Coldren, Saturday dealt UCLA its second straight stunning basketball upset in less than 24 hours, 56-51, knocking the Bruins into jeopardy of losing the Pac-8 basketball title for the first time in eight seasons.

The last time UCLA lost two in a row was in 1966, when they lost to Oregon State and Oregon. That was the only time in 10 years the Bruins didn't win the Pac-8 title or the national championship.

Coldren, hitting one-handers mainly from the corners with unbelievable accuracy, canned 12 of 14 shots for 24 points, his career high.

The 6-8 forward hit 14 points in a row in the first half, on eight of nine attempts and his six consecutive points rallied the Ducks when the Bruins caught up briefly.

The Ducks also held all-America Bill Walton, America's amateur athlete of the year in 1973, in check with 11 points and also kept him away from the boards. He didn't get his second basket until all but six minutes were gone in the second half.

Stunned the night before by Oregon State 61-57 in Corvallis, the Bruins raced to an early 11-2 lead against Oregon by scoring nine consecutive points. But Oregon turned it on with Coldren and got eight in a row while holding the Bruins scoreless. Oregon went in front 26-24 and led at half by six.

Oregon shot 62 per cent in the first half, hitting seven more baskets than UCLA in the first 20 minutes, but going without a free throw. UCLA hit eight of 10 free throws to stay alive, but Walton managed only five points and three rebounds in the first 20 minutes.

Turnovers, a malady in the Oregon State upset, again hurt the Bruins, who had 11 in the first half to but four by the Ducks.

UCLA's other all-America candidate, Keith Wilkes, almost turned it around for the Bruins, rallying them briefly midway through the second half. He had 18 points and his three buckets in a row and one by Tommy Curtis put the Bruins in front 43-42 with 12 minutes left.

But then the UCLA offense couldn't function, while Oregon, with colors steaming again, hit 10 straight points without an answer and effectively stalled the final minutes for the victory.

The win kept Oregon alive in the Pac-8 race. The Ducks now are 6-3, while UCLA is 7-2, and Southern Cal, which beat Oregon 76-61 Friday, was 6-2, going into a Saturday night contest against Oregon State.

Oregon coach Dick Harter, after losing handily to the Bruins last week in Los Angeles, said, "UCLA is closer to being beaten than anyone thinks." Oregon State did it in Corvallis 40 miles to the north 61-57 Friday night, capitalizing on UCLA turnovers and keeping Walton in check.

A crowd of more than 10,000 in MacArthur Court, known as "The Pit," roared in disbelief as Oregon, once over the early game streak, beat back the Bruins.

Wooden had said the previous night that his team lacked "killer instinct," a failing he had worried about much of the season. He said he now felt North Carolina State might be the best team in the nation.

"I was surprised to start," said Coldren following the game.

Then in an understatement, he said, "I was working on my shooting game all week.

Harter added, "Last night we decided to go back to our kamikaze kids type of basketball. Dive for the ball, hustle until we dropped. He had to play a tough control type of ball game."

IT'S BIG 'B' VS. BIG RED

Last year's Pomona Valley Player of the Year Greg Ballard of Oregon (42) goes up against UCLA's Bill Walton in a battle for a rebound during Oregon's 56-51 upset over the Bruins Saturday. Ballard, the former Garey High star, scored two points and pulled down seven rebounds.

Wooden doesn't like losing two

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — "I haven't lost two in a row in a long time," said UCLA basketball coach John Wooden, "and I don't like it."

His remarks came following Oregon's 56-51 upset of the Bruins less than 24 hours after Oregon State had turned back UCLA 61-57 in nearby Corvallis the night before. The last time UCLA suffered back-to-back losses was on the swing to Oregon State and Oregon eight years ago, in 1966, the only year in the last 10 that Wooden and his Bruins did not go on to win the national championship.

"We don't like not being number one. I don't like it.," said Wooden. "But we don't deserve it. We're a good team, we're a fine team. I'm not going to worry about our material or our style of play. I haven't seen a team that could beat us in a series of games. But we've met a lot of teams that can beat us in a single game.

"We didn't play well, but we played better than we did last night against Oregon State."

As for Bruce Coldren, the 6-8 Oregon star who shot the eyes out of the basket, hitting 12 of 14 shots, Wooden said, "My guess is that he couldn't go out in the second half and do any better against us than he had done in that first half. But he shot very well. Very well."

Wooden said the large crowd which literally shakes the ancient Wooden MacArthur court to the rafters had no effect on his team." It always has been my contention," he said, "that the crowd inspires the home team, but it does not deter the visiting team."

As for Walton, who managed only 11 points against the rugged Ducks' defense, the Bruin coach said, "Walton

USC moves into tie for Pac-8 lead

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Dan Anderson scored 19 points in the second half Saturday night to lead Southern California to a 60-53 win over Oregon State, placing the Trojans in a PAC 8 tie with UCLA.

The Beavers, who upset UCLA 61-5 Friday night, could never get untracked against the Trojans, who built up a 29-18 lead at halftime and were never again behind.

Anderson hit on 12 of 13 free throws in the second half to lead all scorers with 23 points.

Paul Miller was high for OSU with 18.

It was a foul-filled game with 25 called on OSU and 26 on USC. Three technicals were called on OSU coach Ralph Miller, who had to leave the game with three and a half minutes left.

The Trojans led by as much as 15 points midway in the second half, and the Beavers whittled it to seven in the final 10 minutes, mainly on the shooting of Paul Miller, who had 16 points in that half.

OSU is now 3-6 in the PAC 8, while the Trojans tied UCLA with a 7-2 record. UCLA was upset for the second time in a row Saturday afternoon, losing to Oregon, 56-51.

It's Grant for Lee Kunzman

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Veteran driver Jerry Grant of Seattle, Wash., will replace the injured Lee Kunzman in the March 10 California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Grant will drive one of two 1974 Cobre Firestone Fletcher racing team Eagles in the event. The other will be driven by Jimmy Caruthers of Anaheim, Calif.

"It was Kunzman's decision not to race in the California 500," said team owner Bob Fletcher. "Doctors told him Thursday that he might be ready about the time of the race, but Lee felt it would be best to sit this one out because preparations are so necessary."

Tony C. ends comeback try

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Tony Conigliaro, plagued with an eye injury since 1967 was released Friday by the California Angels.

A team spokesman said the 29-year-old ballplayer was notified of the club's decision by letter. Conigliaro is in Boston and was unavailable for immediate comment.

Conigliaro was traded to the Angels in the winter of 1970 from the Boston Red Sox.

Glen Campbell-L.A. Open

Weiskopf, 3 others tied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf equalled the course record with a sizzling six-under-par 65 Saturday to finish in a four-way tie for first place after three rounds of the $150,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

Weiskopf, the No. 3 money-winner on the tour last year but still seeking his first official money in 1974, is tied at 207, six under par, with halfway leader Dave Stockton, 61-year-old Sam Snead and young John Mahaffey.

Matching the Riviera Country Club course record set in the 1973 L.A. Open by Rod Funseth and Gay Brewer, the 31-year-old Weiskopf blazed in with nines of 33-32, a round that included six birdies.

"I played just about as well as I've ever played," smiled Weiskopf, who had four tournament victories a year ago.

Snead, a winner here in 1945 and 1950, shot a five-under 66, while Stockton, who had a one-shot lead going into the day's play, bogeyed the final hole for an even-par 71.

Mahaffey, who was third in the Bob Hope Desert Classic last week, checked in with a 68.

One shot back at 208, five under par, were freckle-faced Tom Watson and Johnny Miller, bidding for his fourth victory of the young PGA season.

Miller had a 71 Saturday while Watson was three under with a 68.

Snead, the sentimental favorite here, said he wasn't thinking of winning tournament No. 85 in a tour career that began in 1937. His last victory came in the 1965 Greensboro Open.

"I'm just out here to play," smiled Snead. "It's nice to play and see how the young kids are coming along, and see how much the game has changed. Let me tell you, these kids are stronger and they're better putters than they were in my heyday.

"I just hope I do well tomorrow. I'd like to shoot another 66 and see what happens."

Jack Nicklaus, who led the tournament after the first day with a 66, had a 71 for a 210 total, three under par. Jim Wiechers, who started the day in second place, one shot behind Stockton, shot a 73 and was also at 210.

Weiskopf, who established himself in the superstar class a year ago, started the round at even-par after a pair of 71s. Weiskopf's birdies came on putts of seven feet on the first hole, six feet on the sixth hole, three feet on the 11th, 10 feet on the 12th, 16 feet on the 14th and six feet on the 15th.

Boston wins seventh straight by handing Kings 5-2 defeat

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Left winger Don Marcotte scored two goals and added an assist Saturday night to pace the Boston Bruins to their seventh straight NHL victory, a 5-2 triumph over the Los Angeles Kings.

The win gives the Eastern Division leaders a commanding 14-point edge over idle Montreal. Although dropping their third game in a row, the Kings lost no ground in the Western division, remaining two points out of third place.

Before a sellout crowd, Marcotte rammed in the second and fifth Boston goals against goalie Rogie Vachin and assisted on rookie Andre Savard's effort, which proved to be the game-winner.

The hard-checking Bruins jumped out to a 2-0 lead after one period. Defenseman Carol Vadnais scored at 10:25 with a 40-foot slap shot past the screened out Vachon.

Marcotte then scored his 16th goal of the year from a scramble with 1:05 remaining in the opening period.

Only 11 seconds after Goring's score, newly acquired Bobby Schmautz rammed in his 28th goal of the season. Marcotte capped the scoring late in the riod.

Gray paces Long Beach to victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Forward Leonard Gray poured in 22 points and pulled down 10 rebounds Saturday night as 10th-ranked Long Beach State routed Los Angeles State 95-68 in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball game.

The win upped Long Beach's conference record to 8-0. The 49ers are 20-2 on the season.

Leading only 34-26 at half time, Long Beach turned the game into a rout as it outscored the Diablos 16-2 in a three-minute period midway through the second half.

Junior forward Billy Mallory led Los Angeles with 20 points and 13 rebounds. Guard Alfonso Brigham also had 20 points for Los Angeles.

The Diablos are 15-9 overall and 5-4 in the league.

Denver signs No. 1 choice

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos Saturday signed their No. 1 draft choice, Randy Gradishar of Ohio State.

Terms of the contract for the 6-3, 233-pound linebacker were not announced. Gradishar played on two Rose Bowl teams and was the first No. 1 choice the Broncos have ever signed to play defense.

H.S. says no to 'boy's lib'

ROSEVILLE, Minn. (UPI) — Two boys want to play on the Kellogg High School girls volley ball team. The school board won't let them.

Allowing the boys to play would "erode" the girls' program, the school superintendent told the board.

"We don't want to wreck the program," said Chuck Clabots, one of the boys. "We just want to play volleyball."

The board ruled the two ineligible, knocking them off the girls squad they'd been practicing with for three weeks.

POMONA — The Pomona-Pitzer swim team advanced their Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Association record to 3-2 with a win over Whittier Friday.

The Sagehens now have a 8-2 overall record. Pomona-Pitzer recorded first place finishes in all events.

ILIE NASTASE and Tom Okker both made short work of their opponents Saturday in the semifinals of the Rothmans International Tennis Tournament to advance to today's final match for the $10,000 first prize.

Okker defeated John Alexander, 7-6, 6-2, and Nastase beat Marty Riessen, 6-3, 6-4.

LA VERNE — Claremont-Mudd crushed its Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Association rivals in wrestling Saturday, scoring a easy team win in the SCIAC mat finals held at La Verne College.

The Stags captured first place finishers in four events and had a big 144-104 point margin over second place Whittier. Cal Tech was third, followed by Redlands, Pomona-Pitzer, and host La Verne.

Mark "Buck Buchanan of the Stags captured his 177-pound class title with relative ease, and was named the Most Valuable Wrestler of the meet for his efforts. Bob Mennis nailed down the team triumph for Claremont-Mudd with a pin of his opponent in the 190-pound final.

The top three finishers at each weight will now advance to UC San Diego next week for the NAIA District Three championships to be held Saturday.

Turnovers cause Sagehens defeat

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Passing, or inability to pass, cost Pomona-Pitzer's young basketball dearly again Saturday night.

In the first half of the game with Redlands, the Sagehens were guilty of 15 turnovers, most of them on errant passes. The visiting Bulldogs were able to cash in on enough of them to build up a 28-21 halftime lead.

Thus, even though the 'Hens came back to outscore the visitors, 30-25, in the second half, Redlands squeezed out a 53-51 win.

The loss drops the Sagehens back into a tie with Claremont-Mudd for fifth place. Each team now is 3-6 as the Stags beat Caltech, 72-64.

Redlands, 7-2, remains as half game behind league leading Whittier. The Poets defeated Occidental, 89-79.

"I wish we could have played the first half like we played the second half," remarked 'Hens coach Les Nagler after the close game with Redlands. "We turned the ball over too many times. In fact, there was no life in anything we did in the first half."

Coach Gary Smith of the visiting Bulldogs was more kind. "We expected a tough game down there," he said. "Pomona always puts up one of the best zone defenses year after year."

Asked which team he thought had a chance to stop Whittier's title drive since his own team has completed its games with the Poets, Smith said, "La Verne is playing real good, in fact the Leopards are playing outstanding ball now."

An oddity of Saturday night's Sagehens-Bulldogs game was the field goal statistics. In the first half, Redlands hit 13 of 30 while the 'Hens made 10 of 24. The two teams exactly reversed the second half stats. Redlands made 10 of 24 while the Sagehens hit on 13 of 30 as each team wound up making 23 of 54 or 42.6 percent.

Geoff Northrop was the game's high scorer with 20 points. Charles Aubert, who did not start, led the Bulldogs with 11 points, nine of them in the second half. Northrop had 14 of his points in the second half.

Pomona-Pitzer hosts the red-hot Leopards Wednesday.

Upland, Jags pace locals into mat finals

Upland High paced local qualifying for the the CIF Southern Section wrestling finals next week, the Highlanders landing five grapplers in the finals thanks to their performances at the CIF prelims held at Fontana High Saturday.

Ontario managed to nab four spots in the finals, while the other San Antonio and Hacienda League teams qualified a total of 13 matmen. Chaffey High qualified two wrestlers, while Rowland saw Mark Wilson wrestle his way into the 98-pound finals.

Upland's fine showing topped the events at Fontana, Highlanders Jim Copp (98 lbs.) Jack Glasheen (115 lbs.), Don Fields (136 lbs.), Bruce Barmakian (141 lbs.), and Corey Chapman (168 lbs.) all qualified for next week's CIF showdown at Marina High in Orange County.

Biggest disappointment was the failure of Chino's star 148-pounder Mark Roberts to advance. Roberts lost his first match to Chaffey's Marty Marquez and never recovered.

Marquez failed to advance as well, but Chaffey did see Andy MacKnight and Todd Curley gain entry into the action at Marina.

The Hacienda League made a strong showing at Edgewood, seeing five of its wrestlers win first place honors in the prelims. Rich Brown of Royal Oak, Roger DeSantiago of Ontario, Wally River of Ontario, Marc Monson of Royal Oak, and Karl Stupke of San Dimas all took top honors at Edgewood.

First-place finishes at Fontana went to Glasheen of Upland, Mike O'Connor of Claremont, MacKnight of Chaffey, and John Surby of Montclair.

Bill Parker won the 11-12 year-old division with a 81 for 18 holes, Jerry Douthit recording a 83 and Paul Ayala a 84 for second and third-place honors.

The 13-14 year-old division was won by Rick Mask with a 67, Mark Milickian's 69 good enough for second spot in the division. Ashton then won the 15-17 year old grouping with his 66.

Only one to go for dejected Mounties

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

WALNUT — There is only one game remaining on the Mt. San Antonio College basketball schedule this season and for most of the players, that might be two or three games too many.

The long 1973-74 season dragged on a little further Saturday night as the frustrated Mounties (8-19) were humbled by defending South Coast Conference champion Santa Ana, 79-56.

While the game meant nothing to MSAC, the Dons (24-6) are battling for another championship and will decide this year's title Wednesday night when they host Orange Coast. Both teams are now 8-1 in the league.

MSAC is 2-7 and the best it can do is tie for fourth by beating Fullerton Wednesday night on the Mounties home floor.

Turnovers were the big trouble for MSAC as it has no one on the basketball team that possesses the passing talent Steve Myer had on the football field.

The Mounties were guilty of 15 miscues in the first half and committed 18 more in the second half. Also exemplifying the team's frustration were three technical fouls.

Santa Ana started out as if it was going to blow the Mounties right out of the gym. After the first 10 minutes, it was Santa Ana 21, MSAC 11 and obviously, the Mounties couldn't generate any offensive power.

But then 6-10 center Gary Nash started going to work on the boards and his fine rebounding, as well as two baskets, helped MSAC reel off 10 consecutive points to catch the Dons at 21.

Each team then scored four more points before Santa Ana called timeout and coach Bill Oates worked a double pick that freed forward Paul Lacher for three straight baskets and one free throw and MSAC was never able to recover.

The closest the Mounties came the rest of the way was within four points just before the end of the half but a 25 per cent performance (eight of 32) in the second half — along with the turnovers—made any hope for an upset impossible.

Nash was the big gun for the Mounties, as usual, winding up with 19 points and some 12 rebounds before fouling out with 4:43 left to play. Steve Arthur was the only other MSAC player to reach double figures, scoring 11.

The difference in the game was the strength of Santa Ana's bench as the Mountie starters outscored the Don starters 49-46.

Key reserve for the winners was Tom Clark whose hustle netted him 18 points while starters in double figures were Lacher 17, Bobby Angel 12 and Glen Clark (no relation to Tom) 10.

Wooden not happy about two losses

Although Wooden has been a constant critic of Oregon's rough and aggressive style of play, he said, "I did not consider today's game a physical game. It wasn't our ball game we like to. It was Oregon's style of game and Oregon controlled the tempo of it. Oregon's defense was real good. We gave them open outside shots, and they made them."

Oregon coach Dick Harter, who came West after building a nationally-ranked team at Penn, said of the victory, "Let's not talk about second place anymore in the Pac 8. Let's start talking about taking them one at a time." The victory gave Oregon a 6-3 conference mark and keeps the Ducks much alive in the Pac 8 chase. UCLA is 7-2, and Southern Cal was 6-2 going into Saturday night's game against Oregon State—a spoiler but not a contender.

"We wanted to move them around when we had the ball, so that we would be free to take a shot," said Harter of the strategy that beat the Bruins. "We have 12 different plays, but we only ran about four of them. No matter what we ran, we found the open man.

"We won because of good execution and good intelligent basketball. This is the most important victory to us since I have been at Oregon, but it is not the most important in my career. It is the most satisfying after the way we played (and lost to USC) Friday night.

"You know it's a funny thing. The Bruins are like gods when you first see them. Then you realize they're just people when you start playing them."

RCC wraps up Mission title, 97-55

AUZSA — Riverside City College clinched the Mission Conference championship Saturday night by downing Citrus, 97-55.

The host Owls couldn't stop the red-hot Tigers from RCC, who shot 68 per cent from the floor. Four Riverside players scored in double figures, led by forward Roy Clark and guard Mike Montigel with 16 points each.

Guard Dwight Dyke paced the Owls with 13 points, and forward Ordele Newkirk followed with 10. Chuck Lyons came off the bench for Citrus to add another 10 points in the losing effort.

Citrus is now 3-11 in conference play and 7-20 for the season, while unbeaten Riverside is 14-0 and 22-6.

Poly faces tough tests this week

POMONA — When a team plays a 55-game schedule and the really important games are yet to come, there is no need to panic just because three of the first four contests were lost.

So says coach John Scolinos of the Cal Poly baseball team. His only worry at the moment is the Broncos' lack of hitting, something he was concerned about before the first game was played.

This coming week his team engages in six games and all appear to be tough. Beginning Monday the Broncos play a doubleheader with Long Beach State at home and then host Cal State Los Angeles Tuesday before traveling to the University of Arizona for a single game Friday and two Saturday.

"Our hitting is going to have to improve soon because after this coming week we open our conference slate against UC Riverside and I feel the CCAA conference teams will be at their highest level ever," Scolinos says. "And these are the ones that count."

"We look adequate enough as far as pitching and fielding go but if the hitting doesn't get better it will tend to put too much strain on our pitching. We can't ask the pitchers to go out and hurl a shutout each game. And of course it makes our speed useless if we can't get people on base."

Coach Scolinos feels that if two or three of his players who were expected to be leading batters will start hitting at a better clip then the problem will be solved.

"We have experimented with several players at a few positions and we're working toward a set lineup. But for now we still have a few open spots," Scolinos adds.

Dee King and Mike Heinen will probably be the starting pitchers in the Long Beach State doubleheader with Vic Bernal pitching against CS Los Angeles.

STAY RIGHT THERE — Golden State's Butch Beard tumbles head over heels in game against the New York Knicks Saturday as an official looks on. The Warriors lost to the Knicks, 117-107.

It's official--Aaron will wait for first homestand to start

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves, anticipating flak from several different directions, finally decided Saturday that Hank Aaron, nudging Babe Ruth for the all-time home run mark, will not start any of the team's first three games in Cincinnati at the start of the 1974 season.

The Braves announced Saturday he will start his first game of the 1974 season when the Braves open at home against Los Angeles Monday, April 8.

But Aaron will be available for pinch hitting duties in the three road games at Cincinnati which precede the 11-game homestand.

The Braves' action is expected to cause some controversy around the league since the Reds are expected to be in a tight pennant race with Los Angeles, Houston and San Francisco in the NL Western Divison.

With Aaron out of the lineup — except for pinch-hitting duties — Cincinnati should presumably have an edge in the first three games. Aaron usually hits well in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was traveling to Florida Saturday and was unavailble for comment.

A spokesman for the commissioner said, "any official comment will have to come from the commissioner. I know how I feel personally about it but the commissioner has to make any official comment."

Baseball has always been proud of the integrity of the pennant race coming above any individual records.

But manager Eddie Mathews insisted that winning the games in Cincinnati is more important than when or where the Hammer breaks Ruth's record.

Mathews said he would not save Aaron for the Atlanta fans if he felt the Mobile, Ala. native could mean the difference in one of the Cincinnati games.

He said he wouldn't hesitate to call on the 40-year-old slugger after the seventh inning if a win hung in the balance.

But Mathews said, "I think one thing that a lot of people have overlooked is that Hank sitting on the bench (as a possible pinch-hitter) stops managers from making moves they might want to make."

Braves chairman Bill Bartholomay, who made the announcement Saturday after consulting with Aaron, general manager Eddie Robinson and Mathews, cautioned that player injuries during spring training could force a change.

"It is unprecedented to speculate on an opening lineup at this early date, but Braves' fans deserve to know our plans," he said.

Aaron is one home run shy of tying Ruth's career mark of 714 and "will be available as a pinch hitter for the road games in Cincinnati and part-time play if required by manager Eddie Mathews," Bartholomay said.

Mathews said he expects Aaron to topple the mark in Atlanta, but he does not think Aaron will play all 11 games in the homestand.

"I think he more or less belongs to the people of the Southeast," he said.

The Braves host Los Angeles for four night games, then play Cincinnati in a three-game weekend series and wind up the homestand with four night games against San Diego.

Bartholomay also noted that "The city of Atlanta and the Chamber of Commerce have designated opening night as a salute to Hank Aaron which will properly dignify and recognize his outstanding accomplishments."

Broncs open track season

SAN DIEGO — Cal Poly will open its 1974 track campaign in the San Diego Invitational tonight at the Sports Arena.

The Broncos, competing in the Open Division, will have Douglass Dantzler and Myron McGill entered in the 60-yard sprint.

Poly's 60-yard high hurdlers will be Terrell Palmer and Alton Colbert.

Martin Smith is the lone Bronco entry in the three mile run with Claude Chumley entered in the high jump. Charles Moffit and Emory Montgomery are double threats in the triple jump.

McGill, the sole returnee from last year's record breaking team (3:30.3), heads up the mile relay team composed of Gerald Curry, Dantzler and Ted Bolden.

Former Bronco James Couch, who ran on that relay team as well as set the school record in the 800 meter run and won the NCAA 800 yard run. will be running in the 1,000 yard run for Cal International.

MSAC, Chaffey claim identical 4-2 victories

Four was the magic number for Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey College baseball squads Saturday, as both the Mounties and Panthers posted identical 4-2 wins over non-league foes.

MSAC bested Riverside City College by the 4-2 margin in a game played at Evans Park in Riverside, while Chaffey used that score to down Hancock JC and win the Casey Stengel Tourney Consolation Crown.

Bob Chaulk hurled a fine game for the Mounties, as he went the distance to down RCC. Chaulk allowed only eight scattered hits, fanned seven and did not walk a batter. The ex-Ganesha High southpaw used just over 100 pitches in besting the Tigers.

Even with Chaulk's efforts, things looked bad for MSAC as Riverside righthander Bob Dobey had them shutout for seven innings and RCC had taken a 1-0 lead.

The Mounties settled the issue in the top of the eighth, touching Dobey up for four runs and giving Chaulk the victory margin.

Jeff Corkill and Mark Bumstead picked up RBI singles in the frame, while Don Cashen plated another run with a sacrifice. The fourth MSAC tally came on a throwing error by Dobey.

Corkill also had a double on the afternoon. The win gives MSAC a 6-1 season record, and advances Chaulk to a 2-0 mound mark.

Chaffey got a fine effort from starter Steve Gibson and a nifty relief job from Gary Wagoner in subduing Hancock. Bryan Smith also did a fine job on the hill for Hancock, but suffered from some costly errors by his defense.

Gary Sloane and Mark Berrier had RBI's for Chaffey, while the other two Panther scores came across due to Hancock errors.

The Panthers swiped three bases Saturday, giving them 35 in 36 attempts so far this season. Chaffey had only five hits, but made them count in annexing the Casey Stengel Tourney consolation title for the second year in a row.

Gibson evened his record at 1-1 with the decision, while Chaffey's season log now stands at 4-3.

MSAC will return to diamond action on Tuesday, as they host Citrus in a game slated to begin at 2:30 p.m. Coach Art Mazmanian of the Mounties plan to start ace righthander Charlie Fallon on the mound against the Owls.

Dolphins, Cowboys top list

Rams set up pre-season slate

LOS ANGELES — The Miami Dolphins, winner of the Super Bowl the last two years, and the Dallas Cowboys, the team that destroyed the Rams' 1973 playoff hopes, will visit the Coliseum this summer to highlight an attractive Rams home pre-season schedule that also features the Cleveland Browns and the Kansas City Chiefs.

Coach Chuck Knox's NFC Western Champion Rams will kick off four consecutive weekends of Coliseum pro football action against Cleveland in the annual Times Charity Game on Friday night, Aug. 2.

Then comes the Cowboys (Aug. 10), the Chiefs (Aug. 17) and the Dolphins (Aug. 24) — all Saturday night games that will begin at 7 p.m. instead of the usual 8 p.m. starting time, thus saving energy by utilizing one less hour of Coliseum lighting.

The Rams will close out the pre-season on the road. They'll play at San Diego on Saturday night, Aug. 31, and wind up at San Francisco on Sunday, Sept. 8 in a day game. It will mark the first time in the 23-year history of the pre-season series between the Rams and 49ers that the game has been scheduled for the Bay Area.

If the Coliseum lineup of opponents looks formidable, it is not by accident. Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom and Executive Vice President and General Manager Don Klosterman designed it that way. "We feel it not only helps our football team to play against the best possible opposition," Rosenbloom said, "but we also feel it's what our fans prefer."

The Cowboys, a 37-31 loser to the Rams last year in a crowd-pleasing regular season game at the Coliseum, got their revenge in the playoffs with a 27-16 victory at Texas Stadium.

Convenience wins Santa Maria 'Cap

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Veteran racing mare Convenience came on with a rush in the stretch Saturday to capture the 32nd running of the $57,250 Santa Maria Handicap at Santa Anita as heavily-favored Susan's Girl finished fifth.

In capturing the Santa Maria, Convenience avenged a defeat by Susan's Girl in the same race last year. Convenience took advantage of a seven-pound lighter impost, carrying 121 pounds to Susan's Girl's 128.

Susan's Girl, who would have become the all-time moneywinning mare with a victory, appeared to find her impost too much for her. Susan's Girl led only in the first few strides out of the gate.

Chilean-bred Tizna set most of the pace and held on for second place, while Tallahto finished third and Penny Flight was fourth in the field of eight. Bringing up the rear were Flying Fur, Veiled Desire and Magic Story.

Convenience, under the handling of Santa Anita's riding champion Laffit Pincay Jr. raced the 1 1-16 miles in 1:42 4-5.

As third choice in the wagering, convenience returned $8.40, $4.80 and $3.20.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Long before "pusher" became the ugly word it is, Hank Aaron made up his mind he'd never be one.

His decision had nothing at all to do with drugs because they were something he didn't believe in. It had to do instead with the way he wished to live, the type human being he chose to be.

Unlike so many others in this society of ours, this highly competitive, selfish daily road race in which the prevailing feeling too frequently boils down to 'you first, after me,' Hank Aaron decided he didn't want to live that way. In short, he preferred not to push, certainly not himself on other people.

Accordingly, Hank Aaron wasn't the most marketable commodity that ever came down the pike during most of his baseball career.

He was always a good fellow, actually a congenial, decent human being once you got to know him, but that was the trouble. Not that many really got to know Hank Aaron. He was as much responsible for that as anyone else, principally because he never pushed himself.

This isn't intended to make Hank Aaron out as some kind of God. He's not. He's far from perfect. He has faults the same as anybody else, but one of them isn't self-promotion.

For most of his two decades with the Braves, Hank Aaron was known as a top-notch ballplayer, even an exceptional one, but this was something you didn't get to know from him.

Maybe his drum-beaters simply didn't bang the drums hard enough or maybe being in Milwaukee and Atlanta he never received the publicity or exposure he saw some others get.

As a black ballplayer, he never was offered the endorsements he would've been had he been a white ballplayer and accomplished the same things he did.

Not only reason

But his color can not be cited as the only reason Hank Aaron remained pretty much in the background all these years. Willie Mays received far more acclaim, and the fact he began his career here in New York undoubtedly had something to do with that.

Comparatively speaking, Frank Robinson, Vida Blue and even the late Roberto Clemente generated more publicity than Hank Aaron, so this pronounced lack of recognition can not be attributed to color alone.

He had a shot at it last year and fell one short of tying and two of breaking.

It doesn't matter. He'll probably do it early this coming season and then make the perfect showpiece for all baseball the rest of the year. He'll also make more than a little money—$1 million over the next five years alone from the Magnavox Corp.—and when you think of what some basketball performers are getting nowadays, Hank Aaron isn't being overpaid.

Not sour or bitter

He is not sour or bitter over what has gone before. He accepts it in that characteristically soft gentlemanly way of his. That doesn't mean he's impervious to all that has happened to him.

"I've waited very patiently for this day," said the Braves' 40-year-old super-slugger one day last October after Berle Adams, president of William Morris Agency Sports Inc., announced Aaron had signed with them and, according to projections, figured to make between $1.5 and $2 million by breaking Ruth's record.

"I've stood back and waited while other players did their thing," Aaron reflected.

"I think fans in general felt Mays or (Mickey) Mantle had the best chance of breaking the record," he said. "They were the ones they mostly talked about doing it long before they talked about my chances. In fact I didn't think I could do it myself until three years ago."

Nothing in life is sure. What if something happens between now and April? What if he should somehow never break Ruth's record?

Aaron shrugs.

"What will be, will be," he says, softly.

Berle Adams, the William Morris man, thinks positively. He believes Aaron will become the new record-holder this spring and when he does, more opportunities will begin coming in.

"When you're one of a kind you have something to sell, and when he hits 715 homers, he's one of a kind," says Adams. "He's no longer Hank Aaron, ballplayer; he's Hank Aaron, home run king of all time."

Bet on it, Hank Aaron won't be a pusher even then.

Jack Cooke top educator says Lacher

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — "I think life should be a continuing education and I think Jack Kent Cooke is the best educator I've ever come in contact with."

Jim Lacher, class of 1960 at University of North Dakota. Certified public accountant. Husband and father. And the righthand man of the owner of the NBA Los Angeles Lakers, the NHL Los Angeles Kings and the Forum here.

At 35, Lacher has an awesome work load and responsibilities. Even many older businessmen might wilt under the extreme pressure of the job and a diligent perfectionist like Cooke.

"I've met a lot of millionaire," Lacher noted. "Jack happens to be the best businessman I've ever run across. I'm not talking because I'm biased. I believe it.

"I've found him to be a very fair man, too. I happen to thrive on pressure and doing things the right way. We get along very well."

Cooke must agree with Lacher's assessment. He met Lacher while Lacher was a senior staff accountant with Arthur Young & Co. of Los firm.

"I handled his audit and we took a liking to one another," said Lacher.

That was eight years ago. Today from his office deep inside the Forum, a $20 million dollar facility that opened in 1967, Lacher is virtually running California Sports Inc., as the vice president and treasurer of the corporation.

Cooke suffered a heart attack last March and has been in New York since last September where he is attempting to solve some internal problems of the Teleprompter Corp. Cooke is president and chairman of the board of Teleprompter.

"I've never looked upon myself as being young," said Lacher. "Maybe it was because of the way I was brought up. I was raised on a farm.

"At three, I was riding a horse. At six, I was driving a tractor. I've always had a lot of responsibilities. They've never frightened me."

Lacher attended high school at LaMour, N.D., where he was a lineman on the school's football team. He also played one year of football at Valley City (N.D.) State Teachers College.

"I like sports," he remarked "but I'm not what you'd call an avid sports fan. I'll read the financial pages of the paper before I read anything else."

A 5-8, 150-pounder, Lacher bears a striking resemblance to former world middleweight champion Gene Fullmer of Salt Lake City.

"I remember once I stopped in Utah for gas," he recalled, "and the attendant asked me which one of the Fullmer brothers (Gen or Don) I was."

Angels' Tanana playing it cool

ANAHEIM — Frank Tanana has been trying to play it cool this winter. In Detroit he has had a chance.

"I've been shoveling snow and working out on an underground pitching mound," said the Angels' 20-year-old lefthander, who is expected to fill traded Clyde Wright's spot in the starting rotation. "I haven't done much of anything else. I'm trying to play it cool because I know as soon as I get to spring training my fingers and palms will start sweating from the psyche job and the competition.

"I'm heading south to El Paso next week to spend some time with some friends and start thawing out. I want to play some golf and get some rays (sunshine) in."

Tanana won't be handed the No. 3 or 4 spot behind Nolan Ryan and Bill Singer, but his statistics and competitiveness make him a strong candidate. He already is being mentioned as a possible Rookie of the Year.

The poised and polished southpaw was the pitcher of the year in the Texas League for El Paso in 1973. He was 16-6 and led the league with 197 strikeouts. In September he pitched a one-hitter in a brief stop at Salt Lake City and then won two of four decisions for the Angels. Both wins were complete games and the second was a two-hit shuthout against the Minnesota Twins (the major leagues' top-hitting club).

"Naturally, there still is some doubt about me since I only pitched those four games," said Tanana. "I'm anxious to get to spring training to erase those doubts. This will be my second spring training and I feel I know what to do. There's a lot of talent coming in and the man who does the best should get the job."

Tanana learned of Wright's transfer to Milwaukee from a radio report.

"It definitely was a boost," he said quietly, inferring an obvious understatement. "It really helped my head. I had heard the club was counting on me as the No. 3 or 4 man. I hope they are. I know I can do the job. It's up to me to to show them."

The mature Detroit native has set no lofty goals for 1974. "Rookie of the Year? If it comes, great. But I'd really like to do is pitch every four or five days and stay healthy. If I get my 250 to 300 innings in then I'll win. Really, health is the key, for everyone. If you keep that, everything else takes care of itself."

As a lifelong Detroit resident, Tanana, is anxious to pitch against the Tigers in the Motor City.

"That will be one of the biggest thrills, pitching in front of all my family and friends," he said. "Just like my first game in Kansas City last year, I told myself it was just another game, but when a dream of 12 years finally comes true, well, I let the excitement get to me and I wasn't myself."

Should Tanana have the kind of year he and the Angels are expecting, he will take up permanent residency in southern California.

"The sun and I go hand in hand," he said.

Both are on the rise.

Garey High School baseball coach Joel Wiese is putting the finishing touches on a class for the volunteer. It is to be conducted under the auspices of the Pomona Unified School District's Adult School program. Instruction is set for Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m.

The first session is on Feb. 27 in Room 104 at Garey High. There is a cost of $2.50 for those over 21 years of age and 25 cents for the fortunate persons who fall below that barrier.

The volunteer coach is vital to the success of any youth athletic endeavor. Some people want to take a team but are reluctant. They feel a lack of knowledge.

Wiese hopes that this program would ease those fears and give help to some who have coached baseball in the past. The feeling persists that you never know enough.

The program promises to teach the basics. The elementary phase of the game if you will. Throwing, catching, fielding and practice organization is to be covered, along with a special section on pitching at the youth level.

Speakers have been invited to impart their knowledge. Citrus College coach Skip Claprod, Ontario High coach Bob Beck, Los Altos High mentor Chuck Calvert and Post 30 manager Woody Hansen are some of the guests.

Hansen has grown up with Pomona's youth baseball program. His experiences and the changes seen over the years might be enough material for a full course.

One point should be made. This class is open to anyone who is interested. You need not be a Pomona resident or a prospective coach.

At least 20 people must register to hold the class. It doesn't seem like a lot, but unfortunately the minimum may not be met. Some think they know it all while others are too busy to attend a session like this but will have time to coach.

The Pomona Baseball Commission has endorsed this class and is strongly encouraging attendance. If you plan to coach then attend. After all, you may be teaching that youngster the wrong way. Once you learn a bad habit, it is hard to change.

Tryout times

Local Little Leagues will be conducting late registration and tryouts the next few weeks. All boys are placed on teams so the workouts are held to determine what team and the level either major or minor.

Surprisingly, registration has been low for all five of Pomona's leagues. Announcements have been made at the schools, plus a complete listing made in the Progress Bulletin on Sunday, Jan. 27.

Listed below are the leagues and their tryout dates. If you are unfamiliar with your area, call the Pomona Park and Recreation Departments at 620-2321. Remember, late signups are not taken after the conclusion of tryouts. Boys must be eight years old but not 13 prior to August 1, 1974 to be eligible. Registration dates for programs involving the 13-18 year olds will be announced by March 10. The Recreation Department's girls softball and boys "T"-ball program will be in May.

The American Little League holds tryouts on Feb. 23, March 2 and 9. The time is 9 a.m. Washington Park. The National Little League will work out at Montvue Park on Feb. 16 and 23. Eight through 11 year olds meet at 9 a.m., while 12-year-old boys show up at 1 p.m.

The Northwest Little League under the direction of player's agent Ellis Bell will try out on Feb. 16 and 23 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Kennedy field is the location.

Southwest Little League aspirants try out at Westmont Park, while their home field at Ralph Welch Park is under repair. Player's agent Jerry Byrm has called for the boys on Feb. 16, 23 and March 2 at 12 noon.

Players hoping to play in the Ted Greene Little League should call President Jim Cochran, 626-5095, for tryout dates and times.

Finley admits Seals' failure

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI — Charles O. Finley, admitting failure for one of the few times as owner of a sports franchise, Thursday reluctantly sold the cellar-dwelling California Golden Seals to the National Hockey League for an estimated $6 million.

During a break in baseball salary arbitration meetings with several of his Oakland A's players, Finley also cited ill health as a reason for turning the Seals over to the league which will run the franchise until a new owner is found.

African mile star runs in AAU meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — The man many track and field observers believe to be the heir apparent to Jim Ryun's mile records will be on display for the first time in the United States Friday night at the AAU indoor championships.

Filbert Bayi, the slender Tanzanian Air Force mechanic who earlier this month cut nine-tenths of a second off Ryun's six-year old 1,500-meter world mark with a 3:32.2 clocking at the Commonwealth Games, has been lured to the U.S. by the AAU hierarchy along with John Walker of New Zealan, the runnerup in that race who also surpassed Ryuns mark.

Like so many of the African distance men since Kenya's Kip Keino at the 1968 Olympics, Bayi goes out in the mile like he's runnng a sprint. He doesn t believe in letting somebody else set the pace.

"In the Olympics at Munich I got boxed in," he explains, "and I was never able to take the lead. So now I take it from the start."

Before Kenyan Ben Jipcho, another of the "new style" African milers, turned pro, many observers foresaw an outdoor mile matchup with Bayi where both runners would sprint to the front and go on to a time that would surpass Ryun's 3:51.1 which has stood since 1967. But off Bayi's 1,500-meter run at the Commonwealth Games, perhaps the Tanzanian can break the record on his own.

With 200 meters to go and apparently in command of the race, Bayi began looking back at Walker who was beginning to gain on him. "I heard shoes behind me," he explained, "but when I saw they were not so near, I decided not to increase my pace.

"If I had been pressed, my time might have been 3:30."

AAU meet directors Dan Ferris and Olan Cassell aren't expecting such grandiose performances from either Bayi or Walker on Friday night. They'll merely settle for a wipeout of Tom O'Hara's standing indoor world mile best of 3:56.4. However, it should be noted that Bayi has never run on boards before and the experience could prove to be a letdown from his promise of the Comonwealth Games.

With the ever-increasing interest in women's events, the AAU has loaded that side of its ledger almost enough to upstage Bayi and Walker. In the 880, there's a matchup of defending champ Cheryl Toussaint of the Atoms Track Club against 15-year old Mary Decker of California, holder of the American indoor 1,000-yard record of 2:26.7, while Francie Larrieu, who boasts the best world indoor mile mark of 4:34.6, will be running her specialty.

Gasoline shortages may hurt other leisure time business, but it s not likely to put a dent in activity at hometown golf courses.

"The curtailment of travel, both business and pleasure, will have the effect of providing members with additional time and opportunity to use their hometown courses," said Wagoner. "This means there will be more traffic on the course and the superintendent will have to work harder to take care of the additional players."

"If shortages of fertilizers and insecticides occur, we will run the danger of blight and other destruction of the course and plants. Electricity is also vital to the continued operation of our fleet of golf carts, which are important to club revenues.

Wagoner was the main speaker recently at the International Turfgrass Conference and Show in Anaheim.

Norton not planning loss

By JIM COUR

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Muhammad Ali put Ken Norton on the map by giving the former Marine corporal a crack at the big time.

Now, George Foreman is laying his heavyweight title on the line against Norton at Caracas, Venezuela, March 26. Norton doesn't plan to lose.

"I'm very confident," said the man who broke Ali's jaw a year ago. "I know what I can do and there are a lot of things that I can do that he (Foreman) can't.

"I think I'm a little faster than he is and a little smarter. What he does better than I do I think I can nullify."

Norton, 28, has the physique that belongs in a weightlifter's magazine but he doesn't plan to trade punches Foreman.

"He's a lot stronger than I am," admitted the Carson, Calif., fighter. "This isn't going to be a test of strength, though. I'm not going to stand there and slug with him. I feel I know more about the science of boxing than he does and I'm going to try to use that to my advantage."

Norton and Ali split a pair of 12-round decision in 1974. Norton believes he won the second fight as well as the first one.

A former Joe Frazier sparring partner who began his pro carer eight years ago, Norton is articulate and candid. He knows what he wants out of the fight game and that's money.

"I'm still a hungry fighter," he said. "That's because my goal is to become a millionaire and to become a good businessman. The more money I make in boxing means the more money I can put back into business and the more involved I can become. One follows the other."

Norton became a former nobody in March, 1973, by breaking Ali's jaw in a fight at San Diego. In a rematch at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif., last September, Ali was awarded a victory.

"About 70 per cent of the news media I have spoken to since the second fight have told me I either won it or at least should have gotten a draw," he declared. "I try to improve every fight. People said I wasn't good enough to stay in the same ring with him in the first Ali fight. I disproved that.

"In the second fight, he was supposed to be in such good shape that he was going to run me out of the ring. I proved he couldn't do that. I also thought I had improved from the first fight."

Norton isn't willing to call Foreman a tougher opponent than Ali was.

"He's (Foreman) a very strong individual and he's very determined," Norton said. "He's stronger than Muhammad and he hits a lot harder. But Mohammad is faster and a lot smarter."

A former high school football, basketball and track star at Jacksonville, Ill., the only child of a Jacksonville police dispatcher, Norton attended Northeast Missouri State College on a football scholarship and later went into the Marine Corps where he got into boxing accidentally.

"I went looking for a volleyball game one day," he recalled, "and there were some fellows punching the bag instead. I tried it and liked it. I also noticed that they were sending many of my fooball teammates to Viet Nam. They left the boxers alone."

Norton will take a 30-2 record against Foreman. He has 23 knockouts. His only defeat other than the loss to Ali came in 1970 — an eighth round KO at the hands of Venezuela's Jose Luis Garcia.

For the first Ali fight, Norton got a $50,000 paycheck. He earned $200,000 last September, the same amount he is being given to face Foreman.

"I have more money now and can buy more things that I want," he noted, "but my lifestyle is about the same. Basically, I'm the same individual I was before the Ali fights.

Norton doesn't even see his money. He has a business manager, an account who handles it and he gets a weekly allowance.

Pineda wins 1974 Woolf jockey award

ARCADIA — Alvaro Pineda, who has ranked among America's top riders since arriving in this country from his native Mexico, has been named winner of the 1974 George Woolf Memorial Jockey Award in a poll of representatives of radio, television and the press.

The 29-year-old Pineda, currently sixth in the jockey standings at Santa Anita Park, will receive the prized award in public ceremonies in the winner's circle at Santa Anita on Saturday (Feb. 23), the day of the 36th running of the $75,000-added San Antonio Stakes.

Making the trophy presentation to Pineda will be Fred H. Ryan, President of Santa Anita Park, who is scheduled to retire at the conclusion of the 1973-74 racing season April 8.

Born Nov. 9, 1945 in Guanajuato, Mexico, Pineda won his first race at the age of 16 in Mexico City. He came to the United States in the summer of 1964, debuting at Del Mar while under contract to Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Finley and trainer Charlie Comiskey. He won his first American race on August 25 of that year aboard Chula Pie.

Subsequently, Pineday has won more than 2,500 races and his mounts have earned more than $12 million. Included among more than 70 stakes triumphs in America are victories on Niarkos in the 1967 and '68 renewals of the San Juan Capistrano, the Hollywood Gold Cup on Fogonero and the Hollywood Juvenile Championship astride Fleet Kirsch in 1968.

In 1967, he became only the fifth jockey in Thoroughbred racing history to ride more than 400 winners in a single season when he booted in 419 winners. However, he lost the national championship to Jorge Velasquez.

Baseball camps open this week

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's baseball time again this week in the grapefruit and cactus belts.

Pitchers and catchers will report to six training camps in Florida and two in Arizona on Thursday. By next Sunday, all but three camps will be buzzing with official live action. By March 1, when the Baltimore Orioles call their full squad to order, all players under contract—except perhaps for a few delayed by late signings—will be checked into the 24 major league camps scattered from Miami to Palm Springs, Calif.

The Texas Rangers, Boston Red Sox, Montreal Expos, Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets greet their batterymen in Florida Thursday. The Chicago Cubs and San Fransisco Giants call them to Arizona camps the same day.

On Friday, the New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers, Atlanta Braves and Ciincinnati Reds check into Florida bases. Oakland's pitchers and catchers report at Mesa, Ariz.

The rest of the major league pack follows in short order with full squads, in most cases, reporting a few days after pitchers and catchers. Some clubs have one reporting date for all hands.

Except for the cloudy situation between Charley Finley and Dick Williams of the two-time world champion Oakland A's, 1974's managerial questions were settled in reasonable time with four new pilots moving in.

Ralph Houk shifted from the Yankees to the Tigers and Bill Virdon, fired at Pittsburgh last September, greets the Yankees for the first time as pilot. Darrell Johnson took over from Eddie Kasko of the Red Sox. John McNamara, a member of the Oakland Ex-Managers Association, replaced Don Zimmer at San Diego after the club's new ownership was resolved. The Padres were sold to wealthy hamburger king Ray Kroc.

The Oakland situation became a day to-day thing when Williams announced at the world series that he would not be back. He later signed with the Yankees but could not obtain his release from the A's and Finley was in no hurry to hire a replacement.

Three managers who were on other jobs last spring but at the helm before the season ended will be getting a long look at their teams in training in place of the men who opened 1973: Billy Martin for Whitey Herzog of the Texas Rangers, Preston Gomez for Leo Durocher of the Houston Astros and Danny Murtaugh back at Pittsburgh in place of Virdon.

Player trades—25 involving 57 players during the December major league meetings and others both before and after— moved some noted names into new camps.

San Diego track meet offers something new

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Eighth annual San Diego Indoor Games tonight offers a little something special this year with new world indoor shotput record holder George Woods, two-miler Steve Prefontaine and 1500-meter sensation Filbert Bayi.

Bayi, a 20-year-old Tanzanian, set the world record for 1,500 at 3:32.2 in the Commonwealth Games Feb. 2. He is entered in the mile in San Diego and one of his opponents will be John Walker of New Zealand, who was only three-tenths of a second behind Bayi.

Leonard Hilton of the Pacific Coast Club appears the major U.S. challenger along with North Carolina's Tony Waldrop, who won the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games mile at 3:58.3 last Friday.

Field fans will be far more interested in the shotput duel between Woods and teammate Al Feuerbach. Woods hit 72-feet-2¾ at Los Angeles. The figure exceeded his own indoor record and also Feuerbach's outdoor mark of 71-feet-7.

The latter is not accepted as an overall world record, however, because of a ruling by the international Amateur Athletic Federation in 1972 that only outdoor performances would qualify for world records.

Prefontaine will compete in the two-mile against the likes of Sulieman Nyambua of Tanzania, Chris Stewart of Great Britain and last year's winner Jim Crawford of the United States.

As a special attraction, three members of the Soviet Union team will compete. They are Yevgeniy Arzhanov, 800-meter silver medalist from Munich; Soviet pole vault record holder Yruiy Isakov and high jumper Valentin Gavrilov.

Miller, Mantle agree to golf tourney

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Former baseball slugger Mickey Mantle and golf star Johnny Miller will play in the Amana VIP golf tournament Monday, June 24.

Lou King, a vice president of Amana Refrigeration, Inc., said Thursday baseball Hall of Famer Mantle and U.S. Open champion Miller will compete in the 18-hole tourney over the University of Iowa's Finkbine course. King said golfing great Gary Player also is expected to play in the one-day meet.

In all, 36 big name pro golfers are invited to play in the tourney, King said. DeWitt Weaver Jr., won the Amana VIP last year.

China looks near certain for Montreal

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — China almost certainly will take part in the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games as a result of a decision this week by the executive board of the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The decision itself was a minor one but it represented a complete about face for the IOC over the China question and left Chinese athletes with only two hurdles to clear on their way to Montreal.

The IOC decided not to withdraw its patronage from the Asian Games in Tehran in September even though the Asian Games Federation has expelled Taiwan, which is an IOC member, and invited China, which is not.

Normally the IOC would have had no choice in the matter according to its own rules but thanks to a technicality and some smooth talking from its president, Lord Killanin, the problem was circumvented.

Killanin gave an idea of which direction the IOC was headed when he said the IOC should "look ahead and be realistic while at the same time stick to its principles."

But the IOC executive board is determined that China should join as soon as possible, according to well-placed sources, and that could mean that China might be voted into the Olympics at the next full IOC session in October in Vienna.

Before China can participate in the Olympics, it has to do two things —become federated to at least five international sports federations and then form its own National Olympic Committee.

There is no question the Chinese are keen to compete.

"Wherever I go," says Killanin, "the Chinese ambassador wants to see me. I have to explain that it is not really my job to see ambassadors here, there and everywhere.'

A recent check showed China only needed to belong to one more federation to be able to form its own National Olympic Committee according to the IOC rules.

A great deal, however, will then depend upon the Chinese application to join the IOC. Until now the All-China Sports Federation has indicated it will only join the Olympic movement if Taiwan is expelled or competes as a province of China, which, given the present political situation, is a nonstarter.

Soccer next dynasty for UCLA sports

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Outside of UCLA his name isn't as well known as John Wooden's. But Dennis Storer's record is almost as impressive.

In the seven years that the 41-year-old native of England has directed the UCLA soccer club, his teams sport a 108-9-8 record, the best college soccer mark in the country.

They've been in the playoffs every year and have finished as runner-up to powerful St. Louis University three of the past four years.

"We've surprised ourselves," said Storer, who is working on his doctorate in physical education and also coaches the equally tough UCLA rugby team (17-0 the past two seasons).

The soccer program at UCLA started as a club with mostly foreign students participating, but with the incredibly rapid growth of the sport in Southern California, Storer now need only look as far as Torrance to find All-America talent.

"We couldn't recruit a genuine prospect before 1968 or '69," he said. "But now the talent is here in California and America. We're now getting American players who can compete with foreign players.

"Until now we've had a low key successful program. Now we want to see it grow."

Six of the Uclans' first 12 players this past season were local products. Storer has his eyes on two area high school players, Peter Frederikson of West Torrance High School and Jim Allen of South Torrance High, both prep All-Americans.

UCLA defenseman Jose Lopez was the first player selected in the Jan. 23 North American Soccer League draft. He and teammate Efren Herrera, a place kicker on the Bruin football squad, were picked by the newly formed Los Angeles Aztecs.

St. Louis University has used domestic talent nurtured in the Catholic Youth Organization program to establish its dynasty. And other schools, Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, also draw on the CYO talent pool.

Storer notes that some 35,000 youngsters are in Southern California programs run by the American Youth Soccer Organization and the California Youth Soccer Organization and he feels a different style is developing here.

"The quick, aggressive style in St. Louis is used at all levels because of the widespread influence of the CYO program," Storer said. "It's a simple style which stresses physical conditioning, short passing and running.

"In Southern California, the style developing is based on the large number of ethnic backgrounds in the area. Technical skill is emphasized."

In addition to the influence of a large Spanish-American population in Southern California, the British "brain drain," which brought many engineers here seeking jobs in the aircraft industry, has contributed to the explosion of the youth soccer program.

The coaches are foreign born but the players are native Americans.

Unlike its basketball counterpart in the UCLA athletic department, few Bruin backers expected the soccer team to advance as far as it has in the past four years.

"We weren't supposed to get to the finals. But the time is right for a different style," he said.

The American sports scene had best prepare itself for a UCLA dynasty in still another sport because the wheels are turning in Southern California.

PRICES SPIRAL — Led by big increases in food and fuel, wholesale prices surged upward by 3.5 per cent in January — second fastest monthly rate in 27 years — the Department of Labor reported. About 70 per cent of the increase was due to higher prices for fuels, farm products and processed food. Wholesale prices have now increased nearly 21 per cent over 1973, the biggest 12-month rise on record.

Managing inter-continental hotel chain has monumental problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — Would you be offended if you walked into the dining room of a swank hotel in the tropics and found all the waiters and even the maitre d'hotel barefoot?

Although this question has been settled in favor of shoes for the present it still arouses uneasy feelings in Henry Ogden Barbour, vice president of manpower development of Pan American Airways' Inter-Continental Hotel chain which has 62 hotels in 42 countries.

The barefoot waiter problem came up at the Tahara InterContinental in Tahiti and at several of the company's luxury hotels in African and Asian countries where the populace normally goes barefoot.

"I didn't think we had much right to make the workers wear shoes, and I thought the bare feet added a touch of local color,' says Barbour, who formerly was director of Michigan State University's school of hotel and restaurant management. "But our hotel managers, who are mostly Swiss or French, disagreed. They insisted our hotels have a civilizing mission and that civilization includes shoes. I still have my fingers crossed."

Barbour encounters many bizarre problems in recruiting hotel workers in some foreign countries. In Karachi and in the Philiippines when he advertised for maids most of those who applied were college graduates. But when they showed up on the job they wanted to sit around the corridors all day in their smart uniforms while the personal maids they had brought with them did the work.

Inter-Continental refused to go along with that. "Some of the college graduates promptly quit but most decided physical work wasn't so demeaning after all," Barbour said.

The most perplexing problem turned up in Moslem countries. "Various local Moslem sects have different customs regarding household service," Barbor explained. "In some areas it is considered improper for an unmarried maid to make a bed for a married couple. This forced us to hire either married women or boys as chambermaids."

Languate variations also keep Barbour and his assistants busy making adjustments. "In countries where English is the international language, you have to train workers to recognize the differences in meanings between British, American and Australian English," he said. "And most Americans are surprised to learn that in the vast Spanish speaking world, the variations are even more numerous. We have to cope with them all."

Calendar differences also can cause trouble, he said. "Strange as it may seem, the 365-day lunar year is not standard throughout the world. The island of Bali, a tourist paradise, operates on a 242-day year—six of their years make four of ours, roughly speaking— and they have about 47 holidays, some of which last several days. It's a personnel manager's Inferno."

Worker sensitivity problems in America are almost nonexistent compared to those in some of the developing countries, Barbour said. "The newly militant nationalism in these lands makes workers inclined to resent any job involving personal service, and since the colonial powers pulled out there's been less training for such service,' he said.

Barbour said there is an equal reluctance on the part of workers in these lands to assume supervisory posts. "They are afraid they will be criticized as being toadies of Europeans and Americans," he explained. "This makes training a good staff quite difficult sometimes."

Since this attitude is particularly prevalent in Moslem countries, Barbour said he has been reading the Koran.

Japan doctor wants change in adoptions

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese doctor is waging a campaign to change Japan's adoption laws and save the lives of thousands of infants who might otherwise be aborted.

But the changes he seeks could destroy the entire family registration system in Japan, according to the government.

For about 10 years Dr. Noboru Kikuta, an obstetrician in Ishinomaki, a small port city in northern Honshu, has been arranging for adopted babies to be falsely registered as the natural children of their foster parents.

His reason was that the Japanese family registration system now requires the name of an illegitimate child to be recorded in the family register of the unmarried mother, making the birth a public fact and possibly ruining the woman's chances to start a new life.

Family registration certificates are widely used in Japanese society on such occasions as entering school, starting a new job or getting married.

Babies killed

"Many unmarried women would rather have an abortion or even kill the baby after birth than live with that stigma," Kikuta said.

More than 700,000 women have legal abortions in Japan every year. An estimated 800,000 to one million more have illegal ones.

In 1972, 142 babies under one year of age were killed by their mothers, according to Japan's national police.

Kikuta's actions first hit the public eye last April when he advertised in a local newspaper for foster parents for a newborn boy.

He was investigated by the police for violation of the medical practitioner's law and the penal code, although no action was taken against him because of his humanitarian motives.

Committee formed

Later he was subpoenaed to testify before the Diet's (Parliament) Upper House Judiciary.

Kikuta explained his views on adoption further in a book called "Watashi Niwa Korosenai" (I Cannot Kill) published last October.

The book inspired a small group of people in Tokyo to form a "Committee to Press for the Enactment of a Special Adoption Law." Members are now seeking signatures from passersby in city streets throughout Japan in support of a new law.

Their goal is 120,000 signatures by the end of March. So far they have collected 32,000.

Dr. Takao Nakagawa, a law professor at Tokyo's Meiji Gakuin University and a member of the committee, has drafted a new adoption law that would give the family courts the right to permit adoptions and to classify the birth and adoption records semipermanently in order to keep them secret.

Foster parents or adopted children upon reaching the age of 20 would be able to see the records with the court's permission.

"The new law would also help parents wishing to adopt a child," Nakagawa said. "Because they are currently required to enter the adopted child in their family register with the designation 'adopted,' they often fear a traumatic psychological blow to the child if he suddenly discovers his status at an early age."

Stars, Stripes have taken a lot of punishment lately

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Stars and Stripes, supposedly an object of universal respect since Betsy Ross mythically stitched it together in 1776, has been taking a lot of punishment in recent years.

The flag has been used by all manner of protestors against war or some other government policy. Numerous flag burnings have occurred. One objector was charged with blowing his nose on the flag. Another draped it obscenely in an art gallery. And still others sewed it on the seat of their pants.

These irritated citizens have run into state laws against defacing the flag or treating it with contempt. All states have many statutes.

The upshot has been some very sticky cases in the Supreme Court. In general the issue is whether the protester, in using the national symbol to dramatize his concern, is exercising his First Amendment right of free speech and therefore is protected from prosecution.

The court had a chance to establish some guidelines n 1969 in a flag burning case from New York City, but did not do so.

Sidney Street, listening to a radio in his Brooklyn apartment on June 6, 1966, heard that civil rights leader James Meredith had been shot by a sniper in Mississippi.

Saying to himself, "They didn't protect him," Street removed his American flag from a drawer, carried it to the corner of St. James Place and Lafayette Avenue and burned it. He was heard to say, "We don't need no damn flag."

Street was convicted under New York's statute making it a misdemeanor to "publicly mutilate, deface, defile, or defy, trample upon or cast contempt upon either by words or act" any U.S. flag.

The Supreme Court reversed the conviction on the ground Street may have been found guilty partly on the basis of what he said. The opinion by the late Justice John M. Harlan said a conviction cannot rest on utterances, "however distasteful," which the Constitution protects.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, now retired, deplored this disposition of the appeal. He said everyone connected with the case understood the issue to be whether the deliberate act of burning an American flag in public as a "protest" may be punished, and people on all sides of the question have a right to know where they stand.

Power to protect flag

Warren said he felt both the states and the federal government have power 'to protect the flag from acts of desecration and disgrace."

In 1971 the high court upheld the conviction of Stephen Radich, a New York City art dealer, for exhibiting the flag at his Madison Avenue gallery "in the form of the male sexual organ." But in affirming by a 4 to 4 tie, the court did not deal with the constitutionalitp of the state law.

The problem still would not go away. And this term the high court's docket lists seven flag cases from Texas, Connecticut, Washington, Massachusetts, Iowa, Illinois and— again—New York.

The nine justices already have heard arguments on the conviction in Leominister, Mass., of Valerie Goguen who had a cloth flag affixed to the seat of his pants. He drew six months in prison.

The 1st U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston struck down the Massachusetts flag law as encompassing constitutionally protected activity and so vague in its language as not to warn people they are violating it.

The Circuit Court, in an opinion by Chief Judge Frank M. Coffin, harked back to one of the Supreme Court's most celebrated cases of this kind. In 1943 the justices reversed an earlier position and ruled that school children cannot be compelled to pledge allegiance to the flag. The suit was brought by some Jehovah's Witnesses, who said the salute ran counter to their religion.

Speaking for the court, the late Justice Robert H. Jackson said, "There is no doubt that, in connection with the pledges, the flag salute is a form of utterance. Symbolism is a primitive but effective way of communicating ideas ...Associated with many of these symbols are appropriate gestures of acceptance or respect; a salute, a bowed or bared head, a bended knee. A person gets from a symbol the meaning he puts into it, and what is one man's comfort and inspiration is another's jest and scorn."

Then he wrote what has come to be one of the most quoted passages in any Supreme Court opinion in modern times:

"If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein. If there are any circumstances which permit an exception, they do not now occur to us."

Peace symbol on flag

These passages will be in the forefront of the justices' thinking when they rule on the cases before them.

An appeal accepted but not yet heard concerns the conviction of a Seattle man, Harold O. Spence, for flying from his apartment window an American flag with a peace symbol imposed on it. He was fined $75 and the Washington Supreme Court affirmed the conviction.

Other cases have been appealed by:

—Three young women, then teen-agers, who were fined $100 and put on probation for a year for setting a small flag on fire in Rock Island, Ill., because it was literally dirty and also "it was dirty with blood from Southeast Asia and blood from the students that were killed at Kent State."

Both sides appeal

—A one-time University of Iowa student, Patricia M. Farrell, fined $50 in Iowa City for burning a flag during a campus demonstration against the Vietnam War.

—A former Rice University student, Glenn E. Van Slyke, who drew an eight-year suspended sentence in Houston following testimony that he blew his nose on the flag, rubbed his genitals on it and set it on fire at a protest rally against President Nixon's decision to invade Cambodia in 1970. He denied the first two charges and contended he did not know the material was a flag.

— Connecticut prosecutors from a decision by a U.S. District court in Hartford in favor of William P. Thoms, who sued as a representative of a group who wanted to use the flag to register their discontent. He specifically wanted to fashion a vest from a flag to protest U.S. foreign policy. The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals declared the law in its present form unconstitutionally vague and overbroad.

The 2nd Circuit also struck down the New York law in the case of antiwar demonstrators on Long Island who wore and passed out emblems which looked like the flag with a superimposed peace symbol.

Expert says U.S., Russia hold mortgage in Mideast

LONDON (UPI) — A top Western defense expert says the United States and Soviet Union have acquired "a virtual mortgage" on Arabs and Israelis, making a new Middle East war unlikely without superpower support.

Brig. Kenneth Hunt, deputy director of the International Institute for Strategic Studies, says the two superpowers have also achieved increased political leverage on the Middle East nations.

Hunt, in the current issue of the authoritative institute's magazine, Survival, said the complexity of equipment used in the 1973 Middle East War taught both sides the importance of superpower support.

"This dependence has effectively given the Soviet Union and the United States, if they wish to exercize it, a virtual mortgage on their clients," he said. "The scope for political leverage by the two superpowers has been much increased."

Hunt, in his study, said the achievements of Arab armies in the October war have forced Israel to re-examine its reliance on military superiority for its security.

He said the war has led to greater Israeli acceptance of U.N.-policed demilitarized zones as a way to prevent any future, surprise attacks.

The defense expert said Western weapon systems emerged very well "on the whole" from the Middle East War—with one possible exception.

He said American-supplied Phantom and Skyhawk jets were superior to Soviet MIGs, the British Centurion tanks outgunned Soviet T-55 and T62s. He expressed new respect, however, for Soviet air defense systems.

"The SA6 (Soviet-made ground-to-air missile) system is clearly formidable," he said. "The concept of providing a local air umbrella for land forces with ground systems has been shown to be practical.'

He said the war has taught military men to be wary of extreme dependence on tanks and warplanes in combat. He said the tank was not ready yet for the scrap heap, but in future wars it would have to be used in conjunction with missiles.

A good driver hard to find

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The Police Department's drive to find the city's best drivers has been a flop.

In five months officers could only find two drivers who qualified-one was outside the city limits.

"From now on, instead of looking for a safe driver every month, we'll look for one periodically," Police Capt. Ken Pulver said Wednesday.

Parakeet hangovers are helped by honey

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: On the mornings-after, I give our parakeet, Pedro, a drop of honey. It seems to perk him up. My husband, who has taught Pedro to like hot rum drinks as much as he does, says it is a waste of time and honey, that it doesn't help hangovers. Am I wrong? — F.S.

Dear F.S.: Your husband's wrong: (a) for allowing the demon rum to get a hold on poor Pedro parakeet and (b) for scoffing at honey as a hangover helper, which it is. The best cure though and certainly the one for Pedro is to find your husband another drinking partner.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Having had puppies before, I am aware of how they pick up and swallow things, but Melody is our first kitten. She chews on all sorts of strange things and swallows them, too. Is this common in kittens? How do you know what things are safe for her to swallow and what aren't? —W.L

Dear W.L:. While kittens are less avid chewers and gulpers than puppies, they can and do get into trouble in this way. Particularly hazardous for kittens — and cats too — is string, thread (with or without heedle) or similar objects which may be played with and finally inadvertently swallowed.

Remember the projections on the cat's tongue point backward. Because it is so difficult to spit against these projections which tend to force anything in the mouth down the throat, a feline tends to swallow whatever is already in its mouth. It is generally easier than coughing it up. Most cat owners are not aware that thread and similar long objects are much more dangerous to the cat, and more likely to cause intestinal obstruction or perforation, than would seemingly more dangerous objects as, for example, a small piece of glass or a tack. (Best bet, of course,is to keep ANY potentially hazardous material or object out of range of any kitten's testing-tasting tongue.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mittles is a fugitive from a laboratory. He is surprisingly friendly and, I am sure, is going to make a great pet. How can I tell if he is a hooded rat or not? —C.B.a

Der C.B.: Albino strains have pink eyes and are larger than the hooded strains, which have black eyes. (Most laboratory rats are of either albino or hooded extraction.)

Tab for litterbugs exceeds $200,000

SANTA FE,N. M. (UPI) — Litterbugs cost the state of New Mexico more than $200,000 in 1972.

The State Highway Department said that was the cost of picking up trash over 10.1 million acres of New Mexico's total area.

Traffic deaths set S.F. mark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) The National Automobile Club reports that 1973 saw the highest number of traffic deaths for the first six months of any year.

Traffic deaths in 1973 numbered 26,500, the club says.

Sullins-Green

Miss Diana Green and David Sullins exchanged wedding vows in an afternoon ceremony at the First Southern Baptist Church of Chino.

The Rev. David R. Thompson performed the single-ring rites which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison of Chino and the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Tuttle of Pomona.

The bride's floor-length gown was designed with a skirt of lace covered with organza. The fitted bodice was designed of cotton lace. A Juliet cap held her three-tiered veil of illusion.

Miss Beth Maxwell was maid of honor. Stan Sullins was best man.

A reception at the Morrison home honored the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullins are residing in Pomona.

The First Christian Chruch was the setting for the marriage of Miss Christy Lynn Arbaugh and Dennis Hudson.

The daughter of Mrs. Peggy Arbaugh of Pomona and Roger Arbaugh of Mississippi was given in marriage by her parents.

The groom is the son of Jack Hudson and Mrs. Mary Hudson, both of Ontario.

The bride wore a gown of white organza with appliqued lace on the bodice and outlining the high neckline and short sleeves. Matching lace trimmed her bouffant veil which was held by a bandeau of lace.

Miss Nancy Klekner was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Paula Hicks, Miss Tina Remington and Mrs. Tom Phillips.

Family camping preparations should be done in advance

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Families who plan to go camping on weekends or vacation this spring and summer will start having to plan ahead now because of the gasoline shortages.

Most campers are resigned, at this time, to going no farther than a tank of gasoline will take them —no more than 100 miles from home.

Thus, the first order of business will be determining how many campgrounds are located within this distance. This may be done by consulting Rand McNally or Woodall campground guides or other periodicals which offer these services.

Rand McNally and Woodall guides indicate whether reservations are accepted. This is very important because camping families must make sure they will have guaranteed camping sites.

Some campgrounds are open all year. Others close down during the winter months. If an all-year campground is situated within the 100-mile radius, the camper should begin making inquiries now, not next week.

Other campgrounds are generally opened around March. The leading campground guides publish opening and closing dates, so the camper should get his request for reservations into the mail in time to reach the camp on the first day the office is open.

Offer suggestions

Energy tips given by children

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fifth and sixth graders know confusing and amusing ways to save electricity and gasoline.

Another student from the Burton Heights School said:

"When Nixon comes on television, we turn off the set."

From the Holt School in Durham, N.C., student Suzanne Lorenzo wrote:

"My father sometimes makes us eat in the dark.

"You have to be home by then."

The town also saves energy by not starting school until 9:15 a.m.—"after it is light outside."

If there is a sixth grader in your family or in the neighborhood, you will know that these 10- and 11-year-olds have strange senses of humor. So you will accept with a grain of salt what Lance Smith of Camas, Wash., had to say about his experience during the energy shortage.

"My little brother got saved," he wrote. "When I stuck him in the mixer, the power shut off."

His kid brother may not be completely safe. Lance added:

"Oh, well—better luck next time."

Another sixth grader, Jeff Hopkins, of Lindsay School, Bay City, Mich., has a unique approach to saving energy.

"I don't dirty as many clothes to save on elecrticity with the washer and dryer. When I get my pants wet from the snow, I hang them to dry in the basement."

Lots of children recommend using crystal radios instead of the kind using electricity. Some use battery-operated ones for the same reason.

Some suggestions are puzzling. Sample:

"Cook your meat in the dishwasher while you wash your dishes at home." That is from a fifth grader in Chatham, N.J.

Randy Warm of Guardian Angels School in Chaska, Minn., said maybe racing should be cut out since "it takes a big amount of gasoline." He also thinks "heated football fields" use too much electricity.

A family in Minnesota, said a girl called Jill, saves this way:

"My dad picks up orders at the pizza parlor with his snowmobile."

Lisa Coghill of Durham, N.C. has some ideas for her neighborhood. She wrote:

"The people in my neighborhood could save by letting all the kids play outside, instead of in the house. We could carpool. We should have two bus stops per street."

Some children thought the gasoline shortage has some good points. Consider:

—"It will make people less greedy."

—"It will make people help each other."

—"Some rich people won't be acting so selfish."

—"We'll be riding horses again and they don't pollute."

—"What's good is people staying home with their families and not going on so many rides through the country. This way you have fewer accidents."

—"With everything reduced we might go back to the horse."

New beauty look

Each season has its own

Although no one today wants to be a carbon copy of anyone else, each season has its own special looks — amusing ideas and changes which are what looking beautiful is all about. The element of surprise — daring to change one's hairstyle drastically or trying a totally different eye makeup — that's what beauty and individuality mean today. Pablo, Elizabeth Arden's famed creative director, has compiled the following quiz to help women determine what the big looks for Spring '74 and how they can make sense for a particular lifestyle. The idea isn't to abandon everything that one does today just because it isn't in, but to pick and choose and incorporate what's appealing into a newer, fresher look.

Q. Powder is making a comeback.

True— False—

A. TRUE. Not since the days when Daisy Buchanan powdered her nose at a speakeasy has powder been so important. Powder evens out skin texture, refines the pores and adds color. The newest ones called Glow Powders provide subtle gleam and mellow color.

Q. Foundation should be used to create a velvety look.

True— False—

A. TRUE. Today foundation should be a believable second skin. It must provide moisture enriched coverage and a natural contemporary look.

Q. Bright color is in for Spring.

True— False—

A. TRUE. Pablo sees Spring '74 as a season of color. Not harsh, flashy color but the kind of soft feminine shades that make a woman look her prettiest. "Peach and apricot are two of the most flattering shades a woman can wear. I see them used not just on lips and cheeks but extended to the eyes. This creates a monochromatic landscape for the face which is very elegant.'

Q. Heavy liner and thick long lashes help frame the eye.

True— False—

A. FALSE. Liner is important because it adds shape and definition to most eyes but should be applied with a light touch and always within the contour of the eye. Lashes can add to a makeup but only if they are shorter than a womans own lashes.

A'. For a new look eyes can be out lined with color.

True— False—

A. TRUE. Although dark black liner is becoming a thing of the past a pretty idea is to add shape and definition to the eye with a colored pencil in blue, green, or plum. Use it on both upper and lower.

Q. The newest Spring colors are clear, clean, and slightly lighter.

True — False—

A. TRUE. Color is definitely swinging back towards the lighter shades, not the powdery, sugared pastels of the 60s but clean, true tones.

Q. Dark penciled-in brows add character to a face.

True— False—

A. FALSE. Use pencils creatively and with a light touch to shape brows. Most women need less brow color, not more. Choose a neutral tone and apply brow color with feathery strokes.

Q. Every lip that's in fashion needs two colors.

True— False—

A. TRUE. The perfect lip makeup is created by outlining first with a dark shade of pencil, then filling in with lipstick.

Q. The best color for a blusher is pink or orange.

True—False—

A. FALSE. A woman should blush naturally with the color of a real blush. "The prettiest tones are a rich burgundy or brown — after all, no one blushes like a melon," says Pablo.

Contest winners to be feted

Winners of the Youth Citizenship Awards contest will be introduced Thursday at the Soroptimist Club's luncheon meeting at Buffums' Palomares Room.

The awards program, sponsored by the Soroptimist Federation of the Americas, Inc., is not a scholarship but an award of merit. The awards presented each year are aimed at helping to give financial support to young people who intend to improve the quality of life in the world. In this country, the National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the Soroptimist youth Citizenship Awards program on its approved list of national contests and activities.

On the local level the first-place winner will receive a $100 Savings Bond, and the two runners-up will be awarded $50 bonds.

The winning entry will be sent on to the District 6 competition and the finalist there will be placed in competition at the regional level where the winner will receive $1,000. The regional winners will compete on a national level for an additional award of $1,500.

Local judges were Miss Virginia Covey, former director of elementary education for Pomona Unified School District; Mrs. Lenore Silvey, former executive director of San Antonio Council, Camp Fire Girls; and Miss Helen Rose, former principal of Kingsley Elementary School in Pomona. Mrs. Lucille Bucher was in charge of the contest for the Soroptimist Club.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Social drinking

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We've been married for 28 years, and my wife's "social drinking" has increased steadily over the past several years. I think she is verging on alcoholism. My wife has been a successful stockbroker for 20 years, and has always enjoyed her work. Our only child married four years ago and lives in another state. We both miss her, of course, but we each have an interesting job, outside activities, and a circle of friends we see regularly.

Our friends, too, have noticed my wife's drinking problem, and some of them seem to call us less often. My wife becomes redundant and somewhat boorish when drunk, as she invariably gets when we go out for dinner, whether alone or with others.

I know she doesn't drink at work but she starts at dinner, and always drinks on weekends. How can I help her?—D.P.

Dear D.P.: A person turns to alcoholism when his basic emotional needs are not being met. Alcohol becomes a retreat from painful reality, almost a return to the womb.

Usually, the alcoholic lacked a warm, loving relationship with his mother during infancy and childhood. As adults, some people make up for this early deprivation through compulsive oral activities, such as overeating, or chattering incessantly. These people are best off if their spouses are maternal and attentive. The alcholic is outwardly passive, inwardly demanding. He has not outgrown the oral fixations of childhood.

The combination of motherhood and a fulfilling career used to provide enough psychological support for your wife. Perhaps her job has grown less challenging over the years, and with the void created by your daughter's marriage and relocation, your wife now feels a craving for the sedation liquor provides. She is still able to control this craving at work, where the familiarity and responsibility of her job give her sufficient comfort and security.

After work, she exercises no self-restraint. She may feel she can take chances with you. Also, the approach or onset of the menopause creates a need for physical and psychological readjustment. Your wife may feel she is no longer attractive to you, or may imagine that you (or she) are disappointed that she can no longer bear children.

The escape alcohol provides your wife is offset by the disapproval of you and your friends. However, this disapproval also helps relieve the guilt by which your wife might otherwise be motivated to try to help herself.

The best help for your wife would be Alcoholics Anonymous, or professional psychotherapy, or a combination of both. She should first have a physical check-up. Then, with a great deal of love and encouragement from you, she will discover the strength to seek psychiatric help, and an A.A. program, to bolster her emotional health, and to learn to control her drinking.

Consolidation of ports held waste of time

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The proposed consolidation of the ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles was termed a waste of time this week as the City Council's Industry and Transportation Committee reviewed the audit recommendations.

The merger was proposed in a management audit of the Harbor Department, made by City Administrative Officer C. Erwin Piper.

"You can't deal with Long Beach from a weak standpoint," said Councilman John Gibson, "and they are sure stronger than we are."

The report came under immediate attack when it was released recently. Three commissioners said they were opposed to the idea and Mayor Tom Bradley claimed it was a city policy matter.

The committee postponed further study of the matter until Donald A. Walsh, acting general manager of the Harbor Department, reports on the audit.

Walsh promised a point by point answer to Piper's audit in about three weeks.

Raquel Welch coming in second TV special

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The country's premier glamour girl is Raquel Welch and she will be on display at her dazzling, sexiest best next month in her second television special.

But the girl behind the beautiful face and breath-taking curves hopes to prove she's more than just another sensuous body.

"I promised myself I would never do another special after the first one," the brunette charmer said during lunch the other day. "But my first night club act in Las Vegas last year convinced me I could do some things as an entertainer that I hadn't done before.

"I could play Vegas three or four times a year, but I'd rather have more people see me all at once on television."

Raquel has been studying singing and dancing for years, but movie makers aren't producing musicals anymore. The only place left for a girl to demonstrate those talents is on the tube or in a club.

"In my Las Vegas act I poked fun at myself and this business of being a sex image," Raquel said. "And I've adopted that as part of the television show. If I don't take the glamour girl image seriously maybe other people will stop thinkng of me in that light.

"I've made 24 pictures since 1966 and I'm finally getting away from playing roles in which I'm only part of the scenery.

"Fortunately, this modern environment allows me to kid myself and to work toward being a well-rounded performer and human being. Other sex symbols in the past haven't been so lucky.

"Not that I've managed to convince everybody either. There are still lots of sneers about pretty girls not being very bright.

"But I'm surviving it. A few years ago I would have been limited to playing glamour girls. But some of my films have been more serious. I'm not intimidated on the set anymore.

"I consider myself a good actress. I have contributions to make. I still listen, but I use my own judgment, too."

There won't be any serious moments on "Really, Raquel" (CBS-TV March 8) but there will be highlights of her film career, including "One Million B.C." and an eye-opening costume from "Myra Breckinridge."

The long-legged beauty might not have been comfortable making fun of the sex kitten Raquel Welch a couple of years ago. That's the only person she thought existed under that delicious epidermis.

"For years I didn't know how to handle that sex image," she said. "I tried to live up to it professionally and it didn't work. And personally I saw people react with great disappointment because I didn't come on stronger—you know, with a whip in each hand or something.

"But that's no longer a problem for me. If people are troubled because I'm not as sexy as they think I should be, that's THEIR problem. Not mine."

Chances are Raquel will escape the disasters suffered by sex queens of the past: Marilyn Monroe, Jayne Mansfield and a series of living drunks and drug cases who once posed in lingerie and bikinis.

"I've walked away from my career for a time to set my values," Raquel explained. "My children are the big difference. The two of them are the most important thing in my life.

"Some glamour girls are afraid children ruin their image or figure or take too much time from their careers. Well, I love the obligations of motherhood.

"They also are a reminder to me that if I go down the drain, I'd be taking other people with me. That's a big consideration in the way you live your life. And I'm living my life as much for them as I am myself."

Metal residues are recovered

ALBANY, Ore. (UPI) — Chemists of the Bureau of Mines' research center have demonstrated it is possible to recover copper and tin from residues of municipal incinerators.

The chemists say the techniques they have developed will permit recovery of valuable and possibly strategic needed metals and these impurity metals can be removed from the ferrous scrap being recycled by the steel industry.

Echeverria en Europa

Italia apoya el programa de Echeverria

ROMA — Esta semana, Italia ha prometido ayudar a mantener vinculos mas allegados en tre Mexico y el European Common Market y por la proposicion hecha por Mexico de un Estatuto de Obligaciones y Derechos Economicos de las Naciones.

Esta promesa salio a la vista en una comunicacion oficial al terminarse el lunes la visita oficial que el Prsidente de Mexico Lic. Luis Echeverria hizo a esta ciudad.

El Presidente Echeverria salio de Venecia por la via aerea con destino a Viena, su excursion a Europa incluiria visitas de estado a Italia, Austria, Alemania Occidental y Yugoeslavia.

La conferencia con el Santo Padre fue considerada de gran importanica en Mexico, puesto que es la primera vez en la historia de Mexico que un presidente de esta nacion catolica haya tenido una entrevista con el Sumo Pontifice.

Desde que el Presidente Benito Juarez declaro la separacion de la iglesia y el gobierno hace mas de 100 amos, Mexico y el Vaticano no han tenido relaciones diplomaticas. El Lic. Echeverria manifesto que el resultado de esta conferencia no cambiara esta situacion.

Antes de principiar su gira, el Lic. Echeverria dijo que el buscaria el apoyo de los catolicos de todo el mundo para su Estatuto de Obligaciones.

Este documento fue endorsado por UNCTAD durante la junta celebrada hace tres anos en Chile y propone que todas las naciones consientan a una serie de reglas en sus relacinnes economicas entre las naciones—una cedula o cartilla de derechos economicos.

La comunicacion emitada aqui dice que el Presidente Echeverria y los lideres italianos, incluyendo el Presidente Giovanni Leone, "estuvieron de acuerdo que era de desearse que las platicas para consolidar la paz y la armonia mundial deberian de tomar lugar no solamente entre las naciones mas poderosas."

"Una participacion en las decisiones y, sobre todo, un esfuerzo unanime de todos los gobiernos, poderosos y debiles, es indispensable para llenar las deficiencias que separan a las naciones mas pobres de las mas adelantadas, deficiencias que estan a la raiz de la inconsistencia que afecta al mundo."

La comunicacion dijo que el Lic. Echeverria delineo su proposicion para una cartilla economica internacional y el Presdidente Leone "estuvo de acuerdo en la importancia de este documento, tambien por el proposito de renovar las relaciones economicas internacionales tan rapido como sea posible como un justo y adecuado fundamento."

El Presidente Echeverria a menudo a dicho que Mexico no es una nacion militar y una nacion muy poderosaa, pero como otros paises, debe hacerse oir a traves de la razon, justicia y cooperacion.

El Presidente de Mexico dijo que buscaria apoyo para esta Cartilla durante su gira por los diferentes paises europeos que visitara, Alemania Occidental, Italia, Austria y Yogeoes-lavia-paises que tienen bastante importancia en la opinion mundial—tanto como que las relaciones entre naciones progresen.

Al solicitar aprovacion pra su gira, el Lic. Echeverria dijo al Congreso que el conflicto del Medio Oriente, los problemas mundiales de energia electrica, etc., y la crisis monetaria "demuestran que la estabilidad y el bienestar de aun las naciones mas avanzadas tecnicamente estan en peligro por la falta de reglas para la cooperacion economica internacional."

El Sr. Lic. Echeverria opina que al adoptar su propuesta Cartilla, que ya ha recibido apoyo de cien diferentes paises, sera un paso adelante para obtener paz duradera y normalizar el comercio internacional.

By TOM UHLENBROCK

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — My little sister is dead of a heroin overdose.

She snorted almost a gram of the white powder and her respiratory system couldn't handle the load. Her body was found in her convertible, which had been abandoned on a deadend St. Louis County road.

Police found her curled as if asleep in the back seat, covered by my father's old Navy blanket. Her dog, Red, a sickly Irish setter she had raised from a pup, was with her in the car.

I was talking on the phone when the operator interrupted with an emergency call from my older brother, Jerry.

Images of Jodi

My mind jammed with images of the gangly red-haired girl who emerged after 22 years as the sweetest and loveliest of young women.

Two days later, in bitter shock over the absurd events that caused my sister's death, I sat numbly in the funeral home and thought that Jodi would have loved the beautiful flowers being carried in.

After watching the mourners shuffle in to view her painted face, mumble rehearsed words of kindness and disappear, I knew what had killed my sister. I saw it especially in the grim faces of parents who stared into the casket fearfully imagining that they were seeing one of their own children.

Four years at Kirkwood High School had failed to steer Jodi toward any path by the time she was graduated in 1969. She tried modeling, but shied away from any attempts to highlight her striking figure, and then turned to a string of less glamorous part-time jobs.

She didn't need the money. If she got tired of the workday hassle, or a friend suggested a trip to the mountains, Jodi was free to fly. She had security at home.

Drug culture

When serving drinks as a waitress, or joining friends in the discovery of vices, Jodi was introduced to the American drug culture.

In Denver, she was caught in a sweep of the city's hippie section, and a jar of marijuana seeds and a mysterious white substance that proved to be a tooth powder cost my parents $1,500 and Jodi a weekend in jail.

Back in St. Louis, she was arrested again in a raid on a house near Babler Park. But the search proved illegal, charges were dropped and Jodi thought she saw it in black and white, the good guys in long hair and the bad guys in blue. But she missed the shades of gray. She had soured on the established rules and modes and joined those scurrying for an alternative.

Closets of expensive clothes gathered dust, her friends drove vans and pickups rather than the latest Detroit wonders, a trip to the country replaced a date at the movies.

Her parents didn't understand and she didn't know how to explain. It wasn't a lack of love but a lack of communication.

Worse than a camel

Both sides tried desperately. They agreed it was impossible to argue about an unknown, so a marijuana joint was passed around at a Sunday dinner. My grandfather said it tasted worse than a Camel.

As she matured, Jodi realized she had to find a niche in life to be truly independent. She was given an automobile—to find steady work—and she upheld her end of the bargain.

Things were nearing harmony; arguments turned to discussions. My mother was hurt when Jodi chose to spend Thanksgiving at a friend's grandparents. Perhaps for atonement, Jodi ate dinner at home Friday and promised to attend a party to announce Jerry's engagement.

But in the midst of last minute party preparations Saturday afternoon, a phone call from the Humane Society began the nightmare. They had Jodi's dog, but Red was always with Jodi and had no identification tags. What had happened?

Two detectives knocked on the door with the answer.

"We're sorry"

"Your daughter is at St. Louis County Hospital. She's ... she's dead," they told my mother.

"You mean she's hurt. She's not dead. She's hurt. Did you see her? Does she look like this picture?"

After a frantic drive to the hospital, Mom pushed aside two restraining morgue attendants and screamed a plea to view the body. Her beautiful daughter lay beneath the sheet—two front teeth chipped, the right side of her face swollen, blood caked in her hair, nose and mouth. She lay in the fetal position, her hands curled into grotesque claws near her chest.

The autopsy found heroin, a derivative of morphine, in her blood. There were no needle marks on her body. The powder apparently had been sniffed through a nostril, and the lack of inflammation and burns indicated it had not been a regular practice.

"Heroin can be fatal in very small doses. When it's snorted it doesn't take much," said Dr. George Ganter, St. Louis County Medical Examiner.

Jodi was seldom depressed; she never knew the real cruelties that push so many into the harder drugs.

Addicts say they turn to heroin because of a low tolerance to the everyday pain and frustration of life. But if Jodi ever suffered from such pain, she was a stoic in concealing it.

What happened the night Jodi died is still being pieced together from the varying versions.

She had told her closest friend she planned to go to Mike's house—Mike was a young man she dated—to drink Harvey Wallbangers (a mixed drink). Mike said she arrived with a short white man with an Afro known only as Danny G. Two other couples were there.

According to the accounts the group gave police, Danny G. poured a short strip of heroin on a saucer. Jodi was the only one to snort it. She passed out and they revived her by putting her in cold water. Her face was injured when she fell against the side of the bathtub. Hoping she would sleep it off, they laid her in a bed and there she died.

All this took place four blocks from St. Joseph Hospital.

The people with Jodi panicked. Mike's roommate, Kevin, came home and they decided to get the body out of the house. With Mike following in his white van, Kevin drove Jodi's car out to where it was found. There my little sister and her friends were separated.

Detective Lt. Harry Koenemann, whose own daughter grew up with Jodi, was not satisfied with the stories, but said, "unless we come up with a last name or street name for Danny we're just spinning our wheels."

By midweek, Lt. Koenemann had identified Danny G. but reported that Danny had left the St. Louis area and had not been arrested.

The others, he said, could be prosecuted only under some obscure law that makes it illegal to dump off a body.

No matter. Revenge might take the edge off the bitterness, but the hurt is indelible.

Of the outpourings of sympathy our family has received since Jodi's picture was in the newspapers, one note offers hope that something can be derived from our tragedy.

"Maybe we can look at her death as that of martyr and some other young person will remember her before falling into the same error," it said.

ABC cancels 'Sex Symbol'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Broadcasting Co. announced Friday it has canceled the March 5 showing of the television movie "The Sex Symbol."

ABC gave no explanation for cancellation of the film, whose plot closely follows events in the life of Marilyn Monroe.

"The Sex Symbol" starred Connie Stevens in the role of Kelly Williams, a famous Hollywood actress on the brink of suicide. The fictional actress is married to a professional football player and has an affair with a prominent political figure, ABC said.

The network did not say if the program would be aired at a later date.

"The postponement is a mystery to us," a spokesman for Screen Gems, which co-produced the film, said. "We are completely baffled by it."

Second car isn't needed at Franklin development

CHINO — Residents in Franklin Webster Square homes won't need a second car for shopping since a shopping center is within walking distance.

Children will also find elementary, junior high and senior high schools nearby, said Walker & Lee, sales agents.

The condominium project, constructed by Environmental Builders in Chino, has single level homes with three bedrooms, split level homes with two bedrooms and veranda level homes with three bedrooms. All have two bathrooms. The dining areas open to private patios.

Each home has its own service area for laundries. Washers and dryers are installed in some models.

The homes also have carpeting, air conditioning, forced air heating with automatic temperature controls, and cultured marble pullmans. Some master bedrooms have two wardrobe closets.

The exteriors are of Spanish architectural styling, surrounded by wide green belts and landscaped gardens. The recreation area includes a cabana, heated swimming pool, Jacuzzi and restroom facilities.

Exterior painting, yard and pool care are professionally done to leave owners time to enjoy their lesiure hours.

Prices range from $22,950 to $25,950. With conventional financing, down payments can be as low as 5 per cent.

Persons can reach the project from the Pomona Freeway by going south on Central Avenue to Riverside Drive, west to Telephone Road and then north to the entrance.

ELENORE GORITZ has joined the Rosa Schwartz Reality staff in Claremont after being issued a real estate salesman license. She and her husband, Tony, have two daughters. They have resided in Claremont since 1963 and are members of St. Ambrose Episcopal Church.

'Countryside' continues opening

CHINO — The Countryside, a residential community which drew a large crowd for its grand opening last week, will continue the premiere event today with "refreshments and all," said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California.

Prices for the one and two story structures range from $31,350 to $37,850. Homes have up to 1,982 square feet of living area and the lots have a minimum frontage of 75 feet.

"Interestingly, our dining rooms are also proving a strong sales factor," said Lewis. "This interest probably derives from a trend on the part of many builders merely to allow space for formal meals in place of a definable dining room."

The homes feature shag wall-to-wall carpeting, window drapes, self-cleaning ovens, ranges, dishwashers, disposal units, rear fencing, front lawn seeding and sprinklers.

The three and four bedroom homes also have two bathrooms. Kitchens have indoor-outdoor serving counters.

Persons can reach the homes from the Pomona Freeway by driving south on Ramona Avenue to Chino Avenue, west to Pipe Line Avenue, and south to the model homes.

Herbert Hawkins:

Single family home still good bargain

TEMPLE CITY — The single family home is one of the few bargains left in today's spiraling inflation, according to a survey by members of RELO-Inter-City Relocation Service.

He reported that home prices, nationwide, increased only 2.05 per cent over those in November 1972. This is considerably less than consumer indices for other goods and services, he added.

The increase was one of a number of positive indicators reported by RELO members in their first month survey for 1974.

"Our November 1973 survey indicates the transferee market is going strong and that a service such as RELO, since it provides painless house-hunting assistance, can do well in any economy," said Hawkins.

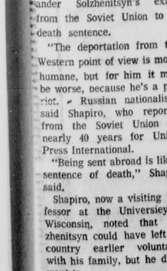
RELO members produced 51.8 per cent more referrals in November, 1973, than a year earlier. Sales dollar volume increased by 11.68 per cent during the same month and members sold 9.43 per cent more homes through the RELO referral network in November 1973 than in November 1972, he reported.

Herbert Hawkins Realtors, with 31 offices in Los Angeles and Orange counties, has been a RELO member since 1968.

Students stress social concerns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seventy per cent of college editors agree that big business ought to concern itself as much with social responsibility as with profits.

That is a principal finding of a poll conducted by Newsweek Inc. and the Associated Collegiate Press.



CHARLES CANFIELD

C. Canfield adds computer to service

POMONA — Investors Forum of Anaheim announces the appointment of Charles Canfield, president of Canfield Realtors, 747 E. Holt Ave., as an authorized correspondent for investors' computerized financial analysis system.

Canfield has been in business in Pomona for more than 20 years and is a past president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Canfield's sons, Charles Jr., and Robert, are active in the real estate business with their father. The senior Canfield said that the Investors Forum program will add consideable dimension to the services offered their commercial clients.

According to Canfield, the computerized program is proving a valuable decision tool for determining the financial aspect of a wide range of projects and establishing the basis for funding.

Athens women face prison over cards

ATHENS (UPI) — Eight women arrested for playing khoun-kan, a rummy-type card game, face up to two years in prison in accordance with a new law forbidding the game except in licensed casinos.

The women were arrested shortly after midnight Monday in an apartment in the residential district of Pangrati in Athens, police said.

The government said it banned the game, popular with housewives and male coffeehouse habitues alike, because it "wasted many hours" and led to "serious economic loss."

Shapiro labels deportation a death sentence

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Henry Shapiro, former dean of foreign correspondents in Moscow, has compared Alexander Solzhenitsyn's exile from the Soviet Union to a death sentence.

"The deportation from the Western point of view is more humane, but for him it may be worse, because he's a patriot. A Russian nationalist," said Shapiro, who reported from the Soviet Union for nearly 40 years for United Press International.

"Being sent abroad is like a sentence of death," Shapiro said.

Shapiro, now a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin, noted that Solzhenitsyn could have left the country earlier voluntarily with his family, but he didn't want to.

"He wants to go down fighting," Shapiro said.

Q: "We want a new home, but is this really a good year to get started?"

A: Yes. If you wait, it's going to cost you.

If you really want your new home, have it built now! Costs keep climbing. The home you want will cost more later.

NEW LOCATION — The Century 21-Whiting Co. has moved into this new office building at 544 E. Foothill Blvd. San Dimas, which had served as a continuation high school. The realty firm, owned by Jerry D. Whiting, was previously located at 319 N. San Dimas Ave.

Whiting Co. moves to new San Dimas office

SAN DIMAS — Century 21—The Whiting Co. Realtors has moved its offices from 319 N. San Dimas Ave. to 554 E. Foothill Blvd.

The firm, owned by Jerry D. Whiting, has been doing business in San Dimas and surrounding communities since 1967. Last March, it franchised with the Century 21 Real Estute corp.

The new office building has a history dating back to 1946 when the "Washington Apple Market" set up business on the premises with two refrigerated box cars for storing apples.

Later, the property was sold to an interior decorator. It was then sold and leased to the Bonita Unified School District which used it as a continuation high school.

Whiting has remodeled the structure into a real estate office. "We extend a welcome to you to visit our new office," said Whiting. The office is located west of San Dimas Canyon Road.

Creole, Cajun foods differ in seasoning

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) Visitors to Louisiana should take note that "Cajun and "Creole" foods are not the same, the Louisiana Tourist Commission says.

Creole cuisine has a more refined origin, having been started by aristocratic Europeans who often brought their chefs with them to America.

Cajun cookery began with French Acadian refugees who often liced far away from sources of imported ingredients and therefore had to make do with readily available seasonings, vegetables and meats.

Need for railway given impetus

By ERIC DOWD
London Financial Times—UPI

TORONTO—The sudden need for oil to replace supplies curtailed by Arab nations has given strong impetus to demands in Canada for construction of the world's most northerly railway.

The railway, as envisaged by experts and supported by the state-owned Canadian National Railways, would run from an existing railhead on the shores of Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories more than 1,200 miles to the resource-rich Canadian shores of the Arctic Ocean.

A further spur of 180 miles at the northern end would extend it to Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's north shore, now established as one of the biggest remaining sources of oil in North America.

The Canadian government has been considering the railway amoug several proposed alternative methods of moving the oil south and the suggestion for a railway is winning strong support for a number of reasons despite the impending construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

One concern is for the environment. Canadians have become worried about the effects which exploitation of their northern natural resources could have on land, wildlife and people. The Mackenzie River Valley, along most of which a railway or pipeline would pass, is the home of caribou, bear and many other furred animals, and the nesting ground of millions of geese, swans and other birds.

Most of the route also would be over permafrost, frozen soil which thaws and erodes rapidly when its thin covering layer of soil and vegetation is removed —a spade hole can turn into an eight-feet-deep trench within a few hours, and very little is known about the possible effects of thawing on a large scale.

For these reasons a proposal for a $6 billion natural gas pipeline along much the same route has already run into strong opposition, although it seems inevitable the Canadian government will approve an application for the gas pipeline, as the shortage of energy mounts in North America, within the next year.

A study made by the Canadian Institute of Guided Ground Transport at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., and Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, said a railway has a number of benefits over a pipeline for transportation of Arctic oil.

Oil flowing through a pipe would thaw the permafrost because the oil, unlike natural gas, would have to be transmitted at a temperature well above freezing point. The study also points out that the area has frequent earth tremors, which pose more problems for a pipeline than for a railway track.

The railway advocates are at their weakest point in dealing with possible damage to wildlife. But it is on economic grounds that they are making their biggest pitch. They estimate building the Arctic track would cost $1.5 billion; more than 40 bridges would have to be built, including two of three-quarters of a mile each across the Mackenzie River.

Advocates priesthood for women

Christ no male chauvinist, says nun for equal rights

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jesus Christ wasn't a male chauvinist, so male leaders of the Roman Catholic Church shouldn't be either, says an outspoken nun who wants women to become eligible for the priesthood.

Sister Albertus Magnus McGrath says the church should heed "the remarkable fairness and balance Jesus showed in dealing with women and His freedom to rise above the male chauvinism in His culture."

The remarks of the sister, a Dominican nun and chairman of the history department at Chicago's Rosary College, were made in an article published here recently in a nationally distributed Catholic magazine, the "St. Anthony Messenger."

Contending that "women should have an equal claim to the priesthood," she pointed out that Jesus preached and practiced "equality of treatment" for men and women. She said Jesus' "men-related miracles and parables were paralleled with regularity with miracles and parables relating to women."

"Christ loved women," she said. 'He befriended them, He cured them. He was served very intimately by women.

"I think He gave a kind of emancipation proclamation to Martha and to all women when He said, in effect, 'fine, housework's okay, but that's not the end and limit of your being. Mary has chosen the better part.' The better part is for the rest of us women too— which is not generally what we have been taught.

"I think that women are bound then to follow what Christ gave them," she added. "They must learn to be courageous enough to stand firm, to fight for recognition of their equal human dignity, their equal human worth, their equal right to follow the vocation to which they feel they are called in the church. I think for women not to do this is a betrayal of the dignity and the gifts that God gave them."

Lower interest rates found at Lewis Homes

UPLAND — Interest rates have been lowered to 7¾ths per cent for buyers at the Lewis-Homes Upland development.

"This new figure approximates 8 per cent annual percentage rate," said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California.

"The purchase price of our Upland homes remain undisturbed at a level established months ago, allaying fears expressed by some market analysts that lowered interest rates would be offset by higher price tags,' he added.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $31,350 to $37,840.

"We're going to hold to this price range as long as possible, despite the pressures of constantly increasing costs of materials and labor."

The development is located near Mountain Avenue and 15th Street. The homes feature shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces, garden kitchens and two full bathrooms.

These may be purchased on conventional terms. Immediate occupancy is available.

The doctor comments

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband died in April 1972. He was sick about six months and was 66 years old. He had atherosclerosis, generalized, coronary arteries, and the brain.

He also had gall baldder and prostate gland surgery. He recovered from both operations. He kept losing strength, especially in the legs. He was not able to walk after about the third month. His death certificate said the cause of death was renal failure. However, the autopsy stated the case was amyloidosis. Would you explain this to me?

DEAR READER — Your husband had a real difficult time, as you know. He also had a fairly rare disease.

The death certificat and the autopsy report are consistent. Amyloidosis is a process that sometimes develops in the course of a chronic, long standing illness. The amyloid is a mixture of starch and protein that forms inside body cells, particularly of the heart, spleen, liver and kidney. The amyloid material replaces the normal cell structure and these cells can no longer function. When an organ is full of amyloid it loses it function, and the symptoms are a result of that. When the heart is affected, the heart may fail. If the kidney is involved, the kidney (renal) functions fail.

So the amyloid deposits in your husband's kidneys caused gradual kidney failure. The doctors were correct in listing renal failure on the death certificate. By microscopic examination then the cause of the renal failure was proved to be from amyloid deposits.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We are interested in food and don't fill up on sweets or fats. Will you please tell us about popcorn? All ages seem to enjoy it.

DEAR READER — It's just dandy. If you don't put a lot of margarine or butter on it popcorn is a low calorie, very low fat snack. If you like a buttery flavor, you can salt it with artificial butter-flavored salt. What little fat popcorn contains naturally is mostly polyunstaurated fat. Just plain it is far superior to high fat dips, chips, nuts and most modern snack items. There was a time when people sat around the fire in the evening, read, munched on fresh apples and popcorn. People were healthier then, too.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had my tubes tied after three Caesarian pregnancies. Rescently I've been told that there is a chance they may come untied. Has this ever happened before?

DEAR READER — About the only sure method of birth control in a woman is removall of her uterus or the removal of both ovaries. Having your tubes tied really is an injury to the tubes. It is nature's way to try to heal any injury to the body. So it is that in rare cases the cut and tied tubes succeed in reuniting. Literally the body corrects the injury. I would like to add that this is very rare.

Handwriting expert helps solve criminal, civil cases

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Howard Hughes and the Zodiac killer, Communist activist Angela Davis and literary hoaxer Clifford Irving and convicted killer Juan Corona — despite their vast and obvious dissimilitrities — have one common but little known link.

Their handwriting has been studied by a tall, dignified man who, using a microscope, special chemicals and other equipment, has probed their telltale scrawls.

"Take any type crime in the penal code and any litigation in the civil court and you'll find I've been involved in it— divorce, murder, arson, almost anything," said Sherwood Morill, one of the nation's best known handwriting experts.

Morrill, who retired last December after 39 years with the California Identification and Investigation Bureau, has been in court—by his own count— more than 3,300 times.

An exact science

As he did for the state and continues to do today in private business, Morrill studies forged checks, phony deeds, wills and suicide notes, compares handwriting, makes typewriter comparisons and ink and paper analysis.

Morrill uses acetone and alcohol on ink to determine the use of different pens. Scaled and gridded glass plates under the microscope lens help him determine hidden writing traces and the microscope also helps him identify different pencil leads.

It is an exact science, Morrill said, and "I'm limited only if there is not sufficient evidence for comparison."

And it was Morrill who has been the handwriting expert in the baffling Zodiac murder case, checking nearly 10,000 different samples of handwriting for police. The unknown Zodiac has bragged in letters to newspapers of having killed 37 persons and police have linked Zodiac to six killings.

Challenging cases

He also identified Miss Davis' signature on the receipt for the gun used to kill a Marin County judge and he ascertained the identity of the writers in the Miss Davis-George Jackson love letters.

In addition, he linked the death list of murdered farm laborers to Juan Corona, and determined it was Edith Irving, Clifford's wife, who forged Hughes' signature in the infamous literary hoax.

Despite all the headline affairs, "I think the most challenging cases were those that never got any publicity," he said.

For example, he said, one case involved a farm worker whose employer thought he was being cheated. The worker was being paid by the number of baskets of fruit he picked, which was recorded on a punch card.

But instead of picking, the worker purchased a punch exactly like his employer's and collected large amounts of pay each day, until Morrill's microscope helped him spot the bogus punch holes.

"It's the little things like that that have been more interesting and intriguing," Morill said.

But by far the most baffling case he has ever encountered, Morrill said, is that of the Zodiac.

The Zodiac has bragged in his letters to newspapers that the 37 murders he says he has committed, all in California and dating back to 1968, are to provide him with "slaves" who will serve him in "paradise", according to some of his messages.

"It's still running about three or four samples a month," Morrill said of the number of handwriting samples authorities send him to check as Zodiac suspects. Altogether, he said, he has sifted through nearly 10,000 individual handwriting samples.

Obscene letters

"The Zodiac case is the most bizarre thing, the fact that he even wrote the letters and cryptograms that nobody's been able to decipher," Morrill said.

In addition to Zodiac samples, one of the most recurring requests Morrill has faced in his long career is tracing obscene letters. But, Morrill said, most are quickly solved.

Matter of Interpretation

Oil giants 'making out like bandits'--or strong recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oil profit reports for 1973 show the oil giants are either recovering from earlier doldrums or continuing to "make out like bandits" with fat profits—the interpretation depending upon the interpreter.

A look at the records of the biggest oil companies shows that some of them had a dip in their profit charts in 1972, and that 1973's upswing could be considered for them a strong recovery year.

Others, however, had a profit year that merely continued an upward trend of income in recent years.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who wants the law to force oil prices —and thus profits —down, said the profit figures were out of line.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said of oil companies' profits: "They're making out like bandits."

But Maurice F. Granville, chief executive officer of Texaco Inc., told an audience recently, with a look at his company's profits chart: "These income figures, both net and gross, are the highest the company has reported... in its history. Nevertheless, we consider this level of earnings to be yielding an inadequate return on our present investment."

The President of the American Petroleum Institute, Frank Ikard, takes the long view of oil profits. They are up he said, but "barely bring the industry back to the level of previous years." More important he added, they were not as much —expressed as a percentage return on investment —as some other industries competing for the investor's dollar.

The API said net income of the leading oil firms, expressed as percentage of their net worth, has averaged just under 12 per cent in the last 10 years, while the average for all manufacturing has been just over 12 per ent.

America's major oil companies are industrial giants by any standards. Standard and Poor's corporate data gives descriptive ratings that range from Exxon, "The world's largest petroleum enterprise," to Mobil—smallest of the majors in terms of 1972 gross operating income—which S&P says ranks among "the world's 10 largest industrial corporations."

Their gross earnings are huge. All have been billion-dollar concerns, in gross revenues, for years. Exxon's 1972 gross operating income was $20,309,753,000. Mobil, the smallest of the group by that measure, had operating income of $1.8 billion in 1972.

Exxon Corp. net income has risen steadily for several years —with one dip in the chart. In 1969, net income dropped somewhat, to $1.24 billion. But 1970 showed $1.31 billion, 1971 was $1.52 billion, and 1972 net income was $1,53 billion. The 1973 figure rose to $2.44 billion.

Texaco has had two drops in net income in the past few years. It totaled $819.65 million in 1968, and dipped to $769.8 million for the next year. But it rose again to $822.02 million in 1970 and for 1971 it was $903.87 million. For 1972, the net total dipped again, to $889.04 million. For 1973, it was $1.292,400,000.

Gulf Oil Corp. showed a net income peak of $626.32 million in 1968, which dropped to $610.56 million in 1969, and dipped to $550.37 million in 1970. The chart turned upward to $561.4 million for 1971, and net income for 1972 dropped again —to $447.0 million.

Standard Oil Co. of California showed increases in net income in every year of the past several—from $401.24 million in 1966 to $547.07 million in 1972. Its 1973 profit figure was $843.6 million.

Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) had one dip in its profit chart in the last several years—in 1969 its net was $321.03 million, but that dipped to $314.02 million for 1970, then started another rise, with $340.63 million for 1971 and $374.74 million in 1972. The 1973 net income for Amoco was $511.2 million.

Mobil Oil Corp. showed steadily rising net income in recent years, from $356.11 million in 1966 to $574.2 million for 1972, The 1973 profit figure was $842.8 million.

Atlantic Richfield had a peak of sorts in 1969, with net income that year of $230.1 million, which dropped in 1970 to $209.5 million. Then in 1971, the rise began again, with $210.53 million. For 1972, it dropped to $192.52 million. The 1973 profit for ARCO was $270.2 million.

Phillips Petroleum Co., net income reached one peak of $164.02 million in 1967 and then began a slide that reached a low in 1970 of $119.88 million. The next year, it rose to $132.32 million, and in 1972 totaled $148.43 million. That was the highest in five years. For 1973, the company reported net income of $230.4 million.

Shell Oil Co., net income peaked at $312.09 million in 1968, and declined the next two years. Then it rose somewhat— from $237.21 million in 1970 to $244.5 million in 1971 and then $260.48 million in 1972. The 1973 profit was reported at 332.7 million.

Ford confirms addition of 2 new compacts

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. President Lee A. Iacocca has confirmed the automaker will introduce two new compact cars this fall that "will satisfy the demand for improved fuel economy."

He used the occasion of the launching of small car production at the suburban Wayne assembly plant to confirm that new cars will be added to the Ford stable.

Iacocca said the two small luxury cars have not been named yet. They are now known under the code name "Maverick X."

"The essence of these new car is luxury in a small size," he said. "Like the Mustang, these cars will start a whole new class of cars.

"The cars will combine timeless styling and interior elegance," he said. "Although smaller, there will be no compromise of comfort or convenience."

Hearst neighbors express sympathy

By DIANE CURTIS

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (UPI) — A neighbor of the Randolph A. Hearsts Thursday told of the sympathy and concern felt by residents of this exclusive area who have been too timid to tell the Hearsts personally.

"I have not gone up to the Hearst house to say anything because I didn't want to interfere," said a housewife and mother of three who asked to remain unidentified. "And although other neighbors have not gone up either, there is certainly a good deal of heartfelt thinking they (the Hearsts) aren't aware of. It's so hard to put this into words. We're just all so very concerned."

The woman said that the transformation of the neighborhood from a quiet, residential into a bustling thoroughfare with pay phones lining the street and newsmen hovering around the Hearst home day and night did not upset her.

"As far as the cars and newsmen," she said, "they're of little significance if the problem is solved. I just wish we could do more."

Other neighbors issued similar sentiments.

"The commotion isn't disturbing at all. We're just concerned for Patty's safety. I hope it all works out for the best."

And from a man coming outside to pick up his mail: "The newsmen don't really bother us, but sometimes we just want to hear good news. We understand what's going on."

A patrolman on the block said he was there to slow down traffic and to see that the street didn't become blocked.

He said the department hadn't received many complaints but some persons had said reporters left papers around the area and were speeding.

"When they're going for deadlines, they go too damn' fast. But everybody has been good as far as cooperation—you might say it's a joint effort."

The officer said Hillsborough had received such attention because of visiting celebrities before "but this is the most unusual. It's a tragic and pathetic situation."

He pointed to a two-story mansion with a long driveway. "The Duke and Duchess of Windsor had dinner there once."

The home was the residence of Mrs. Andre de Limur. Mrs. de Limur was out of town but her cook, Rosario Paez, said her employer had telephoned from Florida to make sure offers of aid were made to the Hearsts and newsmen.

"The house is overcrowded so we told them to send people over to us to sleep." Ms. Paez also said they had offered use of phones and the house to reporters and had told members of the Hearst household they wanted to do anything they could to help.

Priests told to refuse 'exorcisms'

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Virginia priests have been told to refuse requests for exorcisms, since most persons who think they are possessed actually are facing "demons of their own making."

Pitt issued the warning in an attempt to head off a rash of requests for exorcisms as the controversial film, "The Exorcist," opens in Richmond.

Pitt said priests will encounter persons claiming demonic possession, but who actually are "facing demons of their own making." He said many who think they are possessed by the devil simply psych themselves into a state of frenzy.

"There is frequently need of psychotherapy to alleviate the threat of true schizophrenia and paranoid delusions of true insanity, ' he said.

Pitt issued guidelines for all priests to follow if they find persons complaining of possession, and he said Christians must combat "the dark forces" of social injustice and "the malice and bitterness that afflict personal lives."

Brontosaurus drive aimed at cleaning up Czech environment

PRAGUE (UPI) — The Brontosaurus, a reptile that exterminated its own species 200 million years ago, is being used to warn young Czechs and Slovaks not to do likewise.

Its picture has appeared in the Communist Party youth newspaper Mlada Fronta and other youth magazines.

"Action Brontosaurus is aimed at creating a generation more conscious of its environment and teaching young people how to cope with environmental problems," Miroslav Martish, secretary of the Brontosaurus Organization Committee, said.

As a first step, Martish said, young people will be enlisted to help scientists pinpoint polluted areas.

Many Helpers

Communist Party Pioneer and Spark youth groups will collect moss and snow samples from all parts of Czechoslovakia. These will be sent to botanical institutes for study.

"No research institute in the world will have so many helpers," Martish said. "The results will be a rough map of air pollution throughout the country."

In the second stage of Operation Brontosaurus young people will observe several species of wild life. Their observations will be passed on to scientists.

Virgin wilderness

Nepotism

The United States Post Office Department was created by the Continental Congress in 1775 and Benjamin Franklin was appointed postmaster general. Franklin readily admitted he accepted the low-paid job because it enabled him to place his relatives on the payroll and to deliver his newspaper free—the Department's first franking privilege.

Born in Boston

The first official mail system in the United States began in Boston in 1639. The general court of the Massachusetts Colony ruled that "all letters which are brought from beyond the seas, or are to be sent thither," should be left at the home of one Richard Fairbanks. Postmaster Fairbanks collected a penny for each letter he forwarded to its destination.

Senator wants stronger party organization

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., often a political maverick, wants to see strong party organizations return to politics—even if it costs him his Senate seat.

Political leaders must exercise more control, he told UPI in an interview, if Democrats and Republicans alike are to prevent rich campaigners from buying nominations and self-righteous activists from controlling conventions.

Case criticized the campaign tactics of supporters of Sen. George McGovern's 1972 Democratic presidential bid, as well as "the over-idealistic idea of an open primary."

Case acknowledged that his uncharacteristic stand belied his reputation as an independent who often votes with the Democratic majority and who has won accolades from organized labor through the years.

"Perhaps it should cost me my seat if I want to be out of line on certain matters," Case said.

Urges financing reforms

Case, 69, long has been identified with the Eastern liberal bloc in the Republican Party. At the 1968 GOP convention, he went so far as to refuse to release delegates committed to him as a favorite son, even after Richard M. Nixon had locked up the nomination.

Nevertheless, he said the party political leadership must be stronger, and he feels campaign financing reforms might help.

In the past, Case said, candidates either had to be wealthy or "had to sell their souls" to get party nominations.

Case said the Republican party, worried about voter apathy stemming from the Watergate scandals and rocked by cries for impeachment of its president, "will pull itself out of things."

"The two party system will survive," Case said. "The longer range problems are more troublesome."

Open primary unsatisfactory

Disintegration of strong party leadership was at the top of his list.

"Any rich guy can thumb his nose on the party in the primary," Case said. He gave three examples—Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio; Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, a Democrat; and former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a Republican and long a political ally.

He said he was "not a slavish party guy" but added, "a party ought to have more to say about the candidates if they are to be held responsible."

The party, he said, "ought to...be able to determine major questions, major candidacies."

An open primary, Case said, "isn't satisfactory. There has to be leadership."

Things too loose

"I am concerned that things have gotten too loose as far as political authority," he added, pointing specifically to the 1972 McGovern bid and the 1968 effort of former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn.

Ironically, Case was bitterly opposed to the Vietnam War, the hallmark of both the McGovern and McCarthy campaigns. But he said their campaigns were "not a constructive force."

"It sounds like I'm not for idealism," Case said, "but operations of this kind get at it in the wrong way.

He said the McGovern and McCarthy campaigns took "too narrow" an approach, something he said the GOP also has been guilty of.

"One problem with the McGovernites is they didn't realize this," he said, pointing to the ouster of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley as a delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Daley's shabby treatment

"I'm not for corruption or petty tyrants," he said, but added he believed Daley received "shabby treatment" at the hands of McGovern delegates.

"They were more ruthless than he would have been in similar circumstances," Case said. "They have a quality I don't like —self-righteousness."

Case said he has tried occasionally to influence GOP political activity, especially in New Jersey, but without real success.

"The simple truth is that a member of the Senate just doesn't have those elements that go into organization authority," he said. "Jobs are what they (local and state political organizations) are interested in, and that's all."

Policeman's son gives dad lesson

They were walking down Oxford's main street when Martyn pointed at a red car and said, "Look, that's the car that was stolen from our neighborhood," The boy was right. He had memorized the car's license number.

Nature gives notice when you cough

NEW YORK (UPI) — No simple cough that hangs on should be simply glossed over as cigarette cough, says the Health Insurance Institute.

"Cigarettes can cause you to cough and when they do it is nature's warning that your respiratory system is being irritated," says the Institute. See?

Replace in pairs

Shock absorbers on a car should always be replaced in pairs; that is, both front or both rear, say auto experts. Replacing only one shock will throw the suspension out of balance.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Persons in the United States over 65 years of age received a record of nearly $470 million in insurance company health insurance benefits last year.

Date fails to show up

By JEAN ADAMS

RETURN: (Q.) I met Jerry summer-before-last in a driver education class. We got to be friends. Then he moved away but promised to write. I wrote him three times but never got a letter from him. So I forget him.

Last week he called me. He was back and wanted a date next day, which was Saturday. I said yes, but he didn't show up Saturday. He did not call to explain why and he has not called since.

How can I find out if he really likes me or just wants to be friends? — In the Dark in Indiana.

(A.) Some boys aren't reliable. They make promises or dates and don't keep them. Jerry seems to be one of those boys. Don't expect too much of him either as a boy friend or just a friend.

SOMEONE ELSE: (Q.) I have never been out with a guy. Please don't conclude that I am unattractive, or need mouthwash, or am a recluse.

I don't have my heart set on anyone specific. I do not want a boy just for the sake of having a boy friend. I want somebody I can talk to and really be close to.

There aren't any boys in my class who look very hot to me. My question is how do I meet some other boys, one of whom might be the one I need? — 16 in Pennsylvania.

(A.) There are older boys in your school, and younger ones too. You can meet some of the choicer ones by getting into activities other than class work. These include theatricals, music, sports, hobbies, speech, science, library work, handicrafts.

Your school probably has these and-or several other extracurricular projects for exceptional students, and you seem to be exceptional. Also, your church probably has teen activity too. Whatever you choose, make friends. Somewhere there is a boy you can and will like.

Spirit of adventure lives on

Longest canoe trip over

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Five lean and sunburned young Canadians proved man's spirit of adventure still lives by finishing a 6,312-mile canoe trip Friday that took them from the wilderness of Canada to the foot of Canal Street in New Orleans.

They braved frostbite, a blizzard below St. Louis, Mo., that dumped 14 inches of snow on them and the tricky and risky current of the Mississippi River in high-water stage. The river caused a collision with a dredge pipe that capsized one of their canoes.

Rick Kemp, who thought up the idea of the $5,500 trip that took two years to plan, was the leader of the group, which included Angus Somerville, Mike O'Donnell, John Blair and Leonard Anderson, plus a golden retriever, Mardi.

"I think the moral of the whole thing is that if you really want something, and if you want something bad enough you'll get it," Kemp said.

"We had to sacrifice a lot. We had to sacrifice real good paying jobs to make this trip and sold all of our stuff. What we own right now is in these three canoes."

O'Donnell, who had a blond beard, said he was happy to see the trip finished. "It's something I've always wanted to do. I'm really happy and proud we got through. I guess it's just that when you try to do that one thing in your life where you really prove yourself to yourself, it's important."

The party, in what was believed to be the longest inland canoe trip on record in North America, traversed the North Saskatchewan River, the Winnipeg River, the Rainey and the Mississippi rivers and numerous lakes in Canada.

O'Donnell, describing the satisfaction he found in canoeing, said, "I've seen things that the average person never would, like a family of ducks whose mother took off with a broken wing act to fly all over the river to try to draw us away from her young."

All five, along with Mardi, were presented certificates naming them citizens of New Orleans. Kemp read a proclamation from the mayor of Edmonton and presented an Edmonton flag to the mayor of New Orleans. About four dozen mayors along the route had signed their proclamation, which will be enshrined in the group's hometown.

The canoeists plan to issue a documentary film and a book based on their experiences in the eight-and-a-half-month voyage.

French are asking, Who's running shop?

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

French foreign policy, particularly as it concerns the United States, pursues a course which frequently appears more de Gaulle than the late President de Gaulle himself. But at home Frenchmen are beginning to ask, "who is running the store?"

It was pure de Gaulle when at the world energy conference in Washington, French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert persisted in his position that U.S. proposals toward solving the energy crisis simply were a trick aimed at reducing Europe and Japan to the role of junior partners in a world ruled by the super powers.

Without coming up with concrete suggestions of his own, the ascerbic Frenchman has been equally critical of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace moves in the Middle East.

But whatever the government course in foreign affairs, it is at home that the average Frenchman feels himself adrift in a sea of confusion.

Concerning him more than the grandeur of France are his worries over galloping inflation and the quality of life itself.

Within the Gaullist party which has ruled France for nearly 16 years he sees deep divisions. Workers, shopkeepers and other small businessmen have expressed their discontent in a series of strikes and shutdowns. There are charges of corruption in high places.

He has become increasingly aloof. Mystery surrounds the real state of his health.

Of it he has declared irritably, "My health is my affair."

But it also is the affair of all Frenchmen.

Unofficially, French spokesmen attribute the puffiness of his face to cortisone which he takes to relieve painful arthritis.

Others, however, speculate that he suffers from multiple myeloma, a disease of the bone marrow. Cortisone also is used in its treatment.

Whatever it is, Pompidou is accused of letting the country drift dangerously while decisions are put off.

Out of it has come demands for the resignation of Premier Pierre Mesmer and a scramble among those who would succeed Pompidou.

Among Gaullists, the most attractive appears to be Jacques Chaban-Delmas, prime minister until July, 1972, when Pompidou suddenly replaced him with Mesmer.

It was disclosed that for three years before becoming premier he had paid no taxes because of tax loopholes.

A man believed to be Pompidou's choice is Finance Minister Valery Giscard D'Estaing who is not a Gaullist at all.

Former POW, a reluctant hero, likes his new life

By PATRICK A. MALONE

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — A year ago, Air Force Maj. Charles G. Boyd squatted in a cramped prison cell halfway across the globe, choking down rotten food and enduring a constant barrage of propaganda against his homeland.

Chuck Boyd since has come to grips with being a reluctant hero who never again will pilot a fighter jet. He also has adapted to shocking changes that occurred in his native land while he was a prisoner of war.

Boyd, his tall frame draped over an immaculate white lounge chair as the sun set majestically over the Kansas prairie, tilted his head back and softly said:

"I am more content now than I think I have ever been."

Boyd, whose "Diary of a POW" was carried by UPI last spring after his release by the North Vietnamese, has emerged from his cauldron of changes with a new sense of dedication to his country. He also has an urgent desire to blend in with his new environment and shed the often uncomfortable role of a former POW.

"This whole business of being a returning prisoner of war can become a profession if you allow it to," Boyd said in an interview last week in his split level home five miles west of Lawrence, where he is working on a master's degree at the University of Kansas.

His hands groping to put shape to his words, the handsome, tanned career officer tried to explain the frustration of thanking the thousands of people who wore his POW bracelet while trying at the same time to move beyond the identity of an ex-POW.

"I received thousands of letters from people who were so emotionally involved in me," he said, his voice tightening. "These letters were just an outpouring of how happy we are that you made it home. Well what do you say? What can I do to repay you for this tremendous support you have given me?

"So I found it very difficult when people wanted to see me, or have me give a speech...or just touch you, find out what you look like...I found it very difficult to say no.

"And once you give a few speeches the word gets around and pretty soon everybody's trying to get you to give speeches. Well you can sort of get caught up in this thing and become a prisoner all over again of a different sort—a prisoner to the people. Pretty soon your life is no longer your own."

Last July Boyd started a difficult retreat, and when calls came to give speeches or appear at a banquet he gently but firmly said no.

"This happened to virtually everybody to one degree or another. Most of the guys did pretty much what I did," he said. "At a certain point they said:

"Thanks an awful lot for your support but I've got to get back to work. I've got to get back to being just another guy. I don't want to go around in a parade for the rest of my life.'"

Boyd is pleased with the relative smoothness of his adjustment to the multitude of changes in America since he was shot down in April, 1966, and to the blizzard of events that made up 1973 after his return Feb. 12.

"I think the medical people and the psychiatric people got a little bit carried away. I think they lost sight of the fact that if we survived at all up there, we were pretty damn well adjusted human beings.

"The very fact that we were able to adapt to a prison environment, which in terms of cultural shock was a hell of a lot more dramatic than anything else we're liable to experience—and the adaptation process back into our culture, while significant, was nothing like that."

He admitted to going through a panicky period where he felt "I've got to somehow catch up, I've got to learn everything that happened in the last seven years. But suddenly I realized it's impossible. I had to come to grips sooner or later with the fact that those seven years are in fact lost."

Boyd's years in prison saw his boyhood dream of being a fighter pilot lost. He developed beri-beri, a vitamin deficiency disease, while at one camp and suffered permanent eye damage.

Independents may play vital role in oil crisis

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor.....

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone assumes that major oil companies are the keys to the western world's ability to unlock the Arab hold on oil supplies. But that's not necessarily so.

Lean, hungry, independent oil exploration companies, virtually unknown outside the industry, traditionally have played important roles in finding new oil. They may again in this crisis. Wildcatters, now numbering about 10,000, have uncovered such lucrative domestic fields as Drake in Titusville in Pennsylvania, Kern River and Midway-Sunset in California, Dad Joiner and Spindletop in Texas.

Today, with domestic basins running thin and the U.S. auction system of awarding concessions favoring companies with heavy bankrolls, the independents are heading for the jungles, the icy wastelands and the stormy seas of the world in search of another big one. What companies like Pan Ocean Oil Corp. of New York, Hamilton Brothers of Denver, Buttes Gas and Oil of Oakland, Calif., and Bow Valley and Ranger Oil, both of Calgary, Alta., lack in money and manpower they make up for in flexibility, willingness to explore and drill quickly and their ability to establish rapport with emerging nations straddling potentially rich oil basins.

Pan Ocean, operating with a four man staff in New York and in existence less than five years, already has working interests in 93.2 million gross acres in major sedimentary basins in or offshore of 21 countries. That's a bigger acreage position in the major basins than some of the major companies have. And Pan Ocean already has made interesting finds in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea, the jungles of Nigeria and off Abu Dhabi in the Persian Gulf.

Stanley Rawn Jr., chief executive of Pan Ocean, looks and sounds like a successful banker. His conservative suit is carefully pressed and the dark tie fits snugly into the white shirt. He weighs every word before answering questions.

But that's just the facade Rawn and men like him operate behind as they battle daily with the "Seven Sisters" for the liquid gold locked up around the world. Executives of independent companies have to be part shark, party pussy cat, part scientist, part gambler, part diplomat, part CIA agent.

"Sure, it's tough competing against all that money and organization," said Rawn. "But we have our edges, too. We can promise to start exploration quicker because the majors often are tied down or not interested at that moment. Some of them, especially developing nations, also are more comfortable with a small company like Pan Ocean than a major which can be bigger than the country itself."

Rawn emphasized that he wasn't "rapping" the majors. "We work with them all the time," he said. "We've had or have partnerships with Getty, Atlantic Richfield, Gulf, Shell, Esso and Amerada Hess."

How and why did Pan Ocean stake out such vast holdings so quickly?

"We decided to look for giant oil fields, the elephant fields, and agreed the primary opportunities were overseas," said Rawn who was born in Duluth, got his M.S. from the California Institute of Technology and worked with Chevron Research and Deerfield Oil Corp. "In the United States, rights are awarded on the basis of cash bonuses, and that rules out most independents. Besides, we found that we could get attractive areas around the world without laying down $5 million or $10 million in bonuses that we'd rather use for exploration. Once you've shown the technical and financial capabilities, the countries involved are willing to take a chance, sometimes giving you cut-rate prices because they want to get on with it. But sometimes, I must admit, you have to be willing to gamble, and there is some luck involved."

Pan Ocean's gamble in Nigeria paid off Oct. 9, 1973, with a find testing better than 8,000 barrels per day. It had gained exploration rights in Nigeria in mid-1970 by acquiring a smaller company which held a prospecting license due to expire Dec. 31 that year and had applied for new license areas. No seismic work had been done because a war was being fought over the Biafran land involved.

Pan Ocean requested an extension to the license period and got only polite shrugs. Several government officials did indicate, unofficially, that it might be possible if Pan Ocean got cracking on a seismic program.

Even though it had nothing in writing and Nigeria was in a volatile state at the time, Pan Ocean decided to gamble. F. William Popp, executive vice president in charge of Pan Ocean's London office which coordinates overseas operations and, prior to that, president of Amoco-Norway, subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, told his men to get going. Two top seismologists—Dr. Hans Lohman and Dr. James Rees, 20 years with Shell—gathered up a crew and by the end of 1970 had shot more than $300,000 worth of seismic soundings in the territory. That impressed the Nigerians to the extent that they extended the license for two years without further negotiations.

Then came some disappointments. More than $500,000 was spent on a 10-mile road leading from the Niger River to a jungle site seismic soundings indicated had potential. The first exploratory well, commenced in December, 1971, found gas sands. It was abandoned because there is no market for gas in Nigeria. A second well drilled in 1972 also hit gas. Gloom spread around the Pan Ocean board room.

It lifted in August of 1971 when the Nigerian government granted Pan Ocean rights on License Area 71. An extensive seismic program was started across the southern portion of the 248,000-acre area during 1972 even though two major oil companies—Shell-BP and Tenneco—had explored there and given up after one dry hole apiece.

"Our seismic equipment was more sophisticated than they had used," explained Rawn. 'It indicated we had a chance if we went below 9,000 feet and we trusted our findings."

The Ogharefe No. 1 was spudded in on March 19, 1973. At 9,500 feet, surface instruments detected gas. At 11,182 feet the first of a series of high-pressure oil sands were encountered. When the drill bit first entered the top of this sand, the drilling fluid blew out of the hole and the well began flowing oil and gas at high rates. The well was plugged near the bottom and a deviated hole begun. It eventually reached a depth of 12,519 feet on July 25. Tests showed a flow of more than 8,000 barrels of oil per day.

"We need pipelines before beginning production, and it makes no sense to build a line until you know the scope of a find," said Rawn. "We'll probably begin satellite drilling the first of March to see exactly what we have."

If that drilling confirms a major field, a developmental program costing some $50 million will be organized to bring the oil to market.

Pan Ocean got its stake in the rich North Sea field by buying out the Pentagon company which Rawn once headed and which had won exploration rights in 1965 when Angus MacKenzie of Pentagon and one of his partners flew to Oslo and refused to take "no" for an answer.

"They didn't know a soul in the government," said Rawn, "but they kept knocking on ministers' doors and telling their story. And they got a block for about $30,000 in the area where Mobil paid about $23 million for similar rights."

Seven years later, on Sept. 21, 1972, Pan Ocean's foresight in acquiring Pentagon paid dividends. The Pan Ocean-Petronord group hit gas and some oil in the Heimdall Well on Block 25-4 in the Norwegian sector. A gas-bearing formation in the upper horizon of the well had been found the month before.

Pan Ocean-Petronord is convinced it has a major gas discovery but still isn't certain whether it has oil in commercial quantities. It now is testing around the strike zone to determine the scope and nature of the field.

In the oil-rich Persian Gulf basins, Pan Ocean has 31.5 per cent of the working rights on a 778,000-acre tract. Last December it discovered high-gravity, low-sulfur oil in Arzanah No. 1 well 30 miles off Abu Dhabi. Tests indicated a flow of 4,000 barrels per day, and a second hole is being drilled to confirm and evaluate the field.

A CIA-type operation helped Pan Ocean win concession rights on 10 million acres in East China waters claimed by Okinawa. It all started, according to Rawn, when he got a call from a Japanese executive who asked if he were interested in such acreage. Rawn was. Could he be in Honolulu the following day? He could and was.

There were two major problems. An ancient mining law in Okinawa required companies applying for hydrocarbon rights to make separate applications for each 700 acres and include four hand-drawn maps with each application. A Japanese company already had prepared applications and maps but was sitting on them...it didn't want to take the $100,000 required to send them via registered mail from that year's budget.

With great secrecy, Pan Ocean hired 45 Japanese clerks who worked 18 hours a day to prepare more than 50,000 maps. Maps and applications were moved by trucks into Naha, Okinawa. On Dec. 1, 1969, Pan Ocean literally took over the Naha post office for the day to register and mail the applications and maps.

"We got it because the other company sat on their maps," said Rawn.

Declining to mention names "for obvious reasons," Rawn told how his company wedged into one major basin simply because the developing country felt more comfortable dealing with a smaller company.

The government man, indicating that the major company didn't know what it wanted, said, "Okay, we'll take your good-intention check of $25,000 and you have the concessions. Besides, we feel better dealing with someone our own size."

U.S. investors switching from paper to gold, silver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Worried by the shrinking value of paper currency, disillusioned by the performance of the stock market, more and more Americans fearful of their financial future are investing in gold and silver.

Preferably gold if they can afford it—in the form of coins.

The United States and Russia are the only nations whose nationals cannot own gold bullion, and many Americans have been under the misapprehension that they could not own gold coins after the United States went off the gold standard in 1934. Not so.

There always has been a good trade among numismatists —coin collectors—in gold coins, although the law forbade importing foreign gold coins minted after 1933. Last December the U. S. Treasury moved the cut-off date up to 1960.

This gave explosive impetus to a gold rush that already had been in high gear since the world monetary crisis of 1971 resulted in the devaluation of the dollar. More than 200 new coin retailing firms have sprung up across the country in the past few years to serve some 10 million coin collectors. Sales in 1973 totalled $500 million, of which gold coins accounted for $125 million.

Business tripled

Perera Fifth Ave., Inc., a component of an old-line foreign money exchange firm, opened a numismatic division at Rockefeller Center a year ago and has tripled its business in the past six months. It had to move to larger offices to accommodate the flow of customers.

"The bulk of our business is in gold and silver coins to people who just want to own the metal," said Les Fox, Perera's collectible coins expert. "But we are beginning to sell more rare coins as our customers become more sophisticated. Rare coins must be held two to 10 years to get the most out of the market."

Buyers who buy only for metal purchase non-rare "common date" coins in bulk and hold on to them for fairly quick resale at a profit. U.S. silver coins minted before the debasement of silver currency with copper in 1965 are sold in 55-pound bags for more than $2,400. Most transactions are on margin with the purchaser paying 25 per cent down and the remainder carried as a loan.

Silver prices have doubled in the past year. The silver dime is now worth 30 cents. A rise of one-cent in the bullion price of silver means a $7 jump in the value of a bag of coins.

Gold coins cannot be purchased on margin. Fox said the most popular of the "common date" gold coins are mint condition (noncirculated) Austrian 100-kroners, Mexican 50-pesos, and the Brit-Double Eagles, and the British Gold Sovereign.

"New collectors should be warned that circulated coins are worth about 20 per cent of the value of mint condition coins," Fox said. "And you have to watch out for counterfeits. There are tons of counterfeit U. S. $1 gold pieces around. An authentic one brings $100 to $300 because they are scarcer than the Double Eagles."

The Double Eagle, which sold for $70 in 1971, has a market value of more than $225 to $230 today. This represents a 77 per cent premium above the coin's actual content of gold. But, even so, the value of "common date" coins is closely tied in their ups and downs to the seesaw of the bullion market. That is why rare coins are a wiser, though more expensive, buy, according to Fox.

Dr. Franz Pick, publisher of Pick's World Currency Report, calculated a 132 per cent increase in the average value of rare gold coins in 1973, and as much as 225 per cent in some individual cases.

"As far as I'm concerned, an investment in rare metals is the only real investment you can make," Pick said. "Why even the Kennedy 50 cent piece of 1964 is bringing $4."

Stack's Coin Co., in New York, which has the nation's largest coin auction business, sold nearly $6 million worth of coins last year, more than doubling its 1972 volume. It is virtually rationing rare coins to its customers, but partner Benjamin Stack is not completely happy.

Reckless buying

"People are buying recklessly today," he said. "There are an awful lot of counterfeit gold coins of European and Far Eastern origin on the market, and the boom has attracted a lot of unscrupulous people into the business. Most of the counterfeits are of common date coins, obvious to the knowledgeable. Unfortunately, the ignorant buy without asking questions."

Commercial exhibitions are important sources for collectors, and more than 60 are scheduled nationwide in February and March. Almost all big cities have coin auctions. A $50 U.S. territorial gold coin minted in 1855 and sold for $16,000 in 1962 is expected to bring more than $100,000 at a New York auction in March.

Could the gold and silver coin "bubble" burst? Henry Weissblatt, the gold coin specialist for Mocatta Metals Corp., a leading wholesale dealer, doesn't think so, at least in the case of rare coins.

"Bubbles burst when large amounts of holdings are dumped on the market—when there are more sellers than buyers," he said. "There are no large holdings of rare coins to be dumped, just individual collections. In a bad recession some collectors may liquidate, but there always are people around with money who are looking for rare coins as a safe investment."

Stock market sluggish--- and inactive

By LEE MITGANG
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a week of indecision and inactivity on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was barely changed — down 0.08 to 820.32. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index declined 0.06 to 92.27, and the NYSE Index dropped 0.20 to 49.33.

Losers narrowly outnumbered gainers, 906 to 804, among the 1,973 issues traded.

With turnover averaging barely 12 million shares a day, sales for the week totaled 61,718,200 shares, compared with 63,555,760 the week before, and with 85,294,950 the year earlier.

On Wednesday, Wall Street was a ghost town, with no one willing to commit new money as long as the Arab oil embargo and other uncertainties showed no signs of clearing. Volume that day came to 10.99 million shares, the lowest daily figure since last August.

LOSE A POUND A DAY AND MORE

Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss "while still eating almost as much as you want."

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that guickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderous benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

E-DIET AVAILABLE

To get a copy of this highly successful diet and E Tablets, send $5.00 for 10-day supply (or $7.00 for 20-day supply or $10.00 for 30-day supply) to: Vita-E Diet., Dept. D7, 11526 Burbank Bl., North Hollywood Cal. 91601 (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied). (Advertisement)

Deception in brand-name use criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charging that names like McDonald's Quarter Pounder, Hi-C fruit drinks and Wonder Bread "can and do mislead the public," Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., proposed legislation today to ban the use of deceptive brand names.

He said his bill is needed because the Federal Trade Commission "apparently has abandoned" its get-tough policy on false and misleading advertising and is showing "increasing tolerance of advertising abuses."

He said, too, his bill should be made law because "no amount of corrective advertising can overcome an impression about a product created by a well-advertised brand name."

The New York Democrat said brand names like the Quarter Pounder, Hi-C and Wonder Bread "can and do mislead the public as to a product's true performance capabilities, value, or quantity and quality of contents."

Rosenthal also cited as examples of products "potentially misleading to the consumer" Ultra Brite toothpaste, Compoz, 5-Day Deodorant Pads, Sleep-Eze and No-Doz.

"The performance capabilities of these and other grandiosely named products should be subject to strict requirements of proof," said Rosenthal, adding that this has not been done.

His bill, he said, would make the advertising of such names as Hi-C, Quarter Pounder, and Wonder Bread a violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act, unless the manufacturer could show his product lived up to its name.

The FTC recently rejected Rosenehal's complaints that McDonald's was guilty of false advertising, but Rosenthal said it was a "classic example of the need for this legislation."

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down. thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

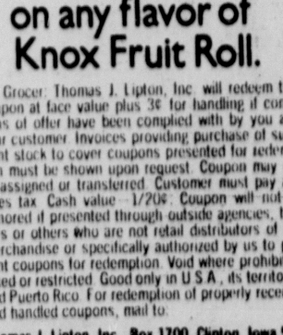
What to tell your Mother so she'll buy you Knox® Fruit Roll.

1. Tell her Fruit Roll® is made from a 4000 year old recipe. No kidding. 4000 years ago, give or take a few weeks, people ate Fruit Roll when they rode across the desert on their camels (only it wasn't called Fruit Roll then). And if people have been eating Fruit Roll all that time, it sure must be delicious. So you'll probably love Fruit Roll a lot. You'll like it in your lunch. Or after school. Or for a nifty snack on Saturday. Or when you go riding across the desert on your camel.



2. Tell your mother Fruit Roll is made out of real fruit. And you know how she's always trying to get you to eat an apple or something. So she'll probably want you to have plenty of Fruit Roll.

3. Tell her Fruit Roll isn't messy or gooey like a lot of snacks we could think of. That's why mothers like Fruit Roll. You just unroll Fruit Roll, tear off a hunk and pop it in your mouth.

4. Tell her the astronauts ate Fruit Roll when they were out walking around on the moon. That's because it has real fruit energy. Because it's easy to carry. And because they like it a lot.

10. Tell her she'll save 10¢ if she cuts out this coupon and takes it to the supermarket and buys you any flavor Fruit Roll you want. Apple, strawberry, apricot, grape, cherry or plum. Each one is made out of real apples, strawberries, apricots, grapes, cherries or plums.

FR-1

on any flavor of Knox Fruit Roll.

Mr. Grocer: Thomas J. Lipton, Inc. will redeem this coupon at face value plus 3¢ for handling if conditions of offer have been complied with by you and your customer. Invoices providing purchase of sufficient stock to cover coupons presented for redemption must be shown upon request. Coupon may not be assigned or transferred. Customer must pay any sales tax. Cash value 1/20¢. Coupon will not be honored if presented through outside agencies, brokers or others who are not retail distributors of our merchandise or specifically authorized by us to present coupons for redemption. Void where prohibited, taxed or restricted. Good only in U.S.A., its territories and Puerto Rico. For redemption of properly received and handled coupons, mail to:

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JOAN HACKETT

You live in New York. How can you stand that dirty, awful city?—L. O., Port Arthur, Texas

● I know it's fashionable to knock New York, but to me it is the only place to live. It offers the best of Paris and London, the best department stores in the world. People in New York are supposed to be unfriendly, yet people I don't know sometimes say hello to me in the morning. And where else in the United States do so many people speak French? And Italian? And Yiddish—and German? Some even speak English.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON, singer

I want to be a singer, but my hearing is not good. I understand you had hearing difficulties too. Any good advice?—G. N., Gary, Ind.

● I'm not sure. About six years ago I had my left ear operated on. My stirrup and anvil had hardened. It is an inherited illness, and now my right ear is growing progressively worse, so that in time I will have to have it operated on as well. As you can see, it has had no adverse effect on my singing career. The worst part was being seasick afterward!

FOR CAROL CHANNING

You have a most distinctive voice and can slide from a very high little voice to a deep, almost bass one. How did you develop this?—Ellen Randacre, Salt Lake City, Utah

● A lot of people talk that way, especially in the South. My father came from the South, and I listened to a lot of Southerners—so it was easy to speak like that. But I think I sound just like everybody else!

FOR SEN. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF (D-Conn.)

All the ads I see about the "energy crisis" ask for sacrifices by the average citizen. How much fuel does he use?—A. T. N., Scranton, Pa.

● This year, only 19 percent of the energy used in the U.S. will be residential; 24 percent will go for transportation; industry will account for 43 percent of our total consumption; and commercial establishments, 14 percent.

FOR WILLIAM CONRAD, star of "Cannon"

When you played Matt Dillon on radio, each episode opened with the sound of a rifle shot followed by your voice. Can you recall the lines you spoke?—Mrs. J. H. Marine, Biloxi, Miss.

● Can I ever! Here they are: "Around Dodge City and in the territory out West there's just one way to handle the killers and the spoilers, and that's with a U.S. Marshal and the smell of gunsmoke. I'm the first man they look for and the last one they want to meet. It's a chancy job and it makes a man watchful and a little lonely."

FOR LIV ULLMAN, actress

I read in a newspaper that you are now ashamed that you were in "Lost Horizon." True?—Michael A. Bernal, Pico Rivera, Calif.

● No, it's not true. Should I be ashamed of getting the opportunity to work with such great artists as Sir John Gielgud, Peter Finch, Charles Boyer, George Kennedy and producer Ross Hunter, whom I learned to love?

FOR TERRY ANN MEEUWSEN, Miss America 1973

● It reminds me of a sorority handshake. It's a word game. But I don't even use "Miss" that often. What's the matter with calling people by their first names?

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star

Coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Atlanta Falcons said he wouldn't want you on his team because he doesn't believe you like body contact. Any reaction?—J. F. Norman, Chicago, Ill.

● I set a record for number of carries in one season (1973), and that involved a lot of body contact. Also, I don't intend to play for any team but the Buffalo Bills. Our coach, Lou Saban, believes, as I do, that I will gain more yardage running around players than trying to run over them.

FOR ALEXANDER P. BUTTERFIELD, the former White House aide who disclosed the existence of the secret tapes

Since the President knew his words were being taped, wouldn't he have been extra careful about what he said?—Peggy Beesen, Santa Monica, Calif.

● Not necessarily. I'm sure he forgot about this system for months at a time. I doubt that it inhibited him in any way.

FOR JON VOIGHT, actor

Don't you think that it is risky for an actor to become involved in politics, as you did in the McGovern 1972 race?—F. X. McCarthy, New York, N.Y.

● Yes, it is risky, and that's why many actors avoid it. But I feel if you do what you believe to be right, things will turn out right. For example, take the Watergate situation. I've found firsthand that people in other countries think much more of us now than they ever did before because we put our dirty laundry out where everyone could see it. That investigation, like the Lieutenant Calley investigation, would not have been handled that way in any other country.

Did Consumer Advocates Talk the Price of Food Up?

By Rep. Jerry Litton (D-Mo.)

OPINION

"Imagine that you own a farm.... You have room to keep between 10 and 100 sows this winter. You hear that consumers plan to boycott meat, and that there may be price freezes or rollbacks. You decide to keep 10 sows—not 100."

Bernie Boston

"The price freeze," says Litton, "hurt everyone. It hurt the consumer . . . it hurt the producer . . . it hurt the economy."

America is faced with food shortages. And strangely enough, those who have expressed the greatest concern over rising food prices have been those most responsible for the shortages and the even greater price increases that followed.

Let me try to explain what I mean.

Trying to solve food shortages with a food-price freeze is like trying to solve a teacher shortage by placing a ceiling on teachers' salaries. Instead of easing the shortage, you would create additional shortages. Problems of shortages are solved by programs that encourage production, not by those that discourage it.

Unfortunately, many politicians in both the Congress and the Administration took the easy way out. They yielded to pressure from would-be consumer advocates by supporting programs that appeared to help the consumer. But, in fact, those programs did just the opposite. Congressmen who opposed the price freeze were labeled unsympathetic to the consumer. The fact is, they were the ones who were being honest with the consumers.

Last February, food prices responded to increased food demand: they began to move upward. Farmers, anticipating better pork, poultry, beef and grain prices, were increasing their breeding herds, buying better machinery and preparing to produce a record volume of food.

Then, in April, along came the boycotts and threatened freezes or price rollbacks. While these moves were well-intended, they accomplished only one thing. Farmers who were increasing their breeding herds in February—in anticipation of better prices—started decreasing them in April.

So, the louder the cries for boycotts and freezes, the more the farmers reduced their breeding-herd numbers. They weren't reducing the herd numbers or drowning baby chicks to hurt the consumer. Like everyone else, they are in business to make a profit. Their income is substantially below that of non-farmers. They did these things only to lessen the losses they anticipated if boycotts or freezes took place.

On March 29, 1973, President Nixon announced a food-price freeze. But in fairness to my Republican friends, I must admit many Democratic members of Congress favored price rollbacks—which would have been even worse.

The freeze meant farmers were caught in a squeeze between the freeze and increasing costs of production. Instead of being encouraged to increase their production, they were discouraged. Tens of thousands of farmers across the country took this occasion to cull their herds of all but their very best breeding animals. Many farmers decided to quit altogether.

Pork and poultry prices were the first to go up because of all the pregnant sows that went to market and all the eggs that weren't hatched. Then came pork and poultry shortages, so that prices for these items skyrocketed when the freeze was lifted. Consumers shifted to beef, thus creating a similar situation in beef.

Imagine that you own a farm. Farm debt has increased 400 percent since 1960, so the chances are you own it with the bank. You have room on your farm to keep between 10 and 100 sows this winter. You hear that consumers plan to boycott meat, and that there may be price freezes or rollbacks. You decide to keep 10 sows—not 100.

The 90 sows you didn't keep could have produced 10 pigs each—every six months. The 900 pigs you didn't produce because of the 90 sows you didn't keep represent 180,000 pounds (200 pounds per market hog) of pork the consumer will never see. Multiply this times thousands of hog farmers—and you begin to see why pork production went down. Consumers bid against each other for a limited amount of pork—and they simply bid up the price.

So consumers in effect talked the farmers into raising less food and then bid up the price of that food. If they had a better understanding of what encourages farmers to produce, there would have been no food crisis in America last year. And by now, food production would have begun responding to higher prices, and food supplies would have been more in line with demand.

The price freeze hurt everyone. It hurt the consumer by raising food costs. It hurt the producer by denying him profits from higher production—and, in many cases, by forcing him to take losses. It hurt the economy by reducing the production of goods we needed to help offset our balance-of-trade deficit.

There were other things that brought on the price increases:

- Social Security and Medicare were increased by $10 billion annually in September, 1972. Much of this increase was spent by retired people on food, making food demand greater.
- The food-stamp program was increased 17 percent last year. All of this went for food, also increasing demand.
- Russia and China changed their food and trade policies with the U.S., and experienced a bad crop year, decreasing supply.
- We, too, had unfavorable weather, also decreasing supply.
- The standard of living went up around the world, increasing demand.
- We devalued the dollar twice in 14 months, making American-produced food a much better bargain abroad; foreign buyers bought more.
- We experienced a period of high inflation.

Since increases in food prices are not offset by corresponding decreases in purchases, we have food shortages and fast-rising prices. But the truth is, food prices have not increased nearly as much as the prices of other goods or wages in the past 20 years. If food prices had gone up as much as wages during that time, round steak that sold at $1.75 per pound in April would have sold at $2.67, eggs would have increased from 68¢ a dozen to $1.61, and a frying chicken from 89¢ to $1.46 a pound. The retail price of food from 1952 to 1972 went up 38 percent—wages went up 140 percent.

Americans spend less than 16 percent of their average after-tax income on food. In England, the same figure is 25 percent; in Japan it is 35 percent; in Russia it is 58 percent; and in Asia it is 80 percent. But the farmer who supplies all this food is himself not well paid. Once you give him a seven percent return on his assets (he can get this by selling out and drawing interest), he received 74 cents and 81 cents an hour for his labor in 1971 and 1972. But his costs are going up too, and he can't be expected to continue at those wages.

Now many voices are joined in asking the government to shut off exports of grain and other farm products. Is their advice sound advice? Again, imagine you are a farmer. Grain prices have gone up sharply in the past few months. Because of this you are considering making long-range investments in machinery and land improvements. Now you hear that the government is considering stopping the export of American grains. What do you do?

Chances are you won't make the big investments, and the consumer, eventually, will be hit by shortages and higher prices.

How can it be said that food is too high in America if it is the one thing we produce cheaply enough to sell on the world market at a surplus? What else do we have to sell to stabilize the American dollar, balance our trade deficit and make it possible for us to import energy-producing products that keep the country running?

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jerry Litton, 36, is a freshman congressman from Chillicothe, Mo. A farmer all his life, he says he is currently working on ways to close the "communications gap" between the nation's food producers and food consumers.

Survival Kit for Parents:

An ABC of Childhood's Most Dreaded Diseases

By Alan E. Nourse, M.D.
Author of the "Ladies' Home Journal Medical Guide"

The whole pattern of childhood diseases today is different from what it was 30 years ago. Some infections, such as measles, chicken pox and mumps, are still with us, but other diseases have all but disappeared. Scarlet fever is rare. "DPT" shots have all but wiped out diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

But don't think these are "conquered diseases." They are not—they are merely held at bay. This article focuses on diseases that still afflict large numbers of children. But it is not a complete list. For example, there are still 7,000 cases of diphtheria in the U.S. each year—and the death rate among small infants catching whooping cough is still a whopping 20 percent!

MEASLES

There are two main types of measles—rubeola and rubella. They appear to be similar, but they are quite distinct.

Rubeola. Called red measles or ten-day measles, this illness is caused by a virus that enters the body through the mucous membranes of the upper respiratory tract. The incubation period is from seven to 14 days, so a child at school can spread the virus to other people for several days before he himself shows symptoms.

The illness begins with a high fever, a runny nose and a harsh, irritable cough. At the onset, fever may suddenly spike to 104° or more. On the second or third day, the child's eyes become bloodshot and sensitive to light, and the inside of his mouth takes on an angry orange-red color. Small, white, cottony-looking spots frequently form inside the cheek.

Finally, between three and five days after onset of symptoms, the rash appears, first on the face and neck, then spreading over the trunk and limbs. The rash is a mottled, brownish pink, with spots the size of a match head. After four or five days it begins to fade.

What should you do when you suspect a child is getting measles?

1. First, take his temperature, and if it is 102°F. or above, start fever control with aspirin and sponging. At the same time, look for other significant symptoms: a rash, or a cough.

2. Notify your doctor and follow his advice.

3. If you are sure it's measles, notify the school and your child's playmates. If an unimmunized child has been exposed to the disease, there may be time to give him special protective shots.

4. Keep the child in bed; check his temperature at least morning and evening and use aspirin to control it; and encourage him to drink lots of fluids. Formal quarantine is not required.

Recovery is usually spontaneous without the use of specific medicines. The most dreaded complication is encephalitis (brain fever). It can take such a grim toll that most pediatricians urge measles vaccination for all children, beginning as early as nine months.

Rubella. Called German or three-day measles, this virus infection also starts with a fever and a runny nose, but the fever is not as high and the hacky cough is usually absent. Like regular measles, rubella is very contagious.

The rash appears within a day or so of the onset of symptoms. It is fine and pink, and lasts only two or three days. Along with the rash, there may be a swelling of the lymph nodes behind the ears. In most cases the whole illness is over in three to four days.

But note: Any pregnant girl or young woman who has been in close contact with a rubella victim during the three or four days before symptoms begin should be notified. This is because the virus can wreak havoc on the embryo of an unborn baby if the mother becomes infected, especially during the first three months of her pregnancy.

CHICKEN POX

The chicken pox virus invades the victim through the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. But in spite of its messiness and discomfort, chicken pox is a mild disease (although highly communicable). The incubation period is from two to three weeks after exposure, and the symptoms—low-grade fever, headache and discomfort—are often so minor they are overlooked until the rash appears some 24 hours later.

Mothers: Clip out this article and tape it inside the door of your medicine chest, against the possibility of future need.

The typical rash occurs suddenly as a crop of small water-filled blisters about the size and appearance of teardrops, first on the face, then all over. Gradually the blisters become filled with pus; then in a few days they begin to crust and dry up. In the meantime, they itch. If let alone and unbroken, chicken pox lesions will heal, leaving no scar; but if scratched, permanent scarring may result.

Notify the doctor if the victim's temperature climbs above 102°F., and use aspirin and gentle sponging for fever control. Notify the school and parents of other children who may have been exposed. Bed rest and extra fluids are indicated during the early phase.

The major care problem centers on the itching. Older children should be urged not to scratch. Trim younger children's nails to the quick and, if necessary, bundle their hands in gauze to make scratching more difficult.

Recovery takes 10-14 days. No need to apply antiseptic or dressing—the pustules will heal faster if undisturbed in open air. One attack of chicken pox confers permanent immunity.

MUMPS

Mumps, a virus infection that causes painful inflammation and swelling of the glands just in front of the ear and under the chin, starts with a day or two of high fever, lassitude, loss of appetite and generalized illness before the gland swelling. In children, the virus rarely attacks other parts of the body, but after puberty, it may involve the sexual organs and organs like the pancreas. The infection is quite contagious and may occur in epidemics.

How can you tell if your child is getting mumps? When a child complains of pain in the cheeks and there is some puffy swelling, feeding him an acid food such as vinegar or orange juice will help differentiate mumps from other types of swellings.

People Quiz

Seriously Now— Is a Sense of Humor Really Important?

True or False: The better your sense of humor, the better your chances for achieving a happy and lasting marriage. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The more you appreciate humor, the more likely you are to be able to create it.

2. The better your sense of humor, the better your chances for achieving a happy and lasting marriage.

4. Your child will remember what you tell him if you impart your message or instruction in a humorous way.

5. As often as not, when a person says something in a joking way, he really means exactly what he's saying, and is "kidding on the square."

6. If things that make other people laugh seldom strike you as funny, it means that you have a more mature outlook on life.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to Veterans Administration studies which show that "the ability to produce wit and humor is not closely related to its appreciation." It has been found, however, that humor appreciation indicates good personality adjustment and the ability to take the frustrations of everyday living in stride.

2. True—provided your spouse has a sense of humor too. Dr. Martin Grotjahn, clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, observes in summing up the findings of a study on the subject: "Marriage and love are alive as long as the partners still know how to laugh together." He finds that the discharge of cumulative tensions and feelings of aggression through laughter facilitates the free and joyful acceptance of each other. And it has been wisely observed that people who have forgotten how to laugh are also likely to have forgotten how to love.

3. True. In one study of depressed persons, for example, 52 percent reported the loss of their sense of humor. In a study of non-depressed individuals—who also had problems—only a scant eight percent reported a defunct sense of humor.

4. True. Children are intrigued by advice that is offered in a humorously engaging manner, and are more open to it than if it were delivered in a see-here-my-child lecture style. As for retaining it better, experiments that were done with children at Bucknell University have shown that "humor facilitated retention resulting from incidental learning."

5. True. Psychiatrist Werner M. Mendel, who has made a study of humor as a means of expressing our attitude toward others, finds that "humor serves to express feelings we cannot express directly because we don't want to risk facing the consequences. To communicate a wish as a joke allows us to say, 'I was only joking.' Therefore we cannot be held responsible by the other person." Jokes in this category run a wide gamut and may include husband-and-wife relationships, sweethearts, relatives, the boss, the government, or wherever our feelings focus.

6. False. University studies have demonstrated that people who fail to see the humor in things others find amusing tend to be repressed. They are inclined to swallow their anger and to keep their emotions under wraps rather than permitting them free expression.

CHI-CHI RODRIGUEZ:
"A 68 Is Better Than a Laugh"

Juan "Chi-Chi" Rodriguez was known as the "Clown Prince of Golf" until he decided to concentrate on golf and forget about making spectators laugh. The new Chi-Chi racked up $113,000 in earnings on the tour last year and is continuing as a headliner this year. "I've found," he says, "that my fans would rather see me get a score of 68 than have me crack jokes while turning in a bad round." . . . Although only 5'7" and 130 pounds, Chi-Chi, a Puerto Rican who learned to play with clubs made of guava-tree wood, hits 300-yard drives. He joined the golf tour in the U.S. in 1960, but for many years was unable to reach the big-money bracket. "I thought I could represent Puerto Rico best by getting people to laugh so they would like me," he admits. "I kidded with the gallery and did things like whirl my golf club around like a matador's cape." Finally, after a bad finish in the Bahamas Open in 1971 he found himself alone in the locker room, and asked himself, "What am I doing with my life?" . . ."I decided I couldn't really succeed in golf unless I gave the game my full concentration," he says. "I realized, finally, that golf is like politics—the candidate who always tells jokes will never be elected President." His wife Iwalani and daughter Donette don't mind Chi-Chi's new attitude —they're delighted that he's bringing home more bread.—By Barry Abramson

People and You

Two Good Ways Not to Make Friends

You may have trouble making real friends because you unconsciously shut off other people's attempts to tell you something about themselves. Many men and women, psychologists report, unconsciously do two things that put new acquaintances on the defensive. You'll make others back off if, at the beginning of your relationship, you 1) try to influence their behavior or give them advice; 2) pass judgment by expressing doubt or disapproval of what they tell you about themselves. The psychologists explain that later, when you're intimate friends, you may help each other by tactfully giving advice and searching for "deeper meanings." But such behavior has a poor effect on someone you've recently met. Behavior like this will shut off the personal discussion that's necessary for friendship to develop. And you'll turn back into two strangers rather than two possible friends.

Boone as "Hec Ramsey."

"We were flying over Truk, and came in low, upside down. I was hanging head down, with this Jap on our tail and guns going off below. I got sick to my stomach."

Star Chat

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Richard Boone: "How My Knowledge of Fear Helped Me Raise My Son"

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

BOONE: Because I was in despair. The show was critically acclaimed, yet it was taken off. I felt if my best efforts were dismissed, I was meaningless. Or take "Medic." We made 60 shows. They showed 59. Why? Because number 60 had a black actor in it! That's how stupid Hollywood was then. I fought that fight a long time before it became popular. Way back on "Have Gun, Will Travel" I used a black actor as a villain, and I think that was the first time anyone did that! I was disenchanted with Hollywood. I was born and raised in California, but I wanted to leave.

FW: So you went to Hawaii. But why there?

BOONE: I decided it would be a nice place to live, a nice place for my son Peter to grow up. I wanted to get away from the phoniness here. I sold everything and took off with my wife Claire [Editor's note: the Boones were married in 1951] and Pete.

FW: How long did you live on the islands?

BOONE: Eight-and-a-half years.

BOONE: Not at all. There was always so much to do over there. No end to the things!

FW: Like what?

BOONE: Fishing, boating, painting. I practically started the film industry over there. Taught acting in what they call the disadvantaged areas—and worked with retarded children as a volunteer.

BOONE: It started with the retarded daughter of a friend of mine. She inspired me. Working with retarded children is wonderful: teaching them to do something—tying a shoe can be very complicated—or just reaching out and putting their hand in yours. Or when you lift a child up on a slide and he comes down and slides into your arms. Their happiness is beautiful.

FW: Do you still live in Hawaii?

BOONE: No. We sold everything and moved to St. Augustine, Fla. Peter is building his own house just across the street from us. He's really physically helping to build it, and he's so proud of it!

FW: How old is Peter?

BOONE: Nineteen. He was accepted by Harvard and Yale but decided on Stanford because a lot of his Hawaiian friends went there. He has a lot of the feel of Hawaii in him. He wants to be a musician.

FW: Isn't it a bit extravagant for a 19-year-old boy to have his own house?

BOONE: I raised him to be responsible. Therefore, I should give him responsibility. I have great trust and love for that boy.

FW: What made you desert Hawaii for Florida?

BOONE: I thought about it a long time before I decided. Then one day I said to Claire, "We're leaving. I'm tired of living here."

FW: What was her reaction?

BOONE: She said, "All right, but where will we go?" And I said, "St. Augustine." She nearly fell over. She was born there.

FW: Are you happy with your choice?

BOONE: I've never been treated with such respect for my privacy as there! It's a little town of about 9,000, and the people are wonderful! I can do what I want, when I want, with absolutely no interference!

FW: I understand you've made several pictures in Israel. Would you ever like to live in Israel?

BOONE: Yes, I'd like to live there. I love the people! I've gone over seven times. It's the most exciting, go-ahead country I've seen.

FW: Do you see any solution to the Mideast conflict?

BOONE: The only solution for that mess is to whale the life out of the Arabs. At the time of partition, there were a certain amount of loud-mouthers who said, "We won't live in a Jewish state!" So these people left—of their own volition. Now they're screaming they want their land back!

FW: You have the reputation of being tough. Are you?

BOONE: My wife once called me a "honey bear." I yelled at her in 18 pica print! I guess I say what I want.

FW: Have you ever been scared?

BOONE: Scared? Hell, yes! I've been really scared. I was an aerial gunner in a torpedo squadron in the Pacific during

Pictorial Parade

World War II. We were flying over Truk, and came in low, upside down. I was hanging head down, with this Jap on our tail and guns going off below. I got sick to my stomach and that caused my sinuses to fill up, and then my eyes and nose started bleeding. Yes—I was SCARED!

FW: Is it difficult for a man your size—6'1½", 210 pounds—to admit being scared?

BOONE: No. I think being afraid—knowing what your limitations are—makes a better person of you. That is, if you accept it at adult level. Fear is different for a child. But as an adult, you face it. I've always told Peter: When you're afraid, you have to make a choice. You can go after it, or turn away. You have to decide what it's worth to you. I think knowing what fear is has helped me bring values into Peter's life.

FW: Do you fall back on your varied experiences when you act?

BOONE: Oh, sure! You can't know what physical work is until you've done it. You can't make it real if you haven't felt the sweat trickling down your back. I've worked in the fields, bailed hay, worked on tuna boats.

FW: Did you ever get seasick?

BOONE: Never. Once Claire and I hit a big storm on a liner in the Atlantic. I had to strap Claire down in her bunk. Then I went down to lunch. And there I was—in that vast first class dining room—all alone! I was the only one who had come down to eat! And the same thing held true for dinner as well. For 11 days I was the only one eating there. And how I ate! Bananas, pineapples, fruit—you name it, I ate it!

FW: What do you think of the current crop of young actors?

BOONE: There's a sameness about them that bores me to death! Someday they'll have to learn that their kind of realism—"kitchen realism"—is one of the dullest things that ever happened.

FW: Why did you come back to Hollywood to work in "Hec Ramsey"?

BOONE: Because they agreed to shoot at my convenience. I only work for two months and have plenty of time for other things.

FW: Does this mean you've made peace with Hollywood?

BOONE: No. I don't want to live in Hollywood. I like St. Augustine. I'm teaching there now, in Flagler College. It's a new college and I am helping them get a drama department started.

FW: What is your final goal in life?

BOONE: I want to perform in the opera house in Sidney, Australia. There's nothing like it in the world! It's fantastic! Unique!

FW: You sound as if the artist in you were speaking.

BOONE: Really? I thought I sounded like a TV actor.

A limited edition for investors and collectors

The Official Ingots of The United States

by
The Washington D.C.
Bicentennial Commission
only $8.95 each

Ingots are shown larger than actual size to highlight details

An Heirloom Collection of Proof-Quality Pure Silver Bars

Thirteen brave colonies longing for freedom . . . now grown to 50 states united under one great flag . . . commemorated forever in the only authorized edition of Official Ingots of The United States by The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission.

A Magnificent Collection—A Rare Opportunity

The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission has appointed The Hamilton Mint as the official minter of this outstanding new series. Master sculptor Alfred Brunettin has been retained to create the original sculptures from which this edition will be struck. Above you see three of the fifty ingots that will comprise this series. The front of each ingot will bear the outline of one of the fifty states, and a striking bas-relief sculpture of that state's most notable symbol. The reverse of each ingot will depict an original sculpture of the state's capitol building, and the sequence in which the state was admitted to the Union.

This Stunning Collection Can Easily Be Yours

The first two ingots in your collection will be sent to you immediately upon acceptance of your Collector's Application. As the collection continues, you will be notified in advance of the next two ingots that will be available to you each month. You will be able to acquire your personal heirloom collection on a regular systematic basis . . . at a guaranteed price!

Guaranteed Price Protection

Each ingot in your collection contains 480 grains of Pure Silver—a total of 24,000 grains for the entire series—more precious metal than most people will acquire in a lifetime! Despite the fact that leading economists predict almost certain increases in the price of Silver in The International Metals Market . . . The Hamilton Mint offers this extraordinary guarantee: You may complete your entire collection of The Official Ingots of The United States at the original Charter Subscription Price of only $8.95 each. This is possible because The Hamilton Mint will commit for enough precious metal—at current market prices—to enable each subscriber to complete the entire series.

Your Valuable Personal Serial Number Will Be Maintained Throughout Your Acquisition Program

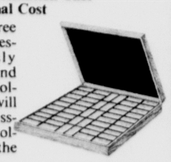
Just as the finest prints, etchings, and limited edition sculptures are individually serially numbered, each ingot in your collection will be engraved with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark, and your own permanently registered personal serial number. In addition, a Certificate of Authenticity will accompany your first ingots. You can well imagine the importance of being able to acquire a certified collection of 50 ingots that bear, each and every one, your personal serial number.

You Must Act Now

For this collection we have established strictly regulated limits of 15,000 ingot sets—and only one proof set per subscriber. Once the limits have been reached, the dies will be destroyed forever. Museums, galleries and other private collectors must then wait until you decide to sell or donate your collection. All orders must be sent directly to the official minter—The Hamilton Mint.

Luxurious Walnut Presentation Case at No Additional Cost

You will receive—absolutely free—a most impressive walnut Presentation Case, luxuriously padded to display, protect and store your precious medallic collection. This handsome case will bear a hand-engraved brass-finished nameplate with the collector's name inscribed upon the face.



24 KT. Gold on .999 Pure Silver Connoisseur's Archive Collection

The collection is made even more valuable with 24 Kt. Gold layered on Pure Silver. Only 5,000 of each will be minted in this strictly limited Archive Edition. While available, the ingots will cost just $12.50 each.

Report to the FW Woman

This week, Women's Editor Rosalyn Abrevaya teaches a new kind of fashion arithmetic in which "less is more," when you learn how to stretch your travel wardrobe.

How to Travel Light
(2 Outfits=5+)

If you are planning a vacation to warmer climes, be sure to travel light. How?

Play the "new-math-of-fashion" game and you'll glide through nights and days looking fantastic—and all on two basic outfits plus accessories. A skirt, a jacket or two, a pair of pants, a long shift and a halter top can take you from morning to the last evening star, looking great in a minimum amount of clothes. Mix and match. Choose clothes that are color related. Take the top of a suit and play it against the pants from another outfit, or buy separates that work together. Get a versatile collection of jewelry and wigs to give you still more looks when you're on the go. And don't worry about packing wrinkles. With today's easy-care fibers, many in shape-retention lightweight knits, they are a thing of the past, and any garment can be hung out or drip-dried overnight.

How to make 2 outfits equal more than 5: A jacket can go with (1) its own skirt, (2) a contrasting one or (3) pants. The versatile cardigan costume can be interchanged to make at least 4 combinations.

Fashion multiples (left) by Jack Winter—the classic cardigan, V-neck sleeveless shell and white pants of Quintess polyester—launch a morning of sight-seeing. For after-five excitement (right), you might wear the cardigan alone, with masses of chains. Wigs by General Wig and Fashion Concepts.

Using fashion arithmetic, as well as saving on suitcase space, the white suit becomes another smashing outfit—the common denominator for an enchanted evening—with the addition of a navy halter from Donnkenny and dress-up jewelry by Sarah Coventry.

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security right to the penny? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short easy coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works. The left half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and then send you a report in a confidential sealed envelope. This report will tell you how much of your earnings have been recorded in your Social Security account year by year. There is no charge for this service, not even postage.

The right half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled, "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will really open your eyes. Here are some of the little-known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the brand new Social Security benefits just passed by Congress.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability pensions at any age.

- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes. (Studies show that two out of three people overpay.)
- How to figure out what your Social Security retirement payments should be.
- Should you tatoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need in order to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect Social Security.
- Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)
- Should you have two Social Security cards?
- How to get free services which are available from Social Security.
- How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of your Social Security benefits.
- When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?
- How to work and still get Social Security benefits.
- How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.
- How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.
- How students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.
- How to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans.

If you do not like the book, return it and your $3.00 will be immediately refunded. You will still get the confidential report on your Social Security account.

If you do not take advantage of your new Social Security benefits, you are only cheating yourself, after all, you have already paid for them. It is easy to start getting your new Social Security benefits. Just fill out both parts of the coupon below. Survival Kit For Parents

There is no specific antibiotic that will alter the course of mumps. Treatment consists primarily of bed rest, symptomatic treatment to reduce fever and relieve pain, and a light, bland diet to help control nausea. Applications of cold cloths to the swollen areas and an appropriate dosage of aspirin every four hours will often lessen the pain. After two or three days the swelling and pain decline, and recovery is usually complete in another seven to ten days.

More serious is the development of acute orchitis—inflammation and swelling of the testes—in adolescent or young adult males. Not only is this complication of mumps extremely painful, it may also result in damage to the testes. A doctor should always be consulted when a male at the age of puberty or beyond develops mumps.

Recently, a vaccine made from live mumps virus has become available. Most pediatricians now recommend it for children over 12 months.

TONSILLITIS

Tonsillitis usually begins abruptly with a fever spiking to 103° or more and the sudden onset of pain and swelling in the back of the throat, which turns a bright red. After a day or two, a number of yellowish-white spots or streaks of pus can be seen at the back of the throat. At the same time lymph nodes surrounding the infected area become swollen and tender, and can often be felt on the neck underneath the jaw or just below the ears. The fever continues for several days, if no treatment is begun, and then gradually subsides.

Today, antibiotics can often help limit the infection to two or three days. When the patient's throat is extremely sore, pain and swelling can be alleviated by an ice collar around the neck, and by gargling with warm salt water. As with any acute infection, bed rest is indicated. Also, when the throat is sore, a bland, soft or liquid diet is advisable.

Tonsillitis does not usually confer lasting immunity. New infections can occur at any time. Generally, only if a child has bouts of recurrent tonsillitis should removal of tonsils and adenoids be considered.

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

JOANNE — Weight 167, Waist 33½

Weight 144, Waist 27

Weight 134, Waist 26

They saw and felt Amazing Results in just 3 days! Using this ingenious "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan in the privacy of their home while watching TV—Did It!

Admiring his wife's amazing improvement, Gordon decided to follow the Plan. How he looked the day he started.

Weight 200, Waist 36½

Weight 190, Waist 34¾

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts...or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

Patent Pending. © Copyright Joe Weider, 1973

SAND CASTLE CARVING

Sand castle carving may become a new art form if John W. Dudley, creator of man-sized sand castles, has anything to do with it. Dudley, whose father was a whittler, began building sand castles when he and his wife and daughter went to Hawaii on a vacation. They liked the sun, sea—and the sand—so much they decided to stay forever. Dudley, who also carves Rodin statues and political caricatures out of sand, is currently writing a children's book about sand castles which—naturally—he is illustrating himself. Photographing the sand castles is the hardest part. The pictures have to be taken before the tide comes in. You should have seen this castle four hours after our picture was taken.

How do you catch an obscene phone caller? A couple of months ago we told you who makes obscene phone calls; now we are going to tell you how to catch them. The telephone company has three electronic tracing devices in its arsenal to combat annoyance callers. One, called a "trap circuit," is attached to the phone of the person receiving the calls and prints out a card with the culprit's phone number on it. Another, the "pen register," is attached to a suspect's telephone lines. Each time he makes a call, the date, time and number dialed are recorded by the register. The third is a "line identification" device, which locks in on a caller's line until his number can be recorded. These gadgets sound formidable—but they're not foolproof. Many annoyance calls are made from public telephone booths, and a caller can avoid detection by moving from booth to booth. Moreover, finding the offending telephone is not enough for court evidence; there also must be proof of precisely who made the call.

JOCKEY ROBYN SMITH
Who is she really?

In a new book, writer Lynn Haney relates her discoveries about some of the almost 60 women jockeys in the country today—including the fact that beautiful and successful Robyn Smith is really a woman named Melody Dawn. "Most people don't know that her story about growing up in Hawaii, the daughter of a rich lumberman, and graduating from Stanford before acquiring a contract from MGM is nothing more than just a story. The facts as given by Robyn differ greatly from those elicited from others, and her irritation whenever she is asked about them shows clearly. . . . Robyn Smith is both a jockey and an actress, and she always plays both roles simultaneously. She is 'on' all the time. . . . If she has manufactured illusions—and her family (which she denies is hers) says that she has—they are more than figments to her. They are reality." From "The Lady Is a Jock" by Lynn Haney (Dodd, Mead & Company, $5.95).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

KICKING THE BUCKET

We have a car with bucket seats,
Not really buckets, though.
If they were buckets, as they're called,
I'd drive, I think, quite slow.

If bucket seats were buckets truly
(And at the thought I frown),
At least I hope the buckets where
I sat were upside down.

For otherwise I'd sit in them,
Not on, but in, no doubt,
And bad as sitting in, still worse
Would be the getting out.

Two English schoolboys were bitter enemies. One entered the Royal Navy and in time became an admiral, while the other entered the ministry and eventually became a bishop. Their hatred never ebbed.

Years later, they met on a London railroad platform. The bishop, who had grown fat, swept up to the admiral, resplendent in his glittering uniform, and said, "Stationmaster, from which platform does the 10:05 leave for Canterbury?"

The admiral bowed and replied, "Platform five, madam. But in your condition, you shouldn't be traveling."

—Thomas LaMance

Political experts say the Democrats have excellent prospects for 1976. But they'll probably spoil everything by nominating somebody.

"I never overate or drank liquor or smoked cigarettes," the old man said, "and I always got up at 6 o'clock in the morning."

"Very commendable," the reporter said. "But you know, my uncle lived the same way and he died at 65. Can you explain that?"

The old man thought a moment, then said: "Your uncle just didn't keep it up long enough." —Lane Olinghouse

Our fourth-grade history class was having a discussion on the history of Kentucky. The teacher, hoping someone would mention Daniel Boone, asked if anyone in the classroom knew the name of a man who had founded a settlement in Kentucky, and was also a famous TV personality. Immediately one little boy raised his hand and asked, "Is it Colonel Sanders?" —Cindy Quest

by Bill Mahan

Spelling-Goldberg Productions have come out with a winter replacement series titled CHOPPER ONE. If you haven't already seen it, it is about two police officers in a helicopter. One of the more interesting things that happened during filming of the pilot show concerned a shootout in front of an apartment building on Wilshire Boulevard. The baddies were holed up in the hotel and the police cars and lawmakers parked out in front. Gunfire was everywhere. Because of the way the director staged the scene, the camera couldn't be seen. He had it placed strategically behind some shrubbery and unless you were standing directly in the line of fire it was impossible to notice. The real city police were stationed at each end of the street, blocking any oncoming traffic—automobile or pedestrian.

By fluke a lone man somehow accidentally slipped by one of the real officers and found himself walking along very close to where the action was about to take place. As he neared the hotel he saw the police (actors) hiding behind their patrol cars, guns drawn. The pedestrian looked around with a bewildered expression on his face and stood motionless watching the scene which was now being filmed. Captain McKeegan (the actor) yelled something at the baddies through a bullhorn and then the shooting began. The pedestrian was frozen in his tracks. When the baddies in the hotel started firing back he gathered his momentarily lost wits and ran behind a tree. Then, during a brief lull in the shooting, he took off, running at top speed away from the action.

I hope he happened to see the debut of CHOPPER I last month because I'm certain that's the only way the whole situation can ever be cleared up for him. Besides, if he happened to somehow have gotten himself in the picture the company will have to give him a day's pay—maybe even at stuntman's rates.

The Award show is telecast live from the Ir Concert Theatre in Hollywood and will honor the artists and music that are voted best in the fields of Pop/Rock, Soul and Country by a public opinion poll. Roger Miller, the "King of the Road," will be the representative for the Country category. A farm boy, Roger first began writing songs at the age of five. Today at age 37, he has written well over 300 songs, including "Dang Me," "England Swings" and "Chug-a-Lug." Ms. Reddy presently has a Gold record on the charts with "Leave Me Alone (Ruby Red Dress)." Smokey Robinson, whose current hit is "Baby Come Close," is an accomplished authority for the Soul portion of the show, since he is not only a performer, but a composer as well. With his group, the Miracles, he recorded such classics as "What's So Good About Good-Bye?," "I Second The Emotion," and "You've Really Got A Hold On Me."

Clark added, "THE AMERICAN MUSIC AWARDS will be the first time that the music-buying public will have an opportunity to choose its favorite artists and music for the year for a national awards show."

APPLE'S WAY

Suppose a cousin of John-Boy Walton, with a similar upbringing but in Iowa instead of Virginia, had studied architecture, married, moved to California, raised four children, then moved back to his hometown. In a sense, he would be a contemporary version of John-Boy grown up. And that is the potent concept of the new family series, Apple's Way, airing Sundays at 7:30PM on CBS. It comes from the same creative team that developed the phenomenally-successful series, The Waltons, which in its first season garnered half a dozen Emmys and the prestigious Peabody Award.

Earl Hamner created The Waltons on the basis of his memories of growing up in a large family in Virginia during the 1930s. In creating Apple's Way, he again draws on his own life, beliefs and values, brought into the present day. Hamner will serve as executive producer with Lee Rich, head of Lorimar Productions, who is also executive producer of The Waltons.

Apple's Way is the story of George Apple, 40-year-old successful architect, who moves his family from California to his hometown of Appleton, Iowa. There, in the heartland of America, they find many adjustments and adventures—along with a reaffirmation of old-fashioned virtues. Hamner describes Apple as a man with "a country-boy's shrewdness and, if the occasion demand it, the guile of a horse trader. But he is a good man, by training, by instinct and by desire. He could not live with himself and be any other way."

A team of seasoned professionals makes up the cast, headed by Ronny Cox in the starring role of George Apple. Cox, who won acclaim for his performance in the feature film, "Deliverance," is a stage veteran and toured recently in "Summer and Smoke" with Eva Marie Saint. His television credits include "The Pueblo Incident," "Look Homeward, Angel" and "The Connection." Stage actress Lee McCain stars as Apple's wife, Barbara. Born in Pennsylvania but trained in drama in England, Miss McClain has had extensive experience in regional theater. She appeared on Broadway in "Play It Again, Sam" and off-Broadway in "Lemon Sky."

Hamner based the two older children in the show, a boy, 16, and a girl, 14, on his own son and daughter. The roles are played by Vincent Van Patten, son of a theatrical family, as Paul Apple: (Vincent has been acting since he was 10) and Patti Cohoon as Cathy. Patti sang and danced for three years with the Mike Curb Congregation and was a regular on the Here Comes the Brides series.

The two younger children in the Apple family are 10-year-old Patricia, played by Franny Michel, who was featured in "Diary of a Mad Housewife," and 10-year-old Steven, played by Eric Olson, who has appeared in commercials and recently completed his first feature film, "Mixed Company."

Hamner has aimed at a sense of reality by using many of his actors' real-life characteristics in the roles they play. For one thing, Ronny Cox is a talented guitar player so one script is built around his helping a high school boy who also plays the guitar. Cox is also a devoted jogger, so the show will have scenes of him jogging around the countryside. Miss McCain's hobby is interior decorating so in the series, she works at an Appleton department store as an interior decorator. Little Eric used one of his own collection of snakes for a scene, drawing, as Hamner notes, "a most realistic shriek" from Patti and Michel.

Hamner has also made George Apple a concerned citizen, one who does not hesitate to get involved in a cause that needs fighting for—even if it lands him in trouble. In one episode, he stations himself in a tree that is a town landmark to keep it from being cut down. In another, he persuades his father to come and live with the family because he wants his children to learn from another generation. Hamner's refreshing reason for setting his show in Iowa: "I got tired of television executives in New York and Los Angeles wondering if such-and-such a show would be popular in Iowa, as though a different race of people lived there."

'SOMETHING IMPORTANT THAT NEEDED SAYING'

Happiness for Elizabeth Montgomery is a good script, whether it be comedy or drama. "If it's well written it doesn't really matter to me what it is," she said. "I was deilghted with the script of 'A Case of Rape.' Not only was it a strong script but this is really something important that needed saying." Miss Montgomery was referring to the two-hour film, "A Case of Rape," airing Wednesday at 9PM on NBC. She portrays a middle-class housewife and mother who, after being raped, finds herself embarrassed and humiliated by a law enforcement and judicial system that at times seems more concerned with protecting the rapist's rights than the victim's.

"It happens every day," said Miss Montgomery. "It has been estimated that a rape occurs every 12 minutes somewhere in this country and only a fourth are reported to the police. Women have been beaten down by the system for so long that they frequently find it easier to keep quiet about being raped than to report it. This is particularly true in ghetto areas, according to figures I've seen."

Miss Montgomery is no stranger to straight drama. She appeared in 250 live television shows before settling down for eight seasons as the mischievous witch Samantha on Bewitched. She received five Emmy nominations for the role, which has made her one of the more recognizable TV stars. "Those were great years," she says of Bewitched. "We were really lucky in that we had such good writers. And good comedy is the hardest thing in the world to write." As for the future, she says, "I'll do anything if it has a good script."

Frankly Speaking

I like Joe Benti. I like the way the news is presented... they don't give a lot of pizzazz like some channels.

TRUDY OWENS
Palos Verdes, Ca.

I usually watch Joseph Benti... he is very clear and doesn't do a lot of kidding around... all the stories are late breaking that's why I like Channel 2.

PHYLLIS CURRIE
Los Angeles, Ca.

Benti doesn't appeal to me personally... seems kind of dry.

MICHAEL BRAJEVICH
Torrance, Ca.

I like Benti's directness and tell it like it is attitude.

OLIVE ESTREM
San Diego, Ca.

We are in bed by nine o'clock.

BEVERLY COWLEY
Manhattan Beach, Ca.

We usually watch Channel 2 at eleven o'clock... just being factual without the drama, I like that.

HENNING WENDT
Redondo Beach, Ca.

I used to enjoy Channel 2 a little more than I do now, I don't like them in their shirt sleeves.

ANTON PATTI
Redondo Beach, Ca.

They're all good... Newsroom is a little more exciting... if you see someone walking in the background you know it... it's really happening and it's not made up.

LINDA CHAFE
Torrance, Ca.

Don't believe everything you read about Joe Benti. See for yourself. Weeknights at 11:00, direct from the Channel 2 Newsroom.

JAMES EARL JONES DISLIKES WASTED COMPLEMENTS

"I don't like being complimented for something I had nothing to do with, like my height or the color of my eyes. There are too many times I need compliments for things I work hard to do through my own efforts, will or choice."

For actor James Earl Jones, compliments have been many, and more than a few for his portrayal of "King Lear" in which he stars in the title role. Shakespeare's tragedy about the mad king will air on Theater in America, Wednesday at 8:30PM on KCET, Channel 28. The production is performed by Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival and will be presented nationally over PBS.

A man of integrity, Jimmy (as he prefers being called) holds tightly to his ideals. "I admit to being arrogant and to being selfish, but those aren't necessarily bad words," he notes. "I'm totally committed to myself, but contrary to being at the exclusion of others, it's at the inclusion. I need people, love and support just as much as anyone. But I don't like wasted compliments or criticism if what is being judged hasn't to do with my efforts. If someone is moved by my performance, tell me man! That I want to hear."

As one who believes strongly in "it's the effort that counts," Jimmy gives his all in every performance. He began acting in 1957 and two years later received the Tony Award for Best Actor for his performance on Broadway as Jack Jefferson in "The Great White Hope," a role he also played in the film version. In addition to the Tony Award, Jones has been cited with the Vernon Rice, Obie and Theater World Awards, and has been nominated for the Academy Award, the Golden Nymph, International Television Festival and Emmy Awards.

Shakespeare is not new to James Earl Jones. In 1960 he first appeared with the New York Shakespeare Festival in "Henry V," and since then has appeared in over fifteen Festival Productions, among them the widely acclaimed "Hamlet."

At 5:30 Bill Stout and Tom Kelly act on history making news from the Newsroom.

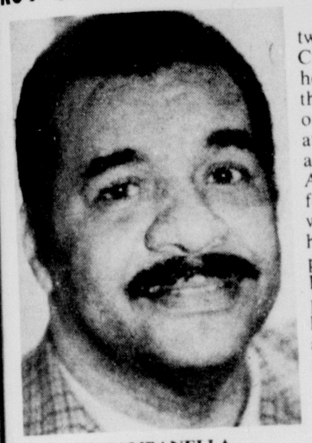
ROY CAMPANELLIA'S TRAGIC STORY



ROY CAMPANELLA

"It's Good To Be Alive," a two hour dramatization of Roy Campanella's own story of how he "survived being dead from the neck down" will be telecast on GE Theater on CBS, Friday at 9PM. Filmed in New York and California, "It's Good To Be Alive" stars Paul Winfield as the former Brooklyn Dodger catcher whose near-fatal accident left him a quadraplegic. Ruby Dee plays Campanella's first wife, Ruthe, and Lou Gossett is the physical therapist who motivates him to make the initial physical and mental efforts to live after the accident.

Winfield spent a short time with Campanella in New York to observe the baseball star's adjustments to his wheelchair existence. He also "soaked in" all he could find to read in addition to Campanella's own book, "It's Good To Be Alive," which is not just a baseball story. It's the story of a man struck down at the height of his career, and of his superhuman struggle to conquer the paralysis caused by the tragic automobile accident in 1958.

To determine how Campanella moves, despite the loss of the use of his muscles, Winfield spent several days at the Long Beach, California, Veterans' Hospital observing the rehabilitation processes "helpless" quadraplegics undergo to learn how to take care of themselves.

The GE Theater film traces the life of the famous athlete through two of its most significant events. In the words of Campanella himself: "The first was the night of January 28, 1958, the night I became paralyzed; and the second took place one and a half years later on a very special night at the Coliseum in Los Angeles. In the period of time between those two nights, I found out how difficult it is to be a man, but more importantly, I found out just how much 'it's good to be alive!' "

On that fateful winter night in 1958, Campanella ended a career which saw the catcher earn baseball's Most Valuable Player Award three times, the admiration of thousands of baseball fans and, ultimately, election into baseball's Hall of Fame. Campanella, still confined to a wheelchair, continues to operate his liquor store in the New York area where he lives with his second wife and family.

The man behind the mask, Paul Winfield (also left), portrays Roy Campanella, the baseball great whose brilliant catching career came to a sudden halt when he was crippled in an automobile accident.

PROGRESS BULLETIN, TV WEEK, FEBRUARY 17, 1974

'TRENDS IN BLACK HISTORY'

Abbey Lincoln dramatizes the black woman's struggle for liberation in a scene from the series that deals with black historical developments and achievements.

KNBC/Channel 4 explores the historical achievements of black men and women in the fields of literature and poetry, cinema, religion, medicine and science, in a special ten-part series, "What It Is!". The series of ten half-hour programs is set to air Sundays at 3:30PM (beginning Feb. 17) and features noted black personalities, such as Abbey Lincoln, Roscoe Lee Browne, Brock Peters and Lou Gossett, who document through narration, dramatic scenes and readings, important historical contributions made by black people.

Kicking off the two-part examination of black poetry and literature are Abbey Lincoln and Roscoe Lee Browne reading from the works of such authors as James Weldon Johnson, Langston Hughes, Richard Wright, Nikki Giovanni and Frederick Douglass. Two programs on black medical achievements follow, hosted by Lou Gossett, who traces the developments in black medicine from Dr. McCune Smith, first black-American to receive a medical degree, to Dr. Daniel Hale Williams, pioner in heart surgery and founder of a black hospital.

Black cinema from 1916 to the 1930's, a largely neglected area of black achievement, is explained by host John Amos; while Bishop H. Hartford Brookins, bishop of the First AME Church of Los Angeles, is the spokesman for an episode on black religion. Featured are the Agnes Jackson Gospel Singers.

The black woman in history is profiled in a two-part segment, hosted by Mary Jane Hewitt, and featuring guest Abbey Lincoln. The series concludes with a two-part examination of black scientific achievements, hosted by actor Brock Peters. The last half-hour is devoted entirely to the work of George Washington Carver, who is portrayed in dramatization by Jeff Burton.

"What It Is!" is produced by Kenny Spalding and directed by KNBC staff director Julian Finkelstein. Associate producer is Angela Pickett; creative consultant is Sue Booker. Linda Taylor is production assistant.

'FEAST FOR A KING'

Highlight of "Guest of Honor," the February 17 episode of "Upstairs Downstairs," telecast Sunday nights at 9 PM on KCET, Channel 28, is an "informal" dinner and bridge party at Bellamy's home at which Edward VII is the guest.

"We forget how the Edwardians ate," says Alistair Cooke, host of the Masterpiece Theatre presentation, at the conclusion of the episode when he delivers one of his weekly comments about the Edwardian-era Englishmen for the benefit of American television viewers. The Edwardian essays are produced by Joan Sullivan of WGBH-Boston, producing unit for Masterpiece Theatre.

"Every nation," Alistair Cooke notes, "takes for granted its own current habits in food. Not only what to eat, but when. And yet, these customs change slowly and drastically, and once they've changed, they never change back again. The Elizabethans had four meals a day, the last in the early afternoon.

TRUMP CARD is held by the affluent Bellamys when King Edward VII comes to their London mansion for a sumptuous dinner and a game of bridge.

"In the Eighteenth Century in England and America, the evening meal, if you took it out, was finished before dark. And it remained so until Sir Robert Peel invented the policeman, who made it, after centuries of routine muggings, safe to go home in the dark," Cooke continues.

"We, with our three courses for a full-blown meal, have to strain to imagine the enormous appetites of the Edwardians. The British appetite grew with the Empire. All those countries with a vast variety of produce to ship! By Dickens' time, there could be four of everything, and food was the prevailing hobby of the upper and middle classes.

"They had an equally substantial lunch, and three hours later—to keep them alive for dinner—a snack of tea, egg sandwiches, pate sandwiches, cucumber and watercress sandwiches and Scotch scones and chocolate cake and walnut cake and coffee cake—and cake.

"Then they took a snooze and dressed for dinner, the really substantial meal—between ten and fifteen courses, with every sort of fish and meat, and thrown in at intervals—game."
